REMARKABLE RISE OF ANDERSON MAN

John L. Pruitt's Great Farmer—Intelligencer Man's Ride Through Country

(By W. W. Smoak)

The person who would not enjoy an automobile ride over portions of Anderson county, now indeed "fit for strategems." The fast budding, and blossoming of trees in the woods, the songs of birds, the air of bustling activity on every well kept farm, with the thought of the ravest to follow the planting, the genial, wholesoulde hospitality and interest of everyone you meet, are indeed causes for keenest reasons for wishing almost to become veritable knights of the road.

Such were the feelings of this Intelligencer man when he traversed the splendid country between Anderson and historic Lowndesville on Tuesday in company with foreman Roper of The Intelligencer's job printing department, driven by young "Barney Oldfield" in the oldest, speediest and most reliable Ford car ever brought to Anderson county—a car which is as well known in Anderson county as "Uncle Josh" Ashley, and that is saying a lot.

The first stop was made at Starr, where a closely contested game of checkers was in progress, being played on a rather unique home-made checker board, with "pop" bottle stoppers as "men"—one player using his inverted.

All was calm and serene at Starr, which is a pretty little village of some 300 population, twelve miles from Anderson, on the C. & W. C. railroad. An ideal country town whose inhabitants are at peace with everybody and with the whole world.

Perhaps it is not generally known that Starr has one of the State's largest farmer, J. L. Pruitt, who produced on his farm last year 2,200 bales of cotton and whose plans for this year are to increase the yield, he having purchased this spring, forty-eight mules and another farm for $30,000. Readers of romance would find a history of the rise of Mr. Pruitt a most interesting volume. Only two decades ago he plowed his one-horse farm himself. His is but an evidence of the great possibilities in Anderson county. There are other citizens of this community equally deserving of special mention, but as this is only a running ramble, they will keep for a future visit.

Leaving Starr, our next stop was at Iva. Everybody knows of Iva, and Sam McAdams, who has been R. F. D. carrier there for the past twelve years. The postmaster, Lem Reed, says that he cannot do anything with Sam, so he guesses he some will have to dub him "Uncle Sam" and let him go.

Iva has one of the cleanest cotton mills and cotton mill villages we have ever seen and it is said that the management is so careful that one of questionable character is never allowed to stop there. A handsome graded school building and substantial church buildings and progressive merchants and business men mark Iva as a coming Piedmont city. Already Utopia is peopled by some 800 souls. Two thriving banking institutions mark the independence of her citizens. The handsome new home of the baby bank—The Farmers Bank—is nearing completion and will be ready for occupancy by May 1.

Speaking of Iva's population it is said that a stranger recently asked a C. & W. C. conductor, what was the population of Iva. He is said to have replied: "I do not know, but wait till we get there, and I will count them." We are rather inclined to the belief, however, that the conductor wished to be funny, for so uncertain are times when the trains arrive that it would be impossible for all the people to get down to the station in time to be counted.

One of the leading stores there boasts of the religious character of those who are in charge; among these are a Sunday school superintendent, a teacher, a steward and an elder. Four of them are members of the A. R. P. church, one Methodist, one Baptist, one heathen, but all of them worship the duly lady co-worker in the store.

The next jump was to Lowndesville, eight miles from Iva, and in Abbeville county—historic old Lowndesville, where many illustrious citizens have lived, loved, served and passed on, leaving a record of lives well lived and of deeds well known. To do justice to this quaint and original old town, which, in many respects, is as it was before "de wah," would require a whole newspaper instead of a running comment such as this article affords. In contrast to outgrowing "Old" Lowndesville, another little city, known as "New" Lowndesville, has sprung up nearer the depot and station. It was said that when the railroad was being built the owners of the vast acres there objected to its going through his land, because he did not wish to be disturbed and the consequence is that this "New" Lowndesville sprang up nearer by half a mile to the railroad than the original town.

Viewing some of the homes of "Old" Lowndesville, one is led to exclaim with the poet:

"How blest is he who crowns in shades like these
A life of labor with an age of ease."

After a sumptuous dinner at the Smith hotel The Intelligencer party were whisked back to Anderson in record breaking time and safely, with "Barney" at the wheel. The writer feels that in the future when the "wheels" in his head become clogged with office dust and refuse to "turn" as they should, that he shall send for the old reliable and "Barney" and hie him back over the same route aken Tuesday, and maybe see of Mr. Pruitt's broad acres, or crave the privilege of lying awhile under the shade of some of the Lowndesville historic oaks.

CHEDDAR ITEMS

Cheddar, April 6.—The farmers of our community are making good use of their time at present in getting their lands prepared for planting. It always does one good to see such operations carried on by the farmers for isn't it true that farming was the first occupation, the greatest of them all? Hence we wish to see the farmers prosper. Indeed, isn't it true that they have prosperity in their hands, if they will only take advantage of it?

Here's hoping that 1914 will yield the farmer a greater increase than ever realized heretofore.

The ladies of the Cedar Grove church are preparing to give an ice cream supper at the school building Saturday evening, the 11th, the proceeds of which are to be used in finishing paying for the new church organ. Everybody is invited to be present.

The closing exercises of the Cedar Grove school will be held in the school auditorium Thursday evening the 16th.

It is lamentable that the majority of the voters of this school district as yet haven't enough public spirit to allow the school a longer term. This is made to appear all the more unfortunate since the means for running the school longer are here in a plentiful quantity if they were only used. May we realize our opportunities sometime.

