NEWBERRY, S. C.
WEDNESDAY, NOV. 26, 1873.

A PAPER FOR THE PEOPLE.

The Herald is in the highest respect a Family Newspaper, devoted to the material interests of the people of this County and the State. It circulates extensively, and as an Advertising medium offers unrivalled advantages. For Terms, see first page.

To the Readers of the Herald.

The multiplicity of duties devolving upon us in the three-fold character of editor, out-door business man and traveller, and we might add, assistant 'devil,' for we are not infrequently called upon to 'take off our coat, roll up our sleeves,' and 'set type,' 'make up forms,' place them on the 'bed,' 'roll,' 'feed'—often when there is but little food in the house—'make impressions,' and sundry other things which sadly interfere with the time and attention of an editor, we have thought it best to call in assistance. Mr. IRA B. JONES, therefore, has been inducted into the office of assistant editor, and upon his young shoulders we hope to throw a large share of the burden, confidently believing that he will fill the position with credit to himself, and profit to the reader. We humbly trust then, that an appreciation of our efforts to please and increase the interest of the Herald, will be shown, in such an enlarged subscription list, as will enable us to retain his services. With this brief notice, we introduce him to the reader.

THOS. F. GRENEKER,
Editor and Prop'r.

It is customary for one who takes up the editorial pen to make a few salutatory remarks before entering upon the duties of that office. To this end I take off my hat and make my bow. It is needless for me to say that I assume this responsible position with timidity and with misgivings, for no one, especially if young, can fail to feel such in a post of this kind. Though inexperienced I shall ask no indulgence on that score. I make no declaration of principles. While I hold myself not bound to utter every truth, and condemn every irregularity, yet my aim shall be to advocate only what I believe to be right, and condemn only what I believe to be wrong.

Knowing that "brevity is the soul of wit," with these words I retire behind the curtain.

IRA B. JONES.

Mr. S. S. Solomons.

We congratulate the South Carolina Rail Road Company for having secured the services of the above named gentleman as General Superintendent. Mr. Solomons is an amiable as well as a practical railroad man, and we have no doubt that he will fill his position with skill, and with satisfaction to all.

Imagination.

We find that our friend Bailey, of the Greenville Enterprise and Mountaineer, labored under some strange hallucination in describing a "Brilliant Wedding," that took place in Greenville a few days ago. He says, "After the ceremony the Bride bestowed a kiss upon the officiating minister." Now we know positively that there was no kissing done as to the Bride and minister.

Our friend had better look out, or he might have to walk over into North Carolina and order coffee for two.

Carolina Military Institute.

We have received a Circular of the above institution. We are pleased to see that it is superintended by such a man as Col. J. P. Thomas, late of the S. C. Military Academy. The various Departments, Literary, Commercial, and Military, seem to be thorough and complete. There is a Preparatory Department for those not sufficiently advanced to enter the regular classes. These things, in addition to the attractive grounds and healthy locality, are sufficient to recommend this Institute to the people.

Any one desiring further information may obtain it by communicating with Col. J. P. Thomas.

The Legislature.

The Legislature has done little to warrant its Extra Session.

A substitute tax bill passed its second reading in the House, with an amendment making the tax payable in two instalments, half at the usual time, and half by the 1st of August.

The new funded Bonds and Certificates of indebtedness are authorized to be receivable for taxes.

The per diem bill passed its second reading in the Senate, but the appropriation for printing was diminished to $25,000.

Among other things the Governor has approved an Act to explain and amend an Act to authorize aliens to hold property; also an Act to punish persons for the removal and secreting of personal property levied on by the Sheriff or other officials.

The regular session of the Legislature began yesterday. It is to be hoped that the session will be as short as possible, and that something may be done to rescue the credit and honor of the State, and at the same time relieve the ever burdened tax-payer.

It is reported in Columbia that resolutions of impeachment against F. J. Moses, Jr., Governor, etc., have been drawn up and will be introduced at an early day.

Williamston College Commencement.

