SPRING GOODS

—FOR—1877.

To-day the campaign's fairly closed,
The lucky man is he
Who takes his seat on the 4th of March
Our President he'll be:
And now the next best thing
Just suited to our mind,
Is where to get the cheapest goods—
The best of goods to find.

My friends and I went out one day,
Some New Spring Goods to buy;
And we resolved, before we went,
The different stores to try.
We wandered Winnsboro all around
Until our feet were sore,
And found the very place, at last,
T'was SOL WOLFE'S New Cash Store,

Of Hats, Clothing and Boots and Shoes,
The latest to our view—
The very best styles of Dress Goods,
And Prints so cheap and new.
So then, my good friends, one and all,
Now is your time to try
What Bargains you can get of me—
Or, you need not buy of SOL.

Emperor William Cabbage.

THE best, largest, hardiest and most profitable variety of WINTER CABBAGE known in Europe, and imported to this country exclusively by the undersigned, where, with little cultivation, it flourishes astonishingly, attaining an enormous size, and selling in the market at prices most gratifying to the producer. In transplanting, great care should be used to give sufficient space for growth. Solid heads the size of the mouth of a flour barrel is the average run of this choice variety. One package of the seed sent post paid on receipt of 50 cents, and one 3 cent postage stamp. Three packages to one address $1 00 and two 3 cent stamps. Twelve packages sent on receipt of $3 00.

☞ Read what a well known Garrett Co. Marylander says of the EMPEROR WILLIAM Cabbage:

BLOOMINGTON, GARRET CO., Md., Jan. 22, 1877.

MR. JAMES CAMPBELL, 66 Fulton St. N. Y.

Dear Sir:—I bought some seed from you last spring, and it was good. Your Emperor William Cabbage suits this climate well. On a mountain side the seed you sent me produced Cabbages weighing thirty pounds each.

Very truly yours,
JAMES BROWN.

BRIEF SKETCHES OF SOME OF OUR LAW MAKERS.

A few of the Rising Generation of Statesmen--Who and What they Are.

From the Journal of Commerce.

COLUMBIA, May 20.—I have already given to the readers of the Journal of Commerce brief sketches of the life and career of each of the leaders of the House of Representatives. By leaders, I mean of course those whose official positions give them that pre-eminence. There are many other young men whose intelligence and ability have placed them already far in advance, and who are destined to take a prominent part in the future history of the Palmetto State, and it is of these that I now desire to say something.

HON. JOHN J. HEMPHILL, of Chester, was admitted to a seat since the convening of the extra session. He is the second son of Hon. James Hemphill, of Chester, a distinguished lawyer, and for many years a representative from that county in the State Senate. He is also the nephew of the late Hon. John Hemphill, for fifteen years Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Texas, and also United States and Confederate States Senator. Coming from such stock, young Hemphill has a bright political career before him. Mr. Hemphill is only twenty-seven years of age, but has been a close student, and is a fine lawyer. He graduated with distinction at the South Carolina University. He does not speak often, but when he does it is always to the point. He is clear and logical in argument, has a fine delivery, and always commands the attention of the House. He is unmarried, a strikingly handsome young man, and a native of Chester county. Mr. Hemphill's able argument on the appropriation bill last week is acknowledged by all who heard it to have been one of the most eloquent, clear and logical speeches of the session.

HON. ROBERT R. HEMPHILL,

his cousin, heads the delegation from Abbeville and is an acquisition to the brains of the House. He is known as the "handsomest editor" in the State. Mr. Hemphill is thirty-seven years old and graduated at Erskine College, in Due West, Abbeville county, in 1859, with the highest honors of his class. He went into the war in the 7th South Carolina Volunteers, as a private, and after serving one year, re-enlisted in Orr's Rifles, and for the last two years of the war was the Sergeant-Major of that regiment. He was wounded at Chancellorsville, Gettysburg and Petersburg. After his return he studied law under his uncle, Hon. James Hemphill, of Chester, and went to Texas, where he practised his profession with great success for two years. He returned, married in 1870, and settled in Abbeville, his native county. He has fine literary tastes and attainments—has the honorary title of A. M., and some years back delivered addresses before Newberry and Wofford Colleges at their commencements. He is one of the Vice-Presidents of the State Press Association, and editor of one of the very best weekly newspapers in the South, the Abbeville Medium. He wields a trenchant pen and is master of rhetoric. He is a good orator and a ready debater, has self-possession and a perfect command of elegant English. He is as true as steel, and Abbeville may well be proud of her young representative.

