THANKSGIVING DAY.

Today, Thursday, has been set apart by President Cleveland and Governor Tillman as a day of thankgiving and prayer. It is expected that everybody lay aside the toils and cares of life and in their own way return thanks to the Alwise Creator and Giver of all good and perfect gifts for His great mercy, love, protection and blessings during the past year. Though there have been storms and disasters on every hand yet we have been bountifully blessed. The labors of our hands have been richly rewarded. The fields have yielded her increase and the people should rejoice and be exceedingly thankful. The poor should rejoice that an occasional day in the year has significance enough to temper the thoughts of the rich toward their destitution. The rich should rejoice because this is a day above all others that they may enjoy the pleasure of giving and show charity.

Thanksgiving day is indeed a peacemaker. In a few short hours it sweeps away the barriers that months of pride, self-ishness and cruelty on the one hand, and improvidence, dissipation, neglect and want on the other, have been building between classes. It is one in the long list of holidays that expands with age because it is founded on religion. Secular holidays come and go [illegible] ments from death and [illegible] sgiving [illegible] tory of the [illegible] as the history that lives.

Thanksgiving day has grown far beyond what it was originally intended to signify or represent because of this very religious quality. From giving thanks to God for gifts to themselves, men came to desire to be more like that merciful Being, and so in turn became benefactors. From recounting their individual blessings and offering prayer and praise for their bestowal, it was but a step to the turning point of charity in themselves. And so we may cry to all upon this day—Rejoice! for the lion and the lamb have lain down together and the peace of the Saviour's spirit is over all. The cry of want is heard by ears that be deaf were deaf to the voice of pleading, and eyes that saw not misery except it were [illegible] off are now dimmed with tears of [illegible] for those about their feet. Thanksgiving! The word has come to have a [illegible] meaning. It is the solemning [illegible] of such seasons, albeit all too [illegible], that keep intact the under current, [illegible] harmony of the world even though [illegible] have trouble by discord.

NEW JUDGES.

The legislature convened in regular session last Tuesday at noon. It is said that there are many measures already on the calendar carried over from last year to be acted upon. The most important measure that will be up for consideration will be the dispensary. There is no doubt but that there will be several important amendments to the law as it now stands. It is not thought probable that the session will extend beyond Christmas.

The election of Circuit Judges and one Supreme Court Judge will take place early in the session.

The State of the 27th speaking of the new judges says:

"It is ascertained that the election of the five judges will come up early in the session—probably the first of next week. The terms of Associate Justice McGowan and Judges Hudson, Izlar, Witherspoon and Pearce expire at this term. A man of influence in the reform movement, yesterday said that all the old judges would go by the board with, perhaps, the exception of Judge Izlar. His idea is that reform members will hold a caucus and upon the men they would vote for and it is pretty well settled that by a party vote Eugene Gary will be elected to succeed Justice McGowan; Townsend to succeed Judge Wallace; R. C. Watts to succeed Judge Hudson; and Ira B. Jones to succeed Judge Witherspoon. He says Jones' chance to succeed Justice [illegible] has disappeared. He does not think that W. C. Beat will have any chance against Judge Izlar.

"If Maj. Townsend is elected to succeed Judge Wallace, Assistant Attorney General Buchanan will be elevated to the vacant Attorney generalship, without opposition."

WEATHER FOR DECEMBER.

The following weather forecasts for December are from Word and Works edited by Rev. Irl R. Hicks, of St. Louis: December comes in on the central day of a regular storm period. Between the 1st and 4th we are to expect very active disturbances with very warm weather followed with rain, lightning and thunder. A sudden and severe cold wave will rush in behind the storms and by the 6th the whole country will feel a touch of the wintry blast. About the 7th and 8th the cold wave will moderate and another storm development will appear in the west and move to the east. Heavy gales on lakes and seas, southern cyclones and northern blizzards will be natural and probable. Great cold is almost sure to follow. From 12th to 16th storms of rain and snow may be expected, after which colder and clearer weather will prevail. About the 18th or 19th it will turn warmer, but rain and snow will fall in many places. About the 22d to the 26th many winter storms may be looked for and may sections will get their supply of Christmas snow. Prepare for cold waves and storms.

Senator O'Dell was in town last Saturday and when asked said that he knew of no special legislation to be looked after for this county.

We gathered from the Senator's remarks that he was not in favor of amending the dispensary law so as to allow dry counties to have them. It has been and is yet thought by many that an effort will be made by the Administration to so amend the law as to establish dispensaries in this and other dry counties.

The Senator said he was going to do what he believed the majority of the people wanted, and he did not believe the people of this county wanted dispensaries judging from their votes last year.

Senator Butler states that he is in the race for re-election to the Senate to the finish, that he is not nor will be a candidate for Governor.

Washington Letter.

From Our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 24, 1893.

The democratic members of the House committee on Ways and Means are working from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m. every day, in order to get the new tariff bill ready by next Monday, so as to give the republican members of the committee an opportunity to prepare their report by the time Congress meets. The republicans, having made a miserable failure of their attempts to cajole the democratic members of the committee into the retention of duties that are purely protective, have now taken a new tack, but the result will be the same. They are now circulating reports that democratic Congressmen from whose districts petitions asking for protection for this or that industry have been sent to the committee will, if that protection is not given by the new bill (and it certainly will not be, except in the few cases in which the duty imposed for revenue may incidentally give protection), vote with the republicans against the bill. After a most diligent search I have failed to find a single democrat who will acknowledge any coaxing any that would cause him to vote with the republicans against the bill, although there are a few democrats who would have been pleased had the petitions of their constituents been granted, and who expect to lose their seats in Congress if they are not granted. It can be predicted with absolute certainty that fewer democrats in the House will vote against the Wilson tariff bill than there were republicans who voted against the McKinley bill.

Secretary Carlisle is the recipient of congratulations from all sides on the able financial speech he delivered this week before the New York Chamber of Commerce, and many are of the opinion that is will have a highly beneficial effect upon the business of the country.

It is expected that President Cleveland's message to Congress will deal so fully with the financial policy of the administration that the republican calamity wailers will find themselves deprived of their principal argument—the allegation that there is a doubt about the financial intentions of the administration. The message together with the new tariff bill will put those intentions before the public so plainly that there can be no misunderstanding and no doubt.

Harper's Magazine for December has nine good stories in the Christmas number. The newest comes into the field of the distinctively American short story is Mr. Owen Wister, a young Philadelphian, whose "Early" and "How Lin McLean Went East" have introduced him pleasantly to readers of Harper's Magazine. "The Winning of the Biscuit Shooter," another tale of Wyoming ranch life, by Mr. Wister, will appear in the Christmas Harper's. It will be followed during 1894 by a series of stories of that wild West which is now fast disappearing before the railroad and irrigating ditch.

From an abandoned satchel resting on a St. Louis depot floor a newsboy heard a sound proceed that made him say to the depot detective that he thought the satchel contained a cat. The satchel was opened and disclosed twin babies, boy and girl, about ten days old. They were taken to an asylum, and in time responded to the care lavished upon them. The waifs had but one bottle and one cheek between them. The quality of some of the clothing pathetically revealed the fact that the unhappy mother had originally provided for but one little stranger. Ex.

A turkey stood in a Cranberry swamp,
And sang till its throat was sore;
For all day long, he sang this song:
"We shall meet on that beautiful shore."
Puck.

We pulled the wish bone, See and I—
"I wish to ask you" my heart's wish—
She went, but I've more wisdom now
That she was wishing that I would."
