THE WESTON & BROOKER

Sanitary Septic Tank

Affords the rural home all the conveniences, the comforts, the PROTECTION of the modern city sewerage system. It is your INSURANCE against dangerous, unsanitary conditions which breed serious and often fatal diseases.

Solves the Problem of Sewage Disposal for the Rural Home. When it is used there is no unsightly nuisance to pollute the soil and drinking water, to furnish a swarming place for flies and a hot-bed for disease germs, to cause embarrassment.

Installed just beneath the surface; never needs attention. The processes of nature through the action of bacteria disintegrate the organic matter and eventually it seeps out into the ground, harmless water and mineral matter. No odor. Constructed of reinforced concrete, on the most approved lines, in our plant at Columbia and shipped to customers complete. Simple, easy to install, far cheaper and vastly more efficient than any makeshift.

Approved by health authorities.

It costs you nothing; puts you under no obligations to find out all about the Sanitary Septic Tank. Write us and let us tell you how it will enable you to afford your home modern conveniences and protection against disease.

PANAMA CANAL TO BE THE HIGHWAY

In Case of a General War the New Canal Will Be of Great Service

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, July 30.—The Panama canal, which will be opened to commerce in another two weeks, is destinied at the outset to become a strategic highway of the world if the present hostilities between Austria-Hungary and Servia develop into a general conflict involving the other European powers.

The treaty stipulation provides that the canal, like the Suez canal, shall be free and open to the vessels of commerce and of war of all nations," and "shall never be blockaded nor shall any right of war be exercised nor any act of hostility be committed within it."

The liability of search would be a hazard to Suez and Mediterranean commerce if the present war clouds burst and it was pointed out commercial activities might be steadily curtailed as the parties to the conflict defined more sharply the commodities to be included in contraband of war. It was suggested here that a large part of the Suez commerce might be diverted to Panama.

While the vessels of war as well as of commerce of belligerents may freely use the canal, exact rules have been devised to maintain the strictest neutrality of the waterway. The transit of war vessels must be made with the least possible delay, and with only such intermission as may result from the necessities of the service. No belligerent may "embark or disembark troops, munitions of war or warlike matrials in the canal, except in the case of the accidental hindrance of the transit, and in such case the transit shall be resumed with all possible dispatch."

The treaty provisions prohibiting any act of hostility in the canal precludes any war vessel from exercising the right of search on a commercial vessel in transit through the waterway or within three miles of either terminal.

NAME IS CHANGED

Battleship Mississippi is Now Named Kilkis.

(By Associated Press.)

Norfolk, Va., July 30.—With impressive ceremony the former battleship Mississippi of the United States navy was christened today Kilkis and dedicated by Representatives of the Greek government.

When the Hellenic colors were raised over the quarterdeck of the Kilkis, and the flag had been blessed by Rev. V. Lambridi of Washington, D. C., the ship's band played the Greek national hymn, which evoked enthusiastic applause. Then the band played the Star Spangled Banner and the applause was equally as enthusiastic.

In a patriotic address the Greek minister to the United States, Agamemnon Schliemann, referred to the ship as an agency that has strengthened the royal Greek fleet and "which will help increase the power of our nation and the glory of our flag."

WOMAN SENTENCED TO JAIL FOR LIFE

Guilty of Murder in Second Degree, First Trial Resulted in Verdict of First Degree

(By Associated Press.)

New Haven, Conn., July 30.—Mrs. Bessie J. Wakefield tonight was found guilty of the murder of her husband. The jury returned a verdict of second degree murder which carries with it a penalty of life imprisonment.

The trial lasted twelve days.

At her first trial last November a verdict of guilty in the first degree was returned but the supreme court reversed the judgment. Wakefield actually was killed by James Plew, who paid the death penalty. The state claimed Mrs. Wakefield "aided and abetted" in putting her husband out of the way in order that she might marry Plew.

ASKED VOTES FOR SOUTH CAROLINA

R. A. Cooper, Speaking at St. Matthews, Told People to Vote Not For Men But For State

Special to The Intelligencer.

St. Matthews, July 30.—Calhoun county voters gave the state candidates a respectful and undemonstrative hearing today. There were no outstanding features.

Lowndes J. Browning stated that he would attend the conference in Columbia tomorrow when the elimination of candidates for governor will be discussed while all other candidates have refused to attend.

C. A. Smith declared that prohibition is still an issue in South Carolina.

John G. Clinkscales received a brief ovation when introduced. He declared that lawlessness was contagious and that conditions should be changed in South Carolina.

