SECOND CROP OF IRISH POTATOES.

For several years I have been trying to raise a second crop of Irsh potatoes, but without success until last year, and as I was so well rewarded for my continued efforts, and value the second, or fall crop, more than the spring crop I offer you my plan of planting, etc., for publication, that others may be profited by it:

The greatest trouble I have had to contend with was to get a stand, and by close observation I found it was the excess of heat, combined with the drouth generally prevailing at the planting season, that caused the potato planted to rot before it could come up. To obviate this difficulty I selected from the first crop such as I wanted to plant. Small ones do well for me. I spread them on a dirt cellar floor to keep them as cool as possible, and covered with half rotted leaves, (or straw) and sprinkled them occasionally with water. I did this to keep them moist and to make them sprout. I did this three or four weeks before I expected to plant. I then selected a piece of land as much protected from the midday and evening sun as possible, plowek deep and close, opened furrows two and a half or three feet wide, put in plenty of manure (such as cotton seed mixed with stable, sow or hogpen manure and rich dirt), such as is generally wasted around a farm, and covered the same with two furrows.

This should be done about the first of July. After the first rain, the last of July or beginning of August, open the rows or ridges with a bull tongue. When you have covered the manure, drop the potatoes as usual and cover with hoe, rake or drag, or run a large sweep in the middle of the rows, if large enough to cover the potatoes then cover the ground with straw to the depth of about six inches.

I find this crop superior to the spring crop, and have kept my potatoes the whole winter perfectly sound, both in the cellar and in the ground where they grow. The straw keeps the ground moist and cool and protects the potatoes from frost in winter, if parties are desirous of keeping them in the ground. Where there is no cellar a hole can be dug in the ground and covered with boards.— L. S. C. to Southern Cultivator.

HINTS FOR THE SICK ROOM.

Never stand at the foot of a sick bed and survey the patient. All figures loom large to fevered eyes and by the side of the bed are only partly seen, and do not annoy with the sense of two much presence. Do not open the door very slowly for then the attention is strained, speculating as to who the next comer can possibly be after all this preparation and with such cautious approach, generally creaking. Low but clear tones, quiet but sure movements—not tip-toeing—and rapid, rather than slow, are a great relief to any person who is blessed with a practical nurse. Whispering is torture. Silence is best until you can discuss matters in another room; but if you speak, speak out and make no mysteries about anything. In severe illness the nurse must watch her patient steadily, but not seem to be looking. In convalescence it frequently soothes the invalid to have the nurse seated at the window, apparently looking out. This frees the faculties from the tension that the sense of being watched usually gives and also quiets anxiety.

Those farmers who desire to seed orchard grass will now be preparing the land for the reception of the seed, which should be sown in August. Thoroughly well prepared, because this crop not only requires it, but well deserves it, remaining in the ground, as it does, for 20 or 30 years, or even more, when well treated by occasional top dressings. The soil should be made fine by repeated harrowings. The seed is then sown and cross sown, half each way, to get an even sowing, and the ground is then lightly brush-harrowed, and then rolled. The rolling is especially needed if the weather is dry. From two to three bushels of seed—about 33 pounds—is sown per acre. As the seed is rather costly it is well to sow an acre or two first, cut this the next year when it is ripe and save the seed. One acre will produce enough to sow 10 acres.

SALT RISING BREAD.—In early morning take a teacupful of milk; pour boiling water in until it is bloodwarm; put in a small quarter teaspoon of salt; the same of sugar; then stir in one large tablespoon of graham flour, or corn meal, and two tablespoonfuls of fine flour, or until it is as thick as pancake batter; mix it all in a quart cup, set it to rise. Keep it of an equal heat by setting the cup in warm water; if water gathers on top dust a little flour and stir; it will rise by noon. Mix as other bread; mold and put in pans at once; let stand until light when it is ready for the oven. If you have no milk, water will do for the rising.

Common Sense!

An old philosopher used to maintain that men are really all alike, varying fortunes being due to circumstances. In like manner it may be said that all men desire to dress well, the knowledge of where to buy, making the only difference in their wearing apparel. One thing certain: The best dressed men, and those that pay the least money for their Clothing, buy at the Emporium.

There can be no doubt about this statement, because it is founded upon the plainest common sense.

First.—Because I buy in large quantities, from manufacturers, which is more than half the battle in commercial warfare, and thus save a large percentage usually paid to middlemen.

Second.—I give my customers the benefit of this percentage.

