From the Augusta Constitutionalist.

A Military Despotism.

The bold position is assumed by his Accidency, President Fillmore, that he is vested by the Constitution with sole and supreme command of the Army and Navy, and that he is not restrained by any act of Congress, nor has it authority to restrain him in the use of them for the enforcement of the laws. In his message to the Senate, in reference to the Boston mob, the President asserts that the act of 1707 contains an unconstitutional restriction on his power, and he desired to be relieved by an express enactment, from that restriction. Previous to that act, the President had no legistive authority to call out the Army and Navy to put down insurrections, mobs, and combinations against the laws.—The act of 1795 authorized his calling out the militia only for that purpose, he first issuing a proclamation as a warning to those in revolt. The act of 1807, gave him the additional authority to call out the Army and Navy also, "having first observed all the prerequisites of the law in other respects."

The Senate did not take any action on this question. The majority of the Committee on the Judiciary reported that no further legislation was necessary to enable the President to discharge his executive duty.

Mr. Butler, we are pleased to observe, offered a minority report, in which this proposed stride of the President to absolute military power, is thus pointedly protested against:

"So far as it regards the employment of the army and naval force, the President maintains that he is subject to no pre-requisites of the act referred to, but they are absolutely at his command for the purpose indicated.

"The words of the President are: "Congress, not probably adverting to the difference between the militia and the regular army by the act of March 3d, 1807, authorized the President to use the land and naval force of the United States for the same purpose for which he might call forth the militia, and subject to the same proclamation. But the power of the President under the constitution, as commander of the army and navy, is general, and his duty to see the laws executed is general and positive; and the act of 1807 ought not to be construed as evincing any disposition in Congress to limit or restrain any of his constitutional authority." The import of which is, that the President may use the army and navy as he may think proper, under the plenitude of his constitutional authority; and that he is not constrained by the act of 1807, nor can he be restrained by any act of Congress. Being ex officio commander, he can use the army in suppressing insurrections in a manner different from that in which he is required to use the militia.

"For the specific and sometimes delicate purposes indicated, I think Congress has the direction of the President. When actually in command, for repelling invasion or for any other purpose, he must exercise his own judgment, under his constitutional discretion. In one sentence, I deny that the President has a right to employ the army and navy for suppressing insurrections, &c., without observing the same pre-requisites prescribed for him in calling out the militia for the same purpose.

"His suggestion in his message is, that he shall have a right to employ the militia, as he contends he has a right under the constitution to employ the regular military force; that is, without notice of a proclamation. I do not think he has the right to call out the military force of the Government without observing the pre-requisites of the act of 1795; and I am unwilling to give him such power in calling out the militia. I would regard it as a fearfully momentous occasion to see the army called out to shoot down insurgents, without notice or proclamation.

"The truth is, it must be regarded as a significant omen of the times to be told that a marshal, under the plenary power to call out the posse comitatus, cannot execute constitutional laws without resort to force, and that to be executed with the promptness of the Executive will."

It is indeed, "a significant omen," when the fugitive-slave law cannot be executed among the people of the non-slaveholding States without armises and navies, and not even then, if the people can get a notification by proclamation of such an intention.

If the President be clothed with absolute power, or his authority recognized to be above the jurisdiction of Congress, the South will be the first made to feel the weight of his arm.

Anti-slavery Presidents, such as Millard Fillmore, who are hereafter destined, in all probability, to be the sole occupants of that station, would feel employed in a more congenial duty, in marching down upon the Southern people, than in enforcing laws upon Boston mobs, with whose anti-slavery sentiments they sympathize.

CHRISTIANS SENTENCED TO DEATH.—Accounts from Madagascar state that in June last, eight thousand Christians, who had assembled at Imirena for worship, were arrested by order of the Queen and condemned to death. Eighteen had already been executed, when the rest found means to escape, fled to the palace of the Prince, and threw themselves upon his protection. The Prince accorded his protection in spite of the commands of his mother, who fearing a revolution, did not dare to persist in her persecutions. The Christians were at last accounts in safety. The Prince had been several times to their prayer meetings, and hopes were entertained that when he reached the throne on the death of his mother, the policy of excluding foreign merchants from the port of aMdagascar would be annulled.

THE CUBAN TRIAL.—The New Orleans Pieayune, in announcing the closing scene of this huge farce just enacted there, says:

"The end of these trials has not been unexpected, and we do not see that there has been any ground for finding fault with the result, The officers of the Government have performed their duty with all diligence; and if they have failed to establish the offence with which these parties were charged, it is manifest that it has been for want of proof, and that the accused were entitled to a discharge from offences that could not be proved, and which every attempt to prove only removed still further from them."

WHOLESALE BUSINESS OF CHARLESTON.—The great extension this season of the business of Charleston, in all the wholesale lines, has been the subject of observation, and is a gratifying result of increased intercourse between the West and the leading South Atlantic emporium. Bills have been made up by houses in Hayne and Meeting-streets for merchants in the remote Western cities, who never before appeared in our market.

The effect of this improvement has been felt in other branches of business throughout which is diffused the activity imprarted to the wholesale trade. Our city presents a liveliness which calls for the unrelaxed energies of both Employers and Clerks—of Principals and Assistants

ERYIPELAS is becoming quite a fatal disease. Six persons died from it in New-York last week.