R. A. Cooper said he hoped that the people of the state would vote, not for their friends, but for the state of South Carolina.

SUFFS WANT BALLOT

Several Hundred in Parade Through Crowded Streets

Columbus, O., July 30.—Starting their second campaign, Ohio suffragettes invaded the State House today and placed on files in the office of the Secretary of State initiative petitions for the submission in the November election of a proposal to amend the constitution so as to give women the right to vote. A proposed suffragette amendment was defeated in September 1912.

The women expressed their resentment of State officialism in refusing to receive the delegation which carried the petitions to the State House. Secretary of State Graves was busy in his private office when the women arrived and he sent word he could not see them.

Before going to the capitol several hundred women and men took part in a parade through crowded streets.

Uncle Dave's Letter

What is a Good Man?

That question is far more difficult to answer than would at first appear. In the bible Luke calls Barnabas a good man, and judged by the standards of that time, or of any time, Luke gives us a good estimate of Barnabas, for his whole history proves he was worthy of the name.

I once saw on the billboards at Richmond, Virginia, a large colored lithograph representing the crowned heads of Europe standing together and gazing in admiring wonder at the then champion prize fighter of the world, who, clad in evening dress, was the center of the group.

Some "sport" of the street had taken a pencil of charcoal and written under the picture of the prize fighter, "Jim is the best man in the world." That was the boy's estimate. A good deal depends upon the viewpoint and upon one's own ideal of what goodness is. Life is not the simple thing one might suppose. It is a very complex thing. It is no holiday task to build a life which is good in all its parts. I wonder if we can't agree in reading this letter as to what constitutes a good man. Surely we will all agree that a good man must be good to himself. I mean by that he will be careful to pursue that course in life which will be beneficial to his physical nature. He will not abuse his body. He will be careful to preserve his health and always obey the laws of his bodily being. He will take care of his mind and be obedient to those mental laws by which the intellect grows and all powers of the mind come to their highest efficiency.

No man is good to himself who allows himself to grow up uneducated and uncultivated; living in ignorance and stripped of intellectual delights and powers.

No man is good to himself who neglects his soul life. A beast, by instinct, cares for its physical needs. The vilest of criminals may be trained in the schools and keen of brain. Only that man is good to himself who cultivates his noblest and finest qualities and they belong to the soul.

At best, he who has a sound mind in a sound body is only two-thirds a man. His finer part is artophied or neglected. No man can be called good who is not good to himself who lives regardless of his finer and eternal nature. Indeed, no man can be possessed of the best things in the realm of the physical and intellectual until he has opened his soul to the divine truth, and has learned to rule his life by the heavenly standards. All the finer influences of the spirit will work down into mental and physical processes and produce that unity and health which are essential to the noblest and best balanced personality.

No man is a good man unless he is good to his fellow men. In the intimate relations of the home circle, whether as child or parent, he must be good. It is in the home that the severest tests of one's goodness are made. One may play a part and rule himself by mere social conventionalities while out in the world. But at home we appear what we are.

If our goodness does not show itself in the way we relate ourself to brothers and sisters, to parents or children or husband or wife, or to servants, it is one of a very shallow and worthless sort. A good man is known to be at his best among those who know him best and love him most. You don't know how good or how bad a man is if you only see him dealing with his superiors or his equals. You must see him in his unostentatious dealings with the humble and needy and obscure, who can in no way give return of favor, and whose needs are met solely on the ground of loving sympathy and unfeigned brotherhood.

No man is a good man who is not a patriot. I mean by that he must be good to his country. He must perform those civil duties upon which the very stability of the city and country depends.

No man is a good man who refuses to do his political duty; who refuses to vote; who refuses to pay his honest taxes; who shares in any form of indirect robbery of the people; who by positive action or wicked indifference and neglect is a party to the continuation of such evil customs and institutions as destroy the homes and the manhood of the nation.

No man can be called a good man who lends himself willingly to any policy which issues in broken homes, orphaned children ruined men and outraged womanhood. He must recognize his debt to his fellowmen, for no man can live to himself.

There is a divine law of social service and no man can be called good in these days who goes recklessly on in the pursuit of his own personal gain and pleasure, amassing millions amid starving and illiterate multitudes.

Any magnate leaving an estate valued at $125,000,000 and not one dollar to charity may have done a great constructive work for civilization, but his failure to recognize the divine law of stewardship will be the material cause of anarchy.

