The Final Remedy.

Here are some sensible views, from a long article in the Charlottesville (Va.) Chronicle:

What we feel disappointed about at the South (after the disappointment about the war) is that there is delay in putting things in order again, and starting the mighty engine anew on the firm and broad highway. With true American impatience, we consider that two or three years is long enough to reconstruct an empire, or remodel a continent; and we feel that at least if the thing is not done in our days it had as well be left undone.

The meaning of the late civil war is not yet understood; the measure of that great event has not yet been taken. The name of American Democracy is not yet revealed. The subject of African Slavery, its final cause—is not at all comprehended. The future destiny of the negro race is associated with the question of the destiny of all the inferior races whether they look to elevation or extinction. The question of Mexico is mixed up with our future. So of Canada. Then California and Chinese immigration. Then, specially, the destiny of the Gulf States. Then the formation of political parties in the country.

In short, we stand in the midst of confusion—and no brain can compass such vast themes, and no eye penetrate the future; it is idle to worry ourselves.

That there is method in all this madness, we do know—that a living embryo stirs within this misty womb, no Christian will doubt. That for those veiled and troubled waters the Spirit will evoke some fair creation, experience does not permit us to question. That the great coil of history, by a determinate and pre-established law, is unwinding itself here, as it has done heretofore, and will continue to do, until the intricate mechanism of human destiny has achieved its assigned limits, and ceased its pulsations, only an atheistical philosophy can refuse to believe. It is not a whit darker than it has often been. There was utter confusion in France in the days of the long-haired kings. There was utter confusion under the successors of Charlemagne. There was anarchy and confusion and civil wars under the successors of Hugh Capet. There was gaurchy under the Guise and Coligno's. There was fearful misgovernment under the Bourbons. And then followed the Revolution.

We have had five or six years of civil troubles, and if many or few more are in store for us, we do not know.

Our business is what lies at hand. Unable to cast the horoscope of the future, it is our assigned part to go to work, and to believe in God.

If we are bent on securing the broad peaceful future our future well being, here is a sovereign receipt—to work with our hands and have faith in God. The South is a scene of idleness and rebellion. Faith in God and good honest labor will put these military dispute beyond the experiments of the American Congress. Those medicines may be deemed platitudes—old women's remedies—but they are chock full of profound philosophy—as men usually discover when brought to an absolute stand-still in their individual concerns.

COL. MEREDITH ROBBED—GROSS OUTRAGE.—We are pained to announce the fact that our esteemed fellow-citizen (emphasis on the steam) Col Jas. W. Meredith, the railroad man, has been robbed! Some villain, without the fear of the law before his eyes, or regard for the rights of others feloniously and burglariously and with evil intent, entered the Colonel's residence on Saturday night last, and stole his silver chronometer and all the change he had in his vest pocket. Colonel, where was your "private battery?" "A little more grape, Capt. Bragg," and you might have stopped the wicked burglar.—Augusta Chronicle and Sentinel.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—On yesterday morning, several small boys were playing with a gun in front of Mr. Crow's house when Mr. Hamil's little boy, about 14 years old, to see if the gun was loaded, was blowing in the barrel. Mr. Crow's little son was examining the lock at the time, and let it slip, the gun firing, the whole of its contents entering the mouth and passing out the back of his head, killing him instantly.—Greenville (Ala.) Advocate.

As heavy a field of clover as I ever noticed was from a seeding of six quarts to the acre; and as heavy oats as one would desire to raise were from a seeding of 1½ bushels; and winter grain 1½ bushels.

THE THREE GUIDES.—A sound head, an honest heart, and a humble spirit—these are the three best guides. They will ever suffice to conduct us in safety in every variety of circumstances,

REPROOF.—Passionate reproof, says Dodd, are like medicines given scalding hot; the patient cannot take them. If we wish to do good to those we rebuke, we should labor for meekness and wisdom, and use soft words for hard arguments.

ADVICE TO THE LADIES.—Never faint when you are alone. Always select some good opportunity. The more persons there are about you, the more successful will be your fit. A friend's house when there is a dinner or an evening party going on, is far from a bad opportunity. Never faint more than once in the same evening, as there may be a falling off in the sympathy on a second experiment. A woman should not only faint well, but be above suspicion. Be very careful, therefore, never to risk a faint unless you have some object in view, such as going out of town—or a new gown—or a box at the opera—or being taken to some fete—or any other little caprice which your husband may have obstinately refused you. In such cases hysterics are justifiable.

An old Freedman in Texas was asked, a few days ago, if he was not going to register. He wished to know how he would have to proceed. On being told that he had to swear to support the Constitution, his eyes widened, and, drawing a long breath, he said he couldn't do it, because he couldn't support himself!

The United States Government it is said will purchased the Bay of Samana, at a cost of $5,000,000. It is situated on the North-east coast of St. Domingo, and is one of the largest and safest harbors in the world. It is a commanding position for the Gulf of Mexico and Central America.

A Brooklynite tells a queer story about the lovely wife and daughter of a milkman, who took daily baths in the lacteal fluid to improve their complexion. The milk was then watered and sold at fifteen cents a quart. It didn't need any doctoring to give it "body," after that.

The Boston Post says: "The steel of a hoop skirt, a gaiter, a fan, and a grease spot were found on the side-walk of one of our streets yesterday. It is supposed a lady unfortunately melted, and that these were her remains."

Prentice of the Louisville Journal, tenders his advice to the public: "Never buy goods of those who don't advertise. They sell so little that they have to sell dear."

It was an apt answer of a young lady, who being asked where was her native place, replied, "I have none; I am the daughter of a Methodist minister."

An obituary notice in Utah closes thus touchingly: "She leaves thirteen widows and fifty-four children."

The Petersburg Express tells of a swarm of bees which mistook a lady's waterfall for a bee gum and hived in it.