On Wednesday and Thursday, the 19th and 20th instants, came off the Commencement Exercises of Williamston Female College, and as it was our pleasure to be one of the happy number of visitors on that occasion, we will attempt to give a description of some of the chief features of one of the most interesting exhibitions of this character we have ever witnessed.—Passing over the long ride up by rail, the small attempt at snow, and our shivering arrival, for by the time the cars stopped in view of the College building, where stood a bright bevy of rosy cheeked girls shakingly waiting and anxiously expecting their papas, mamas and friends, the weather had turned fearfully cold—we enter rapidly the hospitable College building and take a comfortable thaw before a rousing fire of black jack or scrub oak, it matters not which, for it was enough to know it afforded generous heat.—After the thaw, came an embrace and a kiss—this was the second, the first being given under the shiver. The arrival was in time for supper—and the opening sermon by Dr. Williams, of the Baptist Theological Seminary of Greenville, and delivered to the young ladies of the Christian Association. The Doctor's remarks were based on the 36th and 37th verses of the 8th chap. of St. Mark, and were appropriate and practical, and what might have been expected of so gifted and eloquent a speaker. There was also appropriate vocal and instrumental music. Notwithstanding the bitter cold, the exercises seemed too short, and the large audience retired in expectation of the rich and longer feast of the next day and night.

At eleven o'clock Thursday, Dr. Carlisle, of Wofford College, delivered a masterly, eloquent and feeling address to the Areosophic Society, which was universally pronounced one of his most happy efforts. On this occasion too, the young ladies, beautifully and uniformly dressed, and each wearing a handsome rosette sang in sweetest measure appropriate songs, only one of which we remember—"Always do Right." As this was the first, it happily served as the key note for the speaker. We cannot, however, dwell on the morning's exercise, but hasten to the grand finale, the night's entertainment.

Before the chapel was lighted, the expectant crowd began to assemble, and at least an hour before the time for the signal which announced that all things were ready, and the programme to commence, the spacious building was packed to its utmost capacity. We must say that Williamston is very appreciative of intellectual entertainments, and President Lander must have felt a thrill of satisfaction as his beautiful pupils and teachers filed in in charming order and precision, and his glance was turned at the hundreds of eyes and pleased faces beaming on them. It was a pleasing and gratifying sight. But the entertaining programme! what better can we do than turn it over in its beautiful entirety to the compositor, that the reader may judge for him or herself how great was the treat; to omit one link would mar the whole, therefore here it is:

THE BACCALAUREATE ADDRESS.
THE LORD'S PRAYER.
THE BENEDICTION.

The entire programme was rendered with faultless accuracy and excellence, thanks to the artistic skill of Mr. Lander, and his efficient and accomplished lieutenants, Misses Augusta —— and —— Langdon, as well as to the intelligence of his bright host of pupils. Of course some of the pieces were of superior merit to others in point of attractiveness, but we have not the space to particularize more than a few, and of the number were, "In Memoriam," "The Monument of Peace," "Greeting to Spring," "Coming thro' the Rye," "The Sober Second Thought," and—but if we continue we must repeat the whole chapter, for on second thought it was all good, and a better pleased audience was never seen.

We omit mention of President Lander's address to the graduating class, more than to say that it was chaste and pointed. The young ladies mentioned above, who formed the class, were radiant in natural as well as artificial charms, and received their diplomas with modest and becoming pride.

The programme ended—and it was time, for midnight was fast approaching, and the few ladies in the audience fast asleep, and the grouty old gentleman on our right growing hourer every moment, and the tight young man at the door getting a little uproarious, (there is always a tight man on hand, no matter what the occasion,) and the writer's feet fast assuming the solidity of lumps of ice, and—well never mind further enumeration—and the benediction pronounced, when everybody and his wife started up to go. When, lo, just here, a chorus of feminine voices on the stage begged permission of Mr. Lander to sing just one more song of their own selection and prompting; he in turn asked permission of the now agitated and stirring audience. It was granted—and the girls sang spiritedly in behalf of the College and its claims, as a joint stock company, a few verses, a sample of which we give in the first verse—

Kind friends and patrons dear, please give us your attention,
Our Alma Mater's claim we wish now to mention,
And get you every one without further detention,
To take a little stock in our College Company.
CHORUS—To take a little stock in our College Company.

It was finely done—and pausing before the last verse for responses, which did not come, the bright band struck up with,

Oh dear, it grieves us so, to see you all so tardy, and flitting like uncaged doves to the edge of the stage, and looking over into a particular corner,

We'll call upon our friend, good Dr. Meynardie.

