AD WRITING CONTEST GAINS IN POPULARITY

Head of North Anderson Development Co., Heartily Endorses Plan.

Mr. John Linley, the live-wire Real Estate agent joined the ranks of the Amateur Ad Writers contest for merchants and business men yesterday, saying: "I consider this a great advertising stunt, one that will bring one's product or line before the people from an entirely different angle." And Mr. Linley is exactly right about it, too.

When one can interest the buyer sufficiently in one's proposition to write an ad for it, he has gotten that particular person into a very receptive attitude toward the proposition or the house or firm back of it.

On the other hand—the business which is conducted on such a plane behind the scenes as it were (to write ads for the business) it is a pretty safe bet that that business is conducted in such a manner that there is nothing for them to be ashamed of, nor is there anything that they wish to hide from their customers.

To sum it all up—selling any kind of merchandise through, or by the aid of such intimate relationship between buyer and seller is cooperation in the very highest sense, and not the conquest of the buyer by the seller when he has palmed off an inferior article at a fictitious price.

One lady, who is a Bridge Whist enthusiast was heard to say yesterday that she was writing ads for several of the different merchants who were entered in the Amateur Ad Writers contest, and that she was enjoying the contest immensely; that she found it intensely interesting and the work very fascinating; and that if she won either of the prizes, she was going to turn the money over to her church society.

A merchant said yesterday that he had had quite a few inquiries about what he wanted advertised, and that he had told them in detail, and that he was looking forward with a great deal of anticipation to Friday to see what kind of ads they would bring him.

As most everyone likes a contest, it appears that this contest offers enough amusement and zest to arouse the interest of the most blasé, because it is a battle of wits where all entrants are about equal in ability, and there is sufficient award to make it worth while to try for. If you have not yet begun, why not begin at once? There are enough different lines to suit every one, and herewith is given enough information to enable you to write several ads.

W. H. Lyon wants an ad on graduation day presents, and there is a display in his show window of the different articles which are appropriate for the occasion. He will tell you all you want to know.

Moore Wilson Co., wants an ad on commencement day dresses, ready-to-wear, etc., phone them, they will tell you all you wish to know.

Marchbanks & Babb want an ad on the world famous Waterman Fountain pen.

Columbia Tailoring company want an ad on their $15.75 offer, by which one gets a palm beach suit free with each order for a $15.75 suit.

Anderson Gas Co., want you to tell all the advantages of cooking with gas as compared with all other fuels.

Parker & Bolt want an ad on palm beach suits. They have something to tell you privately about these suits.

Geisberg Bros. Shoe Co., have a special shoe ad of some special kind that they wish they will gladly tell you all about it.

B. O. Evans & Co., want an ad on palm beach suits; they have a very pretty display in their window on these palm beach suits, and they will also tell you more in detail about them.

Mrs. B. Graves Boyd wants you to write about the celebrated front laced corset—the Frolaset. Mrs. Boyd will be delighted to tell you all about this entry.

Walter H. Keese & Co., have the celebrated early morning riser, "Big Ben" as their entry. They will be only too glad to tell you all about this energetic and reliable time piece.

The Southern Public Utilities Co., want you to know all about the many summer conveniences, and if you will phone them, they will take pleasure in telling you what to say.

The Bank of Anderson, of course wants you to tell the people about money, or the lack of it, or the advantages of a bank account, or something of that nature; but if you will phone Mr. Clinkscapes he will tell you exactly what he wants.

The Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co., has a message that they wish to deliver to every man who has the love of home and family in his heart; and if you will phone Mr. Mattison, he will give you some "fine points" that may help you win a prize.

John Linley wants everybody to know of the many, many good features of North Anderson, and as there are so many, it will be a very easy matter for him to tell you in three minutes enough to enable you to get up a full page ad.

It just so happens that the Ad Man does not know exactly that "Uncle Johnny" Austin, Evans' Pharmacy, Sullivan Hardware Co., T. L. Cely Co., the Owl Drug Co., The Lesser Co., Anderson Cash Grocery Co., Rubenstein, want advertised, but do know for certain that they will be delighted to tell you all about their proposition.
