The Key to the Situation

Continued from 1st Page This Section aries sufficient for the complete evangelisation of the entire world; that in the U. S. and Canada the membership of the sunday schools is estimated at not less than 14,000,000; and that on the basis that it would take 40,000 missionaries to evangelise the world, it would require only one three-hundred-and-fiftieth part of the membership of the sunday school body. And Dr. Jno. Fopper of the International Sunday School Lesson Committee, says: "I do verily believe that the heathen nations can be converted to [illegible] generation if the church will rear in faith a generation to do the work."

The aim of the sunday school should be to secure the conversion, the development in Christian life, and the training for service of every child who enters its fold; and the implanting of the missionary spirit [illegible] the life of every pupil. The sunday school cannot afford to neglect the missionary ideal. The teaching of missionary principles will give to the pupils knowledge of the growth of Christianity its adaptability to every individual of every nation, and its absolute necessity in the development of the world. If it does not embrace the missionary spirit and ideal, it is likely to become self-centered. Dr. Chas. W. Bishell says that one of the most serious dangers of the sunday school is that it will train its members to be passive recipients of good rather than active bestowers of good. One of the most hopeful signs of the sunday school is that it is beginning to grow in the missionary spirit, and the growth of this spirit in the sunday schools will exert a matchless power upon the spread of Christianity in the world; it will broaden the intellectual life, broaden the sympathies, deepen the spiritual [illegible] the desire for personal service.

Now, in order that we may have sunday schools that will execute these ideas it is absolutely necessary that we [illegible] a definite missionary policy, comprehensive and ad[illegible] things are essential; namely, education, prayer, giving, and an effort to secure missionary recruits. One authority says that in every sunday school there should be "first, a missionary department, properly organised; second, regular meetings of the department, with a written program; third, definite daily prayer for the coming of the Kingdom of God; fourth, the creation of a missionary atmosphere in which love and thought may grow to maturity in the consecration of live to high and holy aims; fifth, the promotion of missionary reading. There should also be observation of a Kingdom day when the school itself should be brought face to face with the realization of these [illegible] and its opportunities; and also a [illegible] offering on the part of the officers and teachers that the members of the school from our growing generation may be trained in such objects and duties that they should have been instructed in a long while ago."

Bishop Wm. M. Bell, speaking on [illegible] other things says this: "The Sunday School stands for educational principles; it stands for [illegible] of child nature in life period when it is related properly and fitly in God's economy [illegible] most perfect and full complement and power of development for the struggles and tasks of adult life. The Sunday School [illegible] undertakes the ministry of that principle and undertakes to lay grip upon the human heart and save it forevermore the highest objectives that can be placed before the human mind; and our Sunday School world today must of necessity take [illegible] more and more the supreme task of all the centuries, the Christianization of the world." It is by an inexorable law that we are forced to bring into school the vision of this task. The Sunday school is to be strong and forceful, unless it is to be childish, unless it is in lack character of heroism and objectives. It must bring [illegible] to its attention and the range of its curriculum and the trial and discipline of [illegible] that God's purpose for [illegible] the whole human family [illegible]

In a word, the boys and girls [illegible] the entire situation. It is said that the stone used in the building of the magnificent State House at Albany, N. Y., were dressed in Sing Sing Prison, under the direction of a convict who was serving a life sentence. When the stones had been finished and were carried to the grounds to go into the building, at great cost, it was discovered that they would not fit and could not be used. Finally, it was seen that this prisoner had the stones cut in such shape and fashion that he alone could fit them together, which he agreed to do upon condition that the Governor would grant him a pardon. He got his pardon, because he held the key to the situation. If we could but realize that the boys and girls actually hold the key to the missionary situation, we would no longer neglect their proper training for the great task. It has been said that the battle of Waterloo was fought out and won at Eton college, and the battles of the missionary task should be fought and won in the first grade of our Sunday Schools. One of the most touching events of history is what is called the Children's Crusades, when seventy thousand children from France and Germany marched across the Alps and, kneeling upon the [illegible] Mediterranean, prayed God that the pathway to the Holy Land might be opened; but even this would be greatly surpassed should the twenty million children of our Sunday Schools, trained in Christian character and for Christian service, go forth to evangelize the world.

POLITICS AND POLITICIAN.