They must have known the good Doctor was there, for in a second he emerged from the dark corner into the radiant light, and responded handsomely, first objecting, however, to the questionable rhyme of tardy with Meynardie. The whole thing was electrifying, including the twenty minutes speech. Pardon us, reader, we would like very much to continue, for the whole is not told—remember we were nearly two whole days and as much of two nights, surrounded and mixed with an amount of beauty and excellence, enough to turn the head and carry captive a heart harder and more seasoned than ours.—But, we reluctantly close by saying that Williamston Commencement was a beautiful, charming success, and good Dr. Meynardie succeeded in gaining a number of stockholders, and that we hope to attend the next like happy occasion.

A Letter from Robert Neumann to Rev. H. W. Kuhns.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13, 1873.

BRO. KUHNS:—Your despatch just received. It would have made no cost to you. The Committee of Emigration were going to help pay expenses. I would have gained a personal knowledge. Could have acted on all sides more intelligently. Times and circumstances are just now favoring the direction to the South. Now the opportunity will be lost for all this, and I am sorry for it. In haste.

Yours, &c.,
ROBERT NEUMANN.

P. S.—I feel as if a great opportunity is lost; but you must know better. Have just had a talk with the Superintendent of Castle Gardens. He says I should go to other States in the South. So if you consider it advisable, telegraph once more and I will embark at once. I get passage on steamer free. R. N.

Mr. Kuhns has been for some time corresponding with the writer of the above letter in order to establish through him a cheap and efficient way of getting immigrants into Newberry County. Through this means some ten or twelve families have already arrived, and have given satisfaction to their employers. Encouraged by this, success other farmers have requested Mr. Kuhns to negotiate for them. A short time ago Mr. Kuhns received a telegram that Mr. Neumann would leave New York with a number of laborers, on the 18th inst. Having consulted with those who desired him to secure laborers for them, Mr. Kuhns telegraphed that it would be inadvisable to come with immigrants at this time on account of the scarcity of money, and received the above in answer to that telegram.

It is to be regretted that the farmers of our County let this opportunity slip. They ought to take hold of this matter in earnest. One of the most pressing wants of this country is intelligent white labor. Everybody knows this, and yet all are inactive on the subject. Nothing is lacking to furnish this County with labor suitable in every respect, but the determination to have it. If the proper inducement is offered, such as honest laborers could accept, in a short time there would be a new state of things, and many a spot would blossom which now are idle and deserted.

Let the Granges take hold of this matter in a spirit of determination. This would be a splendid way for that organization to prove that its object is business and not fun.

STARTING OUT.—The publishers of the SCHOOLDAY MAGAZINE announce in their December number just received, looking brighter and better than ever, that they will begin in the January number, the publication of an American story by Alexander Clark, A. M., entitled "STARTING OUT."

This new story will be profusely illustrated with original drawings by Schell, Bensell, and other first class artists, and will be looked for with no little degree of interest by the public generally, old and young. The author has a wide spread popularity, not only as a writer of ability, but also as an editor and public speaker.

The SCHOOLDAY MAGAZINE is the oldest of the Young Folks' monthlies published, and is one of the best that comes to our table, while the price is only $1 00 a year, and a handsome, original $2 00 Engraving thrown in.

With the announcement of Mr. Clark's story, we should think there would be an immense demand for it. Published by J. W. Daughaday & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Spanish Impudence and Cruelty.

The haughtiness and cruelty of Spaniards are proverbial. In no case have these characteristics been so shown as in the capture of the Virginius and the killing of her passengers and crew. This inhuman act, without justification or palliation, has excited the greatest indignation throughout this country. It is an outrageous insult to the American flag, under which the Virginius sailed, and to American honor. Nothing short of the return of the captured ship and the giving up of the murderers should satisfy this government. If Spain fails to give this satisfaction, war is the means to teach her a lesson for future conduct.

Since writing the above, the complication of this government with Spain, relative to the Virginius affair, has assumed a more serious aspect. There is considerable war talk in Madrid, and a manifest determination among the Spanish people to maintain what they deem their honor. It is reported that a mob assembled about the house of the United States Minister, but was speedily dispersed by the authorities. The Spanish Secretary thinks it wholly a municipal affair between Spain and the Virginius' crew, and that therefore the interference of the United States is intolerable.—They blame the United States for the Cuban insurrection. It seems that Spain will make no concessions.—While a war with her is to be avoided for many reasons, yet it should be, if it is necessary so to maintain the honor of this nation. If it come we have no doubt it will be welcome to the majority of the people. A nation's honor is to be preserved at every sacrifice.

FOR THE HERALD.

