Famous Writer Was on the Lusitania.

Elbert Hubbard and his wife were among those who went down when a German torpedo struck the Lusitania, according to reports from Queens-town.

Elbert Hubbard, the seer of East Aurora, created for himself a unique place in American letters by his wit and epigrams and lately by his philosophy of Big Business. First noted for his pamphlet "The Philistine," with its keen satire, he later published many books and made a success of his own publishing and printing business in East Aurora, where he established a settlement of his workers known as the Roycrofters.

He was born in Bloomington, Ill., on June 19, 1859, and had only a common school education, but he was honored with the degree of master of arts by Tufts college. He started a newspaper career in the West, but went to East Aurora, and from there built up his printing establishment for the publication of de luxe editions, and published most of his books.

Of late, Fra Elbertus, as he had been known, had written much in defense of leading men in business life and of their business methods, although his early writings were considered radical.

Mr. J. W. Callahan, one of the best known and most highly esteemed citizens of Anderson, died Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence on Greenville street, after a brief illness. The funeral services were held at the residence yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, after which interment was made in Silver Brook cemetery. The pallbearers were: Messrs. Fred G. Tribble, R. W. Tribble, E. E. Elmore, J. J. Major, Robert Robinson and J. T. Pearson.

Mr. Callahan was born in Abbeville county near Little River church 50 years ago. He lived there for a short time and then moved to Greenville where he spent most of his life. From Greenville, he moved to Anderson and the last 14 years of his life have been spent in this city. He is survived by his widow, who was Miss Emma Kay, two sons, Carl and Bert, both of Spartanburg, and one daughter, Mrs. Mattie Austin of Columbia. His other daughter, Mrs. C. W. McGee has been dead now for only one month.

Mrs. Alice Golden, wife of Mr. I. E. Golden, died Sunday evening at 7 o'clock at the residence, No. 3 Vandiver street, Cluck Mills. She was 33 years of age.

The remains were taken to Pendleton yesterday on the noon train, and interment was made there.

Mrs. Harriet McKee, 68 years of age, died yesterday morning at 7 o'clock at her home, No. 201 Lena street.

The funeral services will be held this morning at 10 o'clock and interment will be in Silver Brook cemetery.

Mrs. Elizabeth Corawell, 63 years, died at 10 o'clock Sunday night at her home, No. 12 D. street, Anderson Mill village. The funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, after which interment was made in the Orr Mill cemetery.

ELECTRIC CITY SPARKLETS

Items of Interest and Personal Mention Caught Over the Wireless on the Streets of Anderson

As to Dropping Mail in Street Boxes.
The local postmaster desires to offer a suggestion to the public regarding the prompt dispatching of mail and the mailing of matter on the trains. It is pointed out that the practice of putting letters in the drop boxes, that is, the boxes stationed about the streets, is not the surest means of procuring prompt dispatching of the letters, as mail matter dropped in at the postoffice always has preference over that mailed in the street boxes. As to mailing matter at the trains, it is pointed out that parcel post matter cannot be mailed on the cars, but must first pass through the postoffice. The postmaster hopes that these suggestions will be taken in the right spirit and that the public will see that it is in their interest they are made, and govern themselves accordingly.

Big Drop in Cotton In Very Short Time.
When cotton buyers noted a big drop in the price of cotton yesterday several of them inferred that another ship like the Lusitania had been torpedoed, or that Italy had joined in the war or some other important change in the war situation had taken place. July cotton dropped 41 points within the course of 15 minutes. From high at 9.59 it dropped to low at 9.18. After that, however, the market recovered somewhat, closing at 9.27.

The two streets for which petitions had been outlined are North Main and West Market. Some streets not mentioned in the list made up by the paving commission have filed petitions for street paving. This was done in the hope that the commission would extend the paving on streets other than those mentioned in the original program.

Paving Funds Are Approved.
Mayor Godfrey was advised yesterday by H. T. Holtz & Co., of Chicago, purchasers of the city's $80,000 of street improvement bonds, that the bonds had been carefully examined by their New York attorneys and had been approved. An order has been placed with printers, the letter said, for the necessary blank bonds, and as soon as they are ready and executed the money will be forthcoming, which should be in about a week's time.

Confederate Dead Were Duly Honored.

Bids For Paving To Be Opened Today.
Twelve o'clock today is the hour set for the opening of bids for street paving in the city of Anderson, and at that hour the street paving commission will meet in the city council chamber for this purpose. It is estimated that fully half a hundred paving contractors and salesmen for paving materials are in the city, and that at least 50 bids will be received. Because of the large number of bids to be submitted the different kind of bids, it is not likely that the commission will be able to reach a decision in the matter today.

Best Thing for a Bilious Attack.
"On account of my confinement in the printing office I have for years been a chronic sufferer from indigestion and liver trouble. A few weeks ago I had an attack that was so severe that I was not able to go to the case for two days. Failing to get any relief from any other treatment, I took three of Chamberlain's Tablets and the next day I felt like a new man," writes H. C. Bailey, editor Carolina News, Chapin, S. C. Discovering Corn Meal.
The war in Europe is likely to teach the European the value of corn meal as human food. The demand for it has already boosted the price of corn in the American markets, and it is likely to boost it still higher. This is unfortunate for the domestic consumers of corn bread and boiled mush, but there will be compensations. After the war is over the Europeans have eaten corn will continue to eat it, and the fields of waving corn on the American farms will be transformed into gold mines. The yellow kernels will glitter with the real luster of wealth. But even though corn meal is dearer than it was a few weeks ago, it is still cheaper than wheat flour. Necessity may teach some Americans that they can reduce the cost of living, even now, by using more corn meal. And, that will be another form in which the compensation will manifest itself.

Richest Passenger on the Sunken Lusitania.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt, of New York was the richest passenger on the Lusitania, which was sunk off the south coast of Ireland, presumably by a German submarine. He was among those who received a warning by telegram as he stood on the deck of the vessel just before she left her pier. He, like scores of others who got these mysterious messages, paid no attention to them.