Third.—I purchase no garments but those which are made of Superior material, by expert designers and skillful workmen.

And lastly but not least my house rests on the firm foundation of Honest Dealing. I allow no exaggeration or misrepresentation, all goods are exactly as represented. Come and try us, or rather the clothing, and judge for yourself.

My General Stock Consists of Clothing, Hats, Gents furnishing Goods in all grades, Neckwear, and Men's fine shoes

Every cash purchase made to the amount of $12.50 or over I will give a Solid Silver Nickle Water bury Watch and Chain.

Remember the amount must be $12.50 worth of Goods or over, before securing one of these time pieces.

A STRUGGLE WITH A SHIRT.

Three hundred and sixty-five times each year every mother's son of us has a struggle getting into his shirt.

If a shirt is worth getting into, if it is strong and well made, sure not to rip or tear, perfect fitting, then there is some compensation for spending so much of our existence in such a struggle. You may wrestle with the DIAMOND, but with its everlasting-stay-attachment and reinforced bosom, you will come out head first every time, covered with glory and with the best shirt in the land.

A FEW WORDS FROM CAPT. R. W. BONNER, A WELL-KNOWN CITIZEN OF MACON.

In August, 1881, nearly three years ago, my son, who was at that time living at Clinton, Ga., came over to see me with the sad intelligence that his wife was in the last stages of consumption and that her physician had pronounced her case hopeless. I went immediately over, and I felt that nothing could be done. She was coughing and spitting incessantly, and at times would discharge from her lungs a large quantity of pus or matter—could not sleep or retain anything on her stomach, and was, in fact, in the last stages of the disease. This was about the time you began to advertise Brewer's Lung Restorer, and as my son expressed a desire to give it to his wife, two or three bottles were procured and with scarcely a vestige of hope we commenced giving it to her in small doses gradually increasing the quantity until the prescribed dose was reached. She began to improve after a few doses and continued to do so daily, until she was finally restored to life and health, and is to day perhaps in better health than ever before. She is subject to colds, but a few swallows of Brewer's Lung Restorer (which she is never without) relieves her immediately. I consider her restoration to perfect health a miracle, for which she is indebted to Brewer's Lung Restorer. My son is almost a monomaniac on the subject of Brewer's Lung Restorer and never lets an opportunity pass where he thinks such a medicine would be required, that he does not speak of it in most glowing terms. Not long since a Northern gentleman on his way to Florida heard of this cure and was induced by my son to give it to his invalid wife, and she was cured as if by magic."

Mr. Charles Eden, of Trinidad, Colorado, says: Seeing certificates of the wonderful cures made by Brewer's Lung Restorer, I was induced to try it on my little son, who was troubled with lung or throat affection, pronounced by one physician, consumption. It acted wonderfully on him, and by the time he had taken one bottle of it the cough disappeared. I am now on a visit to my parents in Georgia, but will return in a few days to my home and will certainly take some of the Lung Restorer with me.

Where the Fire is Out.

Magic no more a mystery--see from across the world.

"Haroun of Aleppo," said Sir Philip Derval, "had mastered every secret in nature which the nobler magic seeks to fathom. He discovered that the true art of healing is to assist Nature to throw off the disease—to summon, as it were, the whole system to eject the enemy that has fastened on a part. His process all included the reinvigoration of the principle of life."

In this the Eastern sage merely anticipated the practice of the best physicians of to-day. What life itself is, nobody knows either—nobody knows now. But we have learned something of the reasons why the mysterious tide rises and falls. Provided the great organs of the body are not irreparably destroyed, medical science can always relieve, and often save. Yet no reputable physician now adheres to the barbarous and stupid processes of depletion, such as bleeding, by which it was attempted to cure disease by reducing the patient's ability to resist it. Now-a-days we do not tear down the fort to help the garrison—we strengthen it.

In this intelligent and beneficent work, it is conceded that PARKER'S TONIC leads all other medicines. As an invigorant it acts immediately and powerfully upon the circulation and the organs of digestion, thus giving Nature the assistance she calls for. It follows that all ailments of the stomach, kidneys and liver are at once relieved or cured. No other preparation embodies the same qualities or produces similar results. It is delicious to use, and the best known anti-intoxicant. Price 50c and $1 Hiscox & Co., New York. July, 31 37 1m

MANHOOD
How Lost, How Restored!

Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure of Spermatorrhœa or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self-indulgence, or sexual extravagance, &c. The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.