No man is a good man if he is not good to God.

No man can lay claim to even ordinary decency who fails to recognize his dependence upon his Heavenly Father.

No man can be good who has not a grateful heart. Ingratitude is the offset sin. We can forgive almost any sin save insincerity and ingratitude.

How many there are who count themselves good and yet are the daily recipients of God's bounty. They roll in rich blessings; they feast on God's banquets; they have much of this world's good things, and yet they have never devoutly fallen on their knees and said "thank you" to their loving Benefactor. They are mean ingrates! If they ever do get caught in violating the laws on the statute books and are sent to prison, they feel irreparably disgraced; and yet all the time before, when they were moving in good society and prating themselves on their goodness and standing, God knew, and all good men knew, that they were rebels against the divine government and under condemnation of the divine Judge, and sure of awful and unmeasurable disgrace and overthrow.

No man is a good man who is disobedient to God's moral laws.

No man is a good man who is ungrateful to Jesus Christ.

No man is a good man who is mean in his dealings with his Poet Friend.

UNCLE DAVE.

BLEASE IS GONE —IS THE OPINION

Meeting In Columbia Yesterday Concluded That He Has Lost Race For the Senate

Columbia, July 31.—That Bleaseism is already overwhelmingly defeated in South Carolina and that the democracy of the state can be depended upon to vote for the candidates who will stand for law, order and decency as opposed to the lawlessness "which has disgraced South Carolina for the past three and one-half years," was the substance of a resolution drafted and adopted by delegates representing the anti-Blease forces of the state, which met here today.

Resolutions offered by George W. Croft, member of the Aiken delegation, were adpoted without a dissenting voice. The following is the last section of the resolutions:

Whereas, it was the judgment of those assembled that the overwhelming majority of the people of South Carolina is opposed to Bleaseism, and Bleaseism is already defeated, and,

Be it resolved, by the delegates to the recent state convention from Aiken county that we do not deem it further step toward a selection of a necessary or expedient to take any proper and suitable candidate for governor, but we call upon the manhood of South Carolina to join with us in going to the polls and laying aside if necessary their personal preferences and in casting their votes for the honor and good of our state and for the candidates who appear to be the most available to overwhelmingly defeat Bleaseism August 25th.

AN AUTO ON TWO WHEELS

The Gyroscope is Applied to Motor Car.

(From the Literary Digest.)

An automobile, standard size, running on two tandem wheels like a bicycle, and kept in balance by a gyroscope, has been invented by a Russian named Schilowsky and is described by B. Forbin in La Nature. Mr. Forbin notes that neither the much-heralded gyroscope railway of Louis Brennan nor the improvements made on it by Scherl, the Berlin editor, have been put into use as commercially practicable. He has hopes for this new modification, and gives in detail his reasons for them. Schilowsky's monorail differs little in apeparance from its predecessors, his changes in the mechanism not being ordinarily visible. In addition, however, he has built, on the same principle, the motor car noted above, which would appear to be a new departure. Says Mr. Forbin:

The characteristic principles of this vehicle are as follows:

1. The gacoline motor of the car also operates the gyroscope, whose weight is only one-tenth of that of the vehicle.

2. The energy consumed by the gyroscope is 1 1-4 horsepower.

3. The disk turns at the rate of 1,200 revolutions a minute.

4. The gyroscope takes up little room and requires no manual control.

5. By using flanged wheels instead of pneumatic tires, the vehicle can be used on one of the rails of a railroad track.

Such a vehicle presents great advantages:

1. Absolute suppression of lateral shocks on the worst roads, accompanied by a notable dimunition of fatigue for the passengers and of wear for the car and its parts. The durability of the motor is increased, and lighter materials may be used in the construction of the car.

2. The tractive effort is diminished consequently there is an economy of energy and of fuel. With capacity for an equal load, a less powerful motor may be used.

3. The bicycle automobile runs easily over the narrowest roads.

4. The gyroscopic stabilization allows the vehicle to take horizontal curves at high speed.

We have seen the bicycle automobile run in the environs of London over good and bad roads alike, carrying six passengers, including the inventor and his chaffeur; and we admired the ease—the animal intelligence—with which the heavy machine regained its balance, without the intervention of its driver, whenever a curve or an inequality of the road disturbed its equilibrim.

VISITED FANNIE CROSBY

Mrs. Grace Diver, While in Massachusetts, Called on Wonderful Woman.