HON. J. W. GRAY,

a member from Greenville, was born in Edgefield in 1845, and was graduated at Wofford College. During the war, although under age, he entered the famous Hampton Legion as a private, but was subsequently made a captain in a Georgia regiment. Mr. Gray moved to Greenville in 1871, and after preparing himself for the bar at once entered upon a growing and successful practice. He was elected to the present Legislature in the fall of 1876, and soon made his mark as a gentleman of rare discrimination and of careful thought. He is an earnest worker both in the committee-room and on the floor of the House, rarely misses roll call, and is untiring in the discharge of the important and responsible interests intrusted to his keeping.

THE HON. R. W. SIMPSON,

one of the representatives from Anderson county, was born at Pendleton, September 11th, 1840. He is the second son of Hon. R. F. Simpson, who represented the Third Congressional District for a number of terms in the United States Congress, commanding the respect of all and the warm confidence of the Southern members, and who was succeeded by the late ex-Governor J. L. Orr. He graduated at Wofford College at twenty years of age and immediately thereafter volunteered into the Confederate service, and remained in the service, though broken down in health, until the close of the war. In 1863 he married the second daughter of the late John Garlington, Esq., of Laurens.

Since the close of the war he has devoted himself to his business (planting), and has always manifested a deep interest in everything tending to the advancement and elevation of his chosen profession. That his services are appreciated is shown by his being selected to this his second term by a largely increased majority. Mr. Simpson is a hard worker, liberal in his views, a staunch Democrat, and a devoted supporter of Governor Hampton.

His motto has always been that the white people of this State could accept no favors from the Radical party without putting themselves upon a level with the individuals of that party: hence he has been ever an advocate of the Straight-out policy. Mr. S. was admitted to the bar at one of the recent terms of the court in Anderson county.

The Legends of Plants.

The rose of England became especially famous during the wars of the roses, after which the red and white were united; and the rose of both colors is called the York and Lancaster; but when these flowers first became badges of the houses we cannot discover.

The thistle is honored as the emblem of Scotland, from the circumstance that once upon a time a party of Danes having approached the Scottish camp, unperceived, by night, were on the point of attacking it, when one of the soldiers trod on a thistle, which caused him to cry out, and so aroused the enemy.

The shamrock of Ireland was held by St. Patrick to teach the doctrine of the Trinity, and was chosen in remembrance of him. It is always worn by the Irish on St. Patrick's Day.

The leek, in Wales, as a national device, has not been satisfactorily explained, otherwise than as the result of its having the Cymric colors, green and white.

In France, the fleur de lis is so called as a corruption of fleur de Louis, and has no connection with the lily, but was an iris, chosen as an emblem by Louis VII. when he went to the Crusades, and afterwards named after him.

The olive is deemed an emblem of peace probably because, on account of its durability of growth, it was planted both in Italy and Greece to mark the limits of landed possession.

When the question of corporal punishment first came up here fifty years ago, the only voice raised against whipping children in the Boston association of ministers was that of a young divine whose reputation for veracity was no better than it should be. "What good does whipping do?" argued the young man. "Punishments are often unjust. Why, take my own case—my father never whipped me but once, and that was for telling the truth." "Well," said Dr. Morse, grimly, "it cured you, didn't it?"—Springfield Republican.

Judah Peter Benjamin, the most popular lawyer in London, whose income is over $100,000 a year, was formerly Secretary of State of the Southern Confederacy. He is sixty-five, was born in St. Domingo, is a Hebrew, went to New Orleans after graduation at Yale, was a whig, then a Democratic United States Senator, and then a Confederate.

The editor of a Western paper recently stigmatized a rival quill driver as "a bushwhacker, a murderer and a yellow dog." To which the canine editor retaliates that his assailant is, "an unhappy wreck, a poor lost soul, a fishwoman, a maniac and an unmannered sot." A neutral neighbor, the Miami Republican, protests thus: "What a miserable, mule-cheeked, cowardly set of libellous dirt slingers these newspaper crews must be to resort to such personalities."
