Work Continued By Southern

Atlanta, Ga., December 31.—During the year 1929 the Southern Railway System continued its program of improvement to provide additional facilities for moving the business of the Southern with greater efficiency.

Between Williamstown, Ky., and Danville on the important Cincinnati-Chattanooga line, revision and second track construction has been in progress on 65 miles, of which 26 miles were completed and placed in service during the year. This work has included reduction of gradients and curvature at many points and will make possible the handling of heavier tonnages.

Large mechanical coal handling plants for fueling locomotives were placed in service at Asheville, Charlotte, N. C., and Inman Yards (Atlanta), Ga., and smaller plants were constructed at Keyesville, Va., East Durham, N. C., and Palm Beach, Fla. Direct coaling machines, without over head storage, were erected at Strasburg, Va., Melrose, N. C., Ridgecrest, N. C., and Tucker, Ga.

As part of its bridge renewal program, the Southern completed a heavy pony bridge, capable of carrying double tracks, over the Tombigbee river on the line between Birmingham and Meridian, Miss., and two bridges over the Ocmulgee river on the line between Macon and Jesup, Ga.

Fifty-one new bridge projects, scattered over thirteen divisions, were undertaken during the year. These included the renewal of 20 bridges with steel and concrete structures, the elimination of 16 timber trestles by filling over concrete culverts, and construction of 11 ballast deck creosoted timber trestles to take the place of untreated timber structures. One of the largest bridge renewal projects was the elimination of McCombs viaduct, 622 feet long, on the Birmingham-Atlanta line, by filling over a concrete culvert, work of which is in progress.

New freight stations were erected at Burlington, N. C., Morganton, N. C., and Shelby, N. C., the capacity of the Cherry Street team yard at Winston-Salem, N. C., was increased from 29 to 36 cars, and a new automobile unloading station was erected at Chattanooga, Tenn.

In October contracts were let for the purchase of 3,500 automobile and furniture box cars and 1,500 hopper-bottom coal cars. In December 44,290 tons of steel rail, enough to lay 270 miles of track, were purchased for delivery during the first six months of 1930. All this rail will be rolled at Ensley, Ala.