Another Grange at Work.

On Saturday, the 15th inst., at Messrs. Sligh & Dickert's Mill, five miles below Prosperity, a subordinate Grange of the Patrons of Husbandry was organized by the State Lecturer, Dr. Jno. A. Barksdale, of Laurens, C. H., S. C. The following officers were elected:

Maj. J. Epting, W. M.; W. H. Dickert, O; John Riser, L.; L. Monts, S.; George Sheely, A. S.; D. B. Kinard, Chap.; J. A. Kibler, Treas. J. A. Sligh, Sec'y; D. M. Kinard, G. K.; Mrs. Kate Monts, C.; Miss Dora Riser, P.; Mrs. E. Epting, F.; Miss Nannie Epting, L. A. S.

There were seventy-five names on the list, out of which number fifty-two were instructed and made full members. The twenty-two absent, with several other applicants for membership, will be initiated so soon as the Grange gets into working order. Several visitors from other Granges were present, which swelled the number on the occasion to a large crowd. The Lecturer seemed to be taken aback. He said he had never before met with so many people at an organization of the Patrons of Husbandry. He felt proud to see so many farmers collected together for such an object, but that he did not know what to do with them. He would have to organize two or three Granges instead of one,—there was no room, he would have to carry them into the grove and make that a hall.

During the speech, which was a good one and to the point, arrangements were made by Mr. Dickert to organize in a large room in his dwelling. By a tight squeeze all got in, or nearly in. The doors however, could not be closed in the usual manner, one of them being filled to its utmost by several individuals; the other also, was equally as well filled, more compactly I should say, but by only one individual, a three hundred pounder. All things being now ready, fifty-two persons had their eyes opened to the mysteries of the P. H.

This Grange evidently means work—located among a people noted for their economy and remarkable for living at home, within their own income, and paying their own way with their own money, we predict that more will be heard of it, (the Grange). As a general thing these people are a cash paying people, just such a class as will likely to be most benefited by the farmers' organization.

They are descendants of the once hard working, honest Germans of the Dutch Fork, and have, as a general rule, inherited the qualities of their ancestors, for no more honest and industrious people live under the sun. The names, Eptings, Risers, Kiblers, Counts, Monts, Boozers, Sheelys, Housealls, Dickerts, Singleys, Werts, &c., &c., guarantee success to any laudable enterprise.

A business meeting was appointed for Saturday, the 22nd of November, at which time steps will be taken to erect a suitable hall for the Grange. A two story building is contemplated, the upper part for the hall, the lower story to be used by Messrs. Sligh & Dickert as a supply store for their hands, &c., and also as a depository for the Grange.

When taking a narrow view of the Farmers' movement, it seems wonderful how rapidly it is spreading, but when considered in all its bearings it seems more wonderful that every farmer is not a Patron of Husbandry.

The next grand up-rising of the people in this section, we hope to witness and to chronicle, will be in the interest of the Temperance cause. Farmers ought to be Patrons of Husbandry and farmers ought to be Patrons of Temperance. There is good work to be done in both fields—both look forward to the elevation of the whole man,—to the emancipation of soul and body from base servitude.

FOR THE HERALD.

GREENVILLE.

MR. EDITOR:—The whistling, puffing and blowing of the iron horse admonishes that we must be quick, as steam and tides wait for no man. "All aboard," and we are off. Here is the city of Greenville, sitting as some fairy Queen at the base of the Blue Ridge mountains. Our host is Mr. J. A. David, one of her most active and enterprising citizens, whose hospitality is warm, earnest and princely. A cold night has past the wind is piercing, the day is bright the clouds have drifted away, and the atmosphere is as transparent as a diamond. How refreshing is a sight of after several years of absence! Snow covers them, and the bright sunshine gives the appearance of a pinkish gause covering. How soft and velvety—a fairy land of bewitching beauty.

"'Tis distance lends enchantment to the view."

Reader, have you ever travelled among the mountains in the winter season in mud, rain or snow? How the romance vanishes, and the stern realities of facts impress the mind! Travelling with a veteran Bishop once, we got a sigh of the mountains, when I uttered an exclamation of admiration. He quietly replied, "They do very well at a distance." The mountains in a large measure have lost their charms for me, and I fancy that you would view them with very different feelings, if you had, as I have, travelled among them in drenching rains, or had had the road blocked up with drifting snow, or had been lost at night and forced to camp alone, without fire, food or shelter." The old hero has passed away from these fatigues and exposures to the rest above. My travelling among them has been under better auspices.

"Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise."

Thirty years ago I was parson and pedagogue here, spending two delightful years of youthful service in the pulpit and academy. Greenville was then a small and unpretentious town, usually called

"THE VILLAGE."

It has more than quadrupled its size since then. Ill proportioned girlhood has yielded to the rotund, luscious beauty of full developed womanhood and she is unrivalled by her Southern peers.

One of the chief glories of Greenville is her

MECHANISM.

The barbarous sentiment of the olden time, which made military achievements the most illustrious, and which gave to the title Captain, Colonel or General, the coveted virtue of youthful emulation; and modern folly that makes dress and fashion the synonyms of gentility and refinement, have largely yielded here the sentiment of a higher civilization. Useful, elevating and refining, mechanical pursuits are transforming society into a moral strength and solidity, which cannot fail to improve the increasing population of this flourishing city. Mechanical skill and the enterprise of industrious labor meet here their reward, and her mechanics are her chief men and powerful princes. Among the pioneer movements of the town is of Gower, Cox & Markley. About thirty years ago I formed the acquaintance of the firm, and recognized the two latter, as native Charlestonians.—They were polished and refined Christian young gentlemen, who only a few years before had settled in Greenville. When I spoke of them as an acquisition to the town, I was more than once answered by a sneer, "They are mechanics!" but gradually, certainly and bravely they moved upward, not only in a successful business enterprise, but have built up a reputation for integrity and business capability, which places manual labor and mechanical skill in a position of honorable regard and makes them public benefactors. The vehicles of this establishment are used all over the upper and middle portions of the State, and are recognized as the best in durability and beauty of finish.

I am deeply interested in several pieces of machinery, which not only facilitate, but render the work much more exact and perfect. Among them is which, from a rough stick of wood, guides, cuts and perfects the spoke to the exact shape, making a better spoke than is made by hand.

THE MORTISING-MACHINE,

by which my old friend, Mr. Godard, can mortise a full set of four hubs in twenty-eight minutes, which to a skillful hand is a day's work.

THE BAND SAW,

which seems to be on the principle of bending a gun to shoot around the corner, is a marvel of modern ingenuity. By it the felloes are sawed circular.—The saw is without beginning or end, both having been cut off or driven in when manufactured. All this machinery, and much more, is driven by the water of a silvery stream of exquisite beauty. Its crystal water, rocky bottom, and interesting cascades, as it runs through the middle of the city, form some of its most valuable and captivating features. The firm of Gower, Cox & Markley now work about forty hands and will soon have completed a four story one hundred by fifty feet, with twelve furnaces, which added to their present buildings, will give them the largest carriage factory in the South. More anon.

BRICK SHOP,

HARDSCRABBLE, Nov. 5, 1873.

MISTER EDITUR:—Its been a tite scrabble with me ever sense I last writ for the HERALD. It wuz growin time then, and wat with hale and rain, growin of grass, advenshures by that an field, an then last, but not leest, tha everlastin panick, witch has tore the hine sites out of things generally, an made coten, which formerly was king, a miserable kuss of a klown an kawsed spondoo licks to be skaser than angels visits; and with all them the kares konsequent on the raring ov a numerous family ov kadavrous children. I sumtimes think it taint me—Hezekiah Jonsing—at all, but sum other unfortunit atomy of the species as wears my klose, an does the general job work of the family.

I tries to grin and bare it, but Mr. Editer, langwidge can't depict the angwish ov my heart when melancholy kontemplashun sits on my brow and etes on my heart. Will day lite daughn sune?

I hav hopes of the Legislatur doin something to allevyate the kondishun, as I see Mr. Bosting is down on the debt an theres talk ov repudyashun, an I hope it will be done, then I won't hav any more dets to pay. An Betsy she hopes me up powerfull, by paintin the pictur in brite and glowin kolors, when the Gen. Assembli will say to them fellers as holds klaims agin us farmers, git up and git—you cee we owes a power for bakin an korn an furtil Lyzers. I kant edzactly cee it, but Betsy does, and she's a skumshus woman, and when she gits on her Sunday fixins an that ere famidigible witch sits on behind, she's a site to see. I like her best tho' in home klose, for she don't hold so hi a hed, then, and fur another reason, she aint so kaptivatin to the other fellers as has no wifes of ther own. Its pertikularly agravatin at meetin times an sich like, for Betsy likes it unkomon well, but for the sake of peace I says nothin. Nabor Jones says its the way ov wimmen, periklerly the high strung ones with the har inklined to be red.