Mrs. Grace Cater Diver, matron of Anderson College, is enjoying her vacation in Massachusetts. She writes to The Intelligencer from Springfield, that she last week made a visit to the home of Fannie Crosby, the noted gospel song writer who has done so much to promote happiness in the world. Mrs. Diver expects to visit Northfield, Mass., in a few days and will be there for quite a while attending lectures, etc.

She writes that Fannie Crosby, at the advanced age of 94, is yet bright and happy and is engaged in writing songs and hymns, although she is stone blind. Fannie Crosby is one of the most wonderful women that the world has produced and Mrs. Diver will have some great experiences to tell the college girls when they come back next fall.

J. P. MORGAN & CO. STILL HOPEFUL

Cling To the Belief That a General War May Yet Be Averted

(By Associated Press)

New York, July 31.—J. P. Morgan today issued the following statement:

"Alarming as the news is from Europe, we are still hoping that there will not be a general war.

"The situation of the American security market during the past few days has been a splendid illustration of the inherent soundness of financial conditions in this country. While we all earnestly hoped that the New York stock exchange might be kept open, it seemed necessary in the interest of the whole country to close the exchange.

"Bear in mind that the actual properties represented by American securities will not suffer greatly by a European war.

"It is idle to say that America will not be hurt by a general European war. There is no doubt that the whole American people will cooperate to restore normal conditions throughout this country at the earliest possible moment."

WEATHER SIGNS.

Some of the Symptoms of Approaching Rain.

Many people are sufficiently familiar with weather lore to know some of the signs that herald rain, says Tid Bits. The repeated performance of its toilet by the domestic cat, the apparent nearness of distant objects, unusual activity on the part of the snails in the garden—such indications are familiar to most people.

But there are other signs more easily to be noted by home-keeping town dwellers. Here are a few, as catalogued by a weather prophet.

If, on picking up your newspaper in the morning, it displays a tendency to tear almost on its own account, a downpour of rain not far off. Rain is also presaged when the contents of the salt cellar are in a moist and clogged condition. At such times your boot laces have a more than ordinary tendency to snap and your kid gloves will have a cold clammy feeling and be difficult to pull on.

Even the walking stick or umbrella will act the part of a barometer. The handles before rain will reveal a slight deposit of moisture and be sticky to the touch. In this way the question whether it is the wiser to take the walking stick or umbrella on leaving home will be settled for the observant person by an inspection of the article itself.

BAPTIST NEWS.

(From The Courier.)

Pastor H. M. Fallaw of Westminster is making good on his field, Mrs. Stribling writes: "Brother Fallaw is giving us a series of sermons which are so full of wisdom we will be stronger Christians and do more efficient work for our Master. Our church has taken on new life under his consecrated leadership. It is beautiful to see the devotion of our men to him and how willing they are to go forward in all lines of work. I know you will rejoice with us when our new house of worship is finished."

It gives us sorrow to record the death of Mrs. Kugley, the wife of Pastor E. L. Kugley, of Honea Path. She was brought to Greenville some weeks ago in the hope that the change would prove beneficial, but it was unavailing and on last Sunday afternoon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Kennemore, she fell to sleep. Besides her father, mother and husband, Mrs. Kugler leaves four sweet children. She was a truly good woman. We extend to these loved ones our tenderest sympathy.

On Wednesday of last week Mrs. Elizabeth Hammond Bleckley of Anderson died. We can not say that a great loss has been sustained in her going, for she had lived a life that death could not touch. What we can say is that her church, her city, and her state are the richer and the purer because she lived. No one can ever estimate the infinite worth of such a woman. Here was a life well rounded out in years, in character, in achievement, and in honors and rewards. Blessings upon her memory.

MARINES TO MOVE

Detachment Sent To Cuba To Be Used In Guantanamo If Needed.

(By Associated Press.)

Norfolk, July 30.—The transport Hancock sailed today for Guantanamo, Cuba, with 400 marines aboard. This detachment, with three hundred previously transferred to Guantanamo from Vera Cruz will comprise the fifth regiment, under command of Colonel Doyen. They will be held in reserve for service in Haiti and San Domingo should conditions warrant it.

WILL CHANGE NAME

President Will Probably Name Culebra Cut In Honor Late Col. Gaillard

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, July 30.—Representative Finley of South Carolina, today again requested President Wilson to name Culebra cut, in the Panama canal, Gaillard cut, in honor of the late Col. Gaillard, who lost his life from overwork at the canal zone. The president said he would take the matter up. He expects to grant the request.