The Markets.

Correspondence of the Advertiser.

HAMBURG, March 18.

MR. EDITOR:—Since my last, we have received later accounts from Liverpool, per steamer Asia, arrived at New York. The telegraphic news has come to hand, representing an advance in cotton the week ending 1st inst. which has created a healthier feeling in our market, though I am not able to quote a positive advance. Prime cotton will readily command 10½c, a fancy article would bring something over. I have no change to notice in Bacon, Corn, Flour and Lard. The river is in fine boating order. O. P. Q.

CHARLESTON, March 17.

A good demand for Cotton has prevailed this day, and the transactions are reported at 2,000 bales at a range of 7 a 11c. There is an advance as compared with last week which in some cases reaches 1-2c.

COLUMBIA, March 15.

We have no new feature to notice in the cotton market to-day. The demand, although not brisk, was steady, and to a fair extent. Forty bales changed hands at prices ranging from 6 1 2 to 9¾ cents.

MARRIED.

On the 16th inst., by S. Broadwater, Mr. NATHAN BUSH, to Mrs. NANCY COURSEY, all of this District.

OBITUARY.

DIED, on the 28th ult. at his own residence, in this District, AARON HILL, Esq., in the 75th year of his age. He was born and reared, and he lived and ceased to live almost in the same neighborhood, and there was not an act of his life, or scarcely a thought of his mind but what was familiar to the people among whom his destiny had cast him. He had also held civil offices of trust and responsibility.

Under these circumstances, whilst we mourn in unavailing sorrow, for the departed, it is peculiarly gratifying to feel a consciousness, that he left not an enemy on earth, or a man that can rejoice in his death.

It was the fortune of the writer of this humble tribute, to be the neighbor, and the intimate bosom friend of the deceased for many of the last years of his life, and even to the time he closed his mortal career. He therefore can speak, with knowledge and authority.

In his intercourse with his friends, and with all he permitted to his society, Mr. HILL was liberal, frank, and just. He loved to meliorate the distress of others, to the very extent of his means, and it was ever his aim to calm the passions of the contentious, and to hush the voice of complaint, rather than to encourage or stir up strife and animosity. In a word, he was so scrupulous in all his conduct here, so exact in meeting out justice to others as well as to himself, that it would be impossible, now that he is gone, for the most malignant to cast a blot or a shade upon his memory.

The deceased was strictly a moral man, in every sense, exhibiting a philanthropic spirit during his whole pilgrimage, but he had attached himself to no religious sect. Cherishing the highest degree of independence, both in thought and action, he viewed every thing through the medium of his own philosophy, and worshipped his Great Creator in every blessing that he enjoyed, with a fervent, unrestricted devotion

I BEG leave respectfully to inform the citizens of Edgefield, Village and Country, that I have commenced a MERCANTILE BUSINESS in the house situated between Mr. BRYAN'S Store and the Court House.

My STOCK, consisting of all the varieties usually found in a Village Retail Store, has been recently purchased in Charleston, from Houses that import their Goods, principally, direct from Europe. And I flatter myself, that an experience of five years in an Importing and Jobbing House in Charleston, together with other facilities, has enabled me to get a STOCK of GOODS, that will, in point of STYLE and PRICE, compare favorably with any Establishment in the place. Persons wishing to purchase Goods for CASH or on a credit until first of January next, will loose nothing by giving me a call.

A small share of patronage is earnestly solicited.

In the article of death, my friend was sustained by the same wisdom and fortitude which had borne him up through life. He spoke of his approaching dissolution with the calmness of a philosopher, and the courage of a hero. He made his final arrangements with a coolness and cheerfulness, which could only be inspired by the review of a well-ordered life, of charities beneficent, of goodness unspotted and pure, and of a whole course of 74 years that was manly and irreproachable.

He was so minute in his last directions, as to nominate the writer for the sad office he has now feebly but sincerely endeavored to perform, to the memory and the virtues of his departed friend.

He left sons, and daughters and grand-children, with a long train of friends to sorrow over his tomb. A.

DEPARTED this life in Edgefield District, on Wednesday the 5th of March, NATHAN NORRIS, Esq., in the 81st year of his age. The deceased was a correct and useful citizen, and much esteemed by all who knew him, for his many virtues. He was one of those true specimens of the old school of honesty, the last of whom are rapidly passing away. In his life, he presented to the circle in which he moved, a pattern of excellence, rarely surpassed. In his death, he exhibited the "end of the righteous."

Mr. NORRIS had been a member of the Baptist Order for 40 years; for him, Death had no sting, the grave, no victory. He was fully ripe for the sickle, and is now gathered into his Master's garner on high.

A numerous list of friends and relatives mourn his loss. May they ever imitate his virtues.

For the Southern Congress.

Mr. EDITOR: I offer for the consideration of the voters of this Congressional District, Col. F. W. PICKENS and DRAYTON NANCE, Esq., as candidates to represent it in the Southern Congress. They are gentlemen of ripe experience, of tried patriotism, and united to the State by the highest and holiest ties.—These gentlemen would possess some advantages from their attendance upon the Nashville Convention above many others, no less worthy and qualified in other respects.