SIX AND TWENTY

Williamston, April 8.—In Thursday issue there is that portion of our article in reference to the liquor question, the printer made us say that "it has got to the place where it is almost as hard to prove that a person is a blind tiger as it would be to prove that a bull-frog is a frog." That would be easy. What we did say was that it had gotten to a place where "it was almost as hard to prove that a person is a blind tiger as it would be to prove that a bull-frog is a fish."

As to the editor's comment, we have nothing to say, only that if anyone doubts that whiskey is being sold almost everywhere, a little inquiry will convince the most skeptical that it is true. We truly think that matters have come to a pretty pass when people will say that they would not buy whiskey from a blind tiger and then swear against him.

We honestly believe that if the dispensary was in operation it would cut out practically all the illegal selling of liquor and would not be the means of so many people aiding the other fellow in violating the law. Every person who buys from the blind tiger is leading a helping hand in the violation of the law, while if they could have the opportunity of buying at a legally appointed place, they would not then be a party to the selling. We are honest in our opinion, as everyone else has the privilege of being and that is that the dispensary is the best solution of the liquor question that has ever been tried out in Anderson county. We lived in the county dispensary days and we have lived there in prohibition days and if conditions have been any better during the latter period, it could not be seen through a microscope.

We would like to see articles in print from any one for or against the dispensary. If we are to have a campaign of literature, let's have a lively one, but let it all be in a friendly and humorous way.

Misses Naomi and Saville of Newton Chapel were visitors in the community last Wednesday.

[illegible] Fleet of Forestown, was in the community Wednesday, trading with our merchant, A. W. Pickens.

J. C. Rodgers and J. M. Burgess were visitors in the McElmoyle section last Wednesday.

G. B. Cobb spent one night this week with friends near Beaverdam.

Henry Hicks is making preparations to build a [illegible] on his place near Double Springs.

Miss Ruth Owens is at present very sick with pneumonia. Her many friends wish her a speedy recovery.

The little child of Mr. and Mrs. Will Pickens, who has been sick for quite awhile died Thursday evening, and was buried at this place Saturday afternoon. Rev. [illegible] O'Kelly conducted the services. The little one was thought to be doing well and rapidly recovering until a few days before its death when it had a relapse and steadily grew worse until its death. All that loving hands could do was done for the little one, but God needed one more little flower blossom in Paradise; the loving parents had to bow in weak submission to His will. Just one short year was the babe allowed to shine in the home of our friends, when the Angel of Death gathered it in for the Saviour, who said, "suffer little children and forbid them not," etc.

The bereaved parents have the sympathy of a host of friends in this, their saddest of trails.

Rev. H. A. O'Kelly preached a very interesting and impressive sermon at this place Sunday to a very large congregation. We are all proud of the nice compliment paid our Sunday school by our pastor. The school has grown from a small school of twenty-five or thirty during last year to an average attendance of over a hundred, and the end is not yet. The only regret is that more of our young men and boys do not take an active interest in the Sunday school.

Many of our people attended the singing at Friendship and greatly enjoyed the good singing led by Prof. Smith, and Messrs. Pack, Merritt and Stone.

Miss Etta Fowler is spending sometime in Anderson visiting her uncle, Truman Newton.

L. O. and Griffin Jamison of Walker-McElmoyle attended services at this place Sunday.

Some of the boys were rather on the boozy order Sunday. This kind of thing will continue until some of the boys go to the nearest magistrate and then somebody will learn that the law protects the House of God and the property belonging to it.

The good ladies are kept busy these pretty days seeing after their gardens and raising chickens to feed the candidates on this summer.

Misses Annie and Rose Bargoff, were visitors here Sunday.

B. F. Whitaker and Wm. McAllister were business visitors to Pelzer yesterday.

Many visitors were present at the singing Sunday from Beverdam, White Plains, Mt. Springs and Slabtown.

Florence Holds First Trades Day

Florence, April 8.—The first of Florence's "trade days" which are designed to bring the people of the town and the county more together for business and pleasure, was held today. In spite of the fact that the work on the farm is generally behind, and a day means a great loss now, there was a good representation for most sections of the county, and the day seemed a success. The Chamber of Commerce of Florence arranged the events, offered a number of prizes and staged the amusements. The grand attractions of the day were the special sales put on generally in the stores, where the dollar was stretched, and many things worth much more were sold at $1 for the day. Bargains were offered generally, and the trade has been very satisfactory.

The amusements consisted of races on south Dargan street, a wide bithulithic paved street, almost a mile from the intersection of Evans to the cemetery. There were automobile races and motorcycle races, in which there were several entries from Darlington as well as local rider.

The Florence fire department, with its automobile truck and other wagons, gave an exhibition race and attachment to fire plug, making a splendid show.

Prizes were offered for the best butter, best basket of eggs, best pen of chickens and for the prettiest baby under two years old, and for the man bringing the largest number to the city in one wagon.

The prize winners were: J. P. Matthews, for best seed corn; Mrs. E. H. Howe, best butter; Mrs. Henry H. Husbands, best basket of eggs; Dr. R. L. Reaves, best pen of chickens.

W. F. Stevens won the auto race, two miles in 1 minute and 59 seconds, E. J. Godfrey, second in 2 minutes and 29 seconds. The motorcycle race was won by John Suitman, two miles in 2 minutes and 4 seconds. This included a turn in a narrow street at one end.

The bicycle race was won by Hiral McLaughlin. The airship did not make its flight today. It got out of repair on its way here and the damage could not be repaired in time for the flight.

Postponed Golf Tournament.

London, April 8.—Owing to the heated feeling engendered by the home-rule question it has been found necessary to postpone the annual parliamentary golf tournament. Some members of the house of commons decline to meet their political opponents on the links.