I expect Jones is moren half rite, for he's tride too ov the same kind, an he's the meekest man in Hardscrabbel.—His advice is not to notice em and make believe that they have ther own weigh, and I kinder think it best myself.

I am glad to cee, Mister Editor, that the panick didn't settel on yure vitals, an that you have made the HERALD spred its wings and sore up like a mitey eagel wen it cries excelsir or! There aint nothin like keepin a stiff upper lip and makin bleeve like—Jones and me hav found that out on the women question—an if its good won way its good another. I'm rite glad yure done so well, an all the naiors in Hardscrabbel they'll never take no other paper but yourn, even Betsy is more powerful took with it than ever. She heerd tell how sum ungodly kuss had the owdashousness to say you was in a mickle to farmers as Husband men, and you orter hearn her let onto the poor ignoramus, it would hav done your heart good. She says if he ever showes his ugly kountenance in Hardscrabbel he'll never tell a lie on honest folks agin—an I bleeve it. Thar aint no sich paper any where, for one single wun is suffishunt to make her furmididdle jist to her noshun.

Ive ben thinking lately of writin sum poetry—how wood you like a yard or two, sumthin like the poem "Bessy an I" in yure last paper. As a poit low-rate I had sum repertashun once, an I hav no doubt I kould do you konsiderable service, for in the long winter nights wen all is still an serene, an the kote mune is silently preambleating the Hevings, tis then mi mine is klear an the thorts witch flote throu mi hed is trooly wonderfull. If you say so I will exersise mi mews at the first opportunity. I hav a poim in kourse of konstrackshun now, which will run thus on Jones goin to bed:

The klock struck won,
Mr. Jones went to bed,
An strange wur the wizions
Witch roned threw his hed, an cetere. If yu think it will sute say so, and how mutch a line yure to give to

Yore admire in frend,

P. S.—Don't send yure an sir on one of them everlastin infernel postell kards, or praps Betsy mite obgect—between yu an mee shed kikup if she knew I wur thinkin of ritin poetry.

ASTONISHING

That there are in this Town and County, over one hundred and fifty persons who owe me from 25c. to $5 each, and yet they will not come up and pay. If they would, then I would be able to pay what I owe. Now, to say the least, this is NOT FRIENDLY, and if these accounts are not paid by next Monday, (1st Dec.) then you must abide the consequences. Every one who reads this and owes me may say, "that's for me," and I trust they will add, "I will pay it at once, for Marshall is a poor man, has a large family, and deserves his money."

Lumber! Lumber!! Lumber!!!

Having adopted the CASH SYSTEM, we have REDUCED THE PRICE OF LUMBER.

We sell only for the Cash, or its equivalent in trade, &c. When credit is given it will be given at cash prices upon the basis of a loan, a note will be taken at the time the debt is contracted, bearing interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum. No Lumber will be taken from the Mill until our terms are strictly complied with. We hope that no one will ask for a day, or a few days credit.

Our Mill is just thirteen miles from Newberry C. H., five miles from Prosperity, and two miles from the G. & C. R. R., directly on the New Cut Road leading by Jacob Singley's, Esq., the nearest Steam Saw Mill to the up-country. Our timber, which we have in abundance, is of a superior short leaf pine, with good heart, and of the most lasting quality. The most aged of our citizens who have experience in the lasting qualities of short and long leaf pine lumber, testify that the former will endure from one third to one-fourth longer than the latter. For fencing, bridges and all other purposes where exposure is required, this is an item of no little importance.

$1.25 per 100 feet for heart lumber.
75 " " " framing "
40 " " " rough edge, or sheeting.
1.00 " " " all other pine lumber.

Sixty-five cents per one hundred feet will be added to the above prices for delivering at Newberry, and thirty cents at Prosperity. When large orders are given the Rough Edge will be sold cheaper.

We will keep on hand all kinds of Wagon Wood and Wood for Plow Stocks, &c., of the best material. Also, good shaved Shingles.

Thankful to our friends for past favors, we solicit their future patronage, and the patronage of all good paying individuals in want of Lumber, but we don't want any more of that kind who promise, but never pay. SLIGH & DICKERT,
