Third Day Chautauqua Feast of Good Things

DELIGHTFUL LECTURES BY DR. CHAS. E. BARKER OF INTENSE INTEREST

POWERFUL PLAY
GIVEN LAST NIGHT

"The Servant in the House," a Crippling Drama of Modern Life Admirably Done.

Two magnificent lectures was a part of what the Third Day Chautauqua offered their patrons yesterday, and never before has an Anderson audience been treated to finer lectures than these two.

The speaker for the day was Dr. Charles E. Barker of Washington, D. C. His two lectures might be classified thus: In the morning he spoke of the spiritual side of life and in the afternoon the physical side.

In the forenoon at eleven o'clock Dr. Barker addressed his audience on the "Finest of the Fine Arts."

In the afternoon before the address the immense audience was entertained for thirty minutes by a concert by Signor Giuseppe Barlotta, a tenor of note and ability. He gave a beautifully selected program and won his hearers hearts by his renditions of Tosca's "Goodbye," "The Perfect Day," "The Rosary" and other well known and favorite songs.

"How to Live a Hundred Years" was the rather unique title of the address by Dr. Barker, which followed the recital of Signor Barlotta. It is safe to say that never before has an Anderson audience so thoroughly enjoyed anything as this lecture by Dr. Barker, who was physical adviser to President William Howard Taft during his administration.

Dr. Barker said in part: "Every year is adding to our knowledge of how to prevent disease and prolong life.

"The experiments and discoveries of the past ten years by scientists and physicians have been most remarkable in this field, and the day is not far distant when men and women can, by following up these conclusions, live to a ripe old age and never be sick a day in that time, and simply die of being worn out."

"In getting and keeping the body in a state of perfect health, attention must be paid to at least four things: Elimination of impurities from the system, diet, the mental condition and regular exercise."

"There are four organs of elimination, the lungs, skin, intestines and kidneys."

"Three minutes of breathing exercises should be taken each day to keep the chest expansion up to normal."

"The pores of the skin should be kept open either by exercise or a daily dry friction bath with flesh brushes, or fibrous mitts."

"Underwear especially in the winter clogs the pores of the skin and to offset this, a friction bath is very helpful."

"The third organ of elimination, the intestines, has much to do with the health or disease."

"Though it is a very prevalent disease, intestinal sluggishness or constipation, shortens life many years and leads to many other very serious ailments."

"But it is entirely unnecessary and can in nine cases out of ten, be cured by exercise and proper diet. Exercise each morning the muscles of the abdomen—don't eat meat and eggs until cured, but partake freely of cereals, green vegetables and fruit, and drink from eight to twelve glasses of water each day, including two glasses of hot water with a little soluble salt dissolved in the water."

"In the second place the diet plays a big part in the matter of health and disease."

"By studying the habits of the Bulgarians who live much longer on the average than any other race of civilized people, Dr. Mechnikoff, who is the greatest authority in the world on prolonging life, gives as his conclusion, that meat should never be eaten but once a day and that sparingly; that the bulk of the diet should consist of green vegetables, fruit and cereals, and that the habit of drinking some buttermilk every day will do much to keep one well and lengthen life."

"Another thing one should by will-power learn to chew the food slowly. Most of the stomach troubles come from the habit of eating rapidly."

"Third, cheerfulness and contentment will do much to lengthen life."

"Many people bring on disease and shorten their lives by years by getting into the habit of worrying."

"This like any other habit, can be changed by any man or woman, who will use determination and will-power and learn to always look on the bright side of life."

"Last, but not least, get into the habit of taking some kind of regular systematic exercise each day. Not the kind of exercise taught years ago, which develops merely the arms and limbs, but that kind which brings into play the muscles of the abdomen and chest. Any system of home exercises, if taken moderately every day will do wonders in keeping the body in a state of magnificent vitality; but most people are too lazy to do this."

"The best time to exercise is the first thing in the morning, but it can be done before the other meals, or before retiring at night."

At the close of his lecture Dr. Barker took off his coat, and to the intense interest of everybody demonstrated a set of simple exercises which he declared any person not having serious heart trouble could take with great benefit to his health.

Hundreds of people pressed to the platform after the lecture to shake Dr. Barker's hand, and thank him for the lecture.

Last Night's Program.
The attraction for the evening performance was the William Owen Co., in that wonderful drama of modern life by Charles Ranna Kennedy, "The Servant in the House."

The tent was packed to its utmost capacity and from the opening moment until the fall of the last curtain the audience exhibited the most intense interest in every word that was spoken. Mr. Owen had the perfect support of his whole company and their work was that of artists all the way through.

It is the story of a father's love for his child from whom he is separated by circumstances. The child, though in a good home, surrounded by love, longs for the unknown father.

The young Vicar and his wife and their conflicting ideas of right and wrong, all woven together in a beautiful story around mansion the ideal of love and truth.

The following was the personnel of the cast:

James Ponsonby Makeshyle, D. D., The Most Reverend, the Lord Bishop of Lancashire—J. W. McConnell.

The Reverend William Smythe, Vicar—Robert Stevens.

Auntie, the Vicar's wife—Sarah Willey.

Mary, their niece—Margaret Ulrich.

Mr. Robert Smith, a Gentleman of Necessary Occupation—William Owen.

Rogers, a Page Boy—Earl McBeth.

Manson, a Butler—William Lindquist.

Time—An early morning in Spring. Place—An English country vicarage.

MISTAKE

It was reported that I had left Anderson and moved to Greenwood. It is a mistake. I am still in Anderson and expect to remain and doing the biggest business that I have ever done since I came here. My own business has justified me in installing a complete Grinding Plant and engaging the services of one of the most competent lady Optometrists to be had as an assistant. So don't be misled by the slugs. Just brings up your eye troubles and broken glasses and we will do the rest. We are always busy but can serve you best.

McCormick Vertical Lift Mower

The McCormick vertical lift mower has all the good features of the regular McCormick mowers, and, in addition, it is so made that the cutter bar can be raised to a vertical position and lowered without stopping the team. This makes the McCormick vertical lift mower one that is meeting great demand for cutting on rough and stumpy ground. It permits the driver to cut close to the trees, stump, or rock, and save all the hay without loss of time or inconvenience. The cutter bar also can be raised high enough to pass over stones and rumps by means of a very convenient foot lift.

While the McCormick vertical lift mower is an exceptionally good machine for cutting in rough and stony ground, it is practical for all kinds of grass cutting. It will do good work in any place where the machine can be drawn by horses and under conditions where an ordinary machine could not be used. As an all-purpose mower it is unsurpassed.