Wilson Democrats in New York are accusing Gov. Glynn of having flopped to Tammany.

In the primary election to be held in various States the contests in many instances, will be very close, especially in Alabama.

Women are young in Chicago for the first time for statutory officers and the result of their ballot will be watched with interest throughout the country.

It is probable that on account of the disturbed condition of affairs in England just now King George will postpone the trip which he and Queen Mary had planned to take to Paris sometime this month until a later date.

Speaker Champ Clark is not gravely concerned over the civil war in Mexico. He says that the United States had such a war that lasted four years, and in which more lives were sacrificed and property destroyed than there will be in Mexico in forty years at the present rate of fighting, and the country came out of it stronger than when it went into it. It will be the same with Mexico.

Vice-President Marshall is fond of society and makes no pretense at concealing the fact. He said he had a dinner engagement for every evening from the first of January to the beginning of Lent, and accepted because he wanted to and not because he had to. He does not mind late hours at all. Secretary Daniels, on the other hand, thinks that Senators and Congressmen should be in bed by 11.30.

A bill that is being prepared by Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin amends the Pure Food Law so as to put the burden of proof on the defendant and not the Government on cases where it is sought to show that the amount of poisonous substance in a food product is sufficient to be injurious.

French suffragettes are planning to hold a number of parades and meeting this spring in the interest of the "cause." One parade has been attempted already, but the policemen of Paris politely but firmly broke up the march. The suffragettes say the next time they plan a parade they will be prepared to carry it through or know the reason why.

Reports from Lower California are to the effect that it has seceded from Mexico and set up a government of its own. There does not seem to be any particular anxiety manifested over the matter. Americans will understand why when it is known that Lower California has an army of only 300 men, but one gunboat a train of cars loaded with building material and not enough money to purchase a high power automobile of a bus wagon.

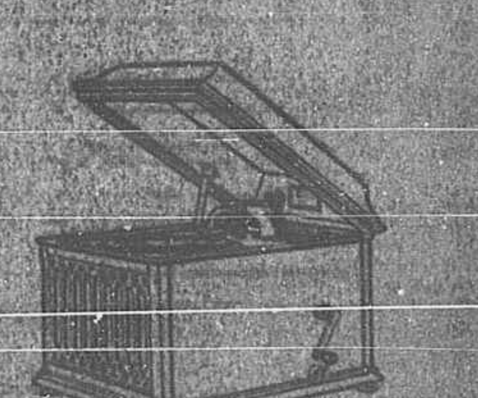
Presences at Court

London, April 5.—A matter that the court officials have felt it necessary to impress upon foreigners presented to the King and Queen is that the fact they have been presented at court does not carry all the privileges that are sometimes suggested. Nobody who has not been presented at a court or levee can be asked to meet the King and Queen but the fact they have been presented does not mean that they will be invited to meet their majesties on some other occasion.

The presentation at courts or levees has no further result than the appearance of the names of the presentees in the following morning's papers. It confers no privilege except that of entry when invited to a foreign embassy abroad. The suggestion that presentees are entitled to receive at least one invitation to a state ball lacks any authority. The lists of invitations for royal functions are compiled from the book containing the names of those presented at court, but in the first place the Lord Chamberlain makes out the lists and then they are carefully scrutinized by the queen.

In the last reign King Edward went over the lists but Kingo George has left this task to his consort, so that every name is carefully considered before it is passed.

YOU WILL NOTICE A VAST DIFFERENCE WHEN YOU HEAR AN EDISON DISC.



Perhaps you are familiar with talking machine music. Perhaps you have a machine already in your home. Perhaps you WOULDN'T have one on easy terms.

But you are interested in fine music. You can't have too much of it in your home. You recognize it instantly when you do hear it.

Well then you should certainly hear the EDISON DISC PHONOGRAPH. It will be a revelation to you. Its music is altogether different from talking machine music. IT'S REAL MUSIC, with all the overtones nicely brought out. It satisfies the most critical music ear; it will satisfy you; it will do more; it will be a revelation to you that you cannot possibly get in any other way.

Come and prove to your satisfaction that the EDISON DISC PHONOGRAPH is DIFFERENT—a musical instrument brought to wonderful perfection by Mr. Edison's inventive genius after years of research and experiment.

COME HEAR IT.
