HAZELDEN BRANDED A COWARD.

Wore a Steel Breastplate and Even Then Ran Under Fire.

J. Dudley Hazelden, member of State board of dispensary control, had been accused of cowardice, of running from fire and of wearing a steel breastplate. The charges are preferred in The Columbia State by Ben B. Sellers and John C. Sellers, with whom Hazelden and his party had an encounter at Sellers's depot. Hazelden took refuge on the premises of a negro cabin. His brother, Luther Hazelden, admits running under the depot.

Saturday morning the Sellers produced statements from J. F. Spears, Knox Powell and Carl Matthews that Hazelden had had two breastplates made of fork steel, at the Mar on Iron Works, where they are employed. The proprietor, Mr. McDuffie, declines to deny the statement, thus giving force to the charges against Hazelden. Each of the breastplates weighed twelve pounds, and the charge is made that Hazelden was seen to remove one after the encounter. His friends are thunderstruck. Hazelden's high position as a State official makes this the greatest sensation in the State for several years.

Hazelden is a cousin of the late Governor Ellerbe, and of J. E. Ellerbe, who bitterly opposed Congressman Norton for his seat. Sellers is a brother-in-law of Norton, and this old feud had much to do with the shooting caused by the recent State dispensary scandals. It is thought the incident is not closed.

Negro Rapists Executed.

"Jim" Mitchell and Edward Luckie were hanged in Darlington Friday for committing a criminal assault on Josephine Mafferty, a young white woman. To the last Mitchell protested he had no part in Luckie's crime, he said, and was a victim of circumstances, having been a friend of the criminal. He thanked the people for not lynching him when first arrested. In his dying declaration Luckie admitted Mitchell's entire innocence. He said he was not sorry for his crime, and was satisfied to die for what he did. The traps were sprung together and the necks of both men were broken. Neither flinched during the ordeal. Through the efforts of Sheriff Scarborough after the crime was committed Mitchell and Luckie, together with "Jim" Washington, Dave and Edward Mack and Lucius Stewart, were captured, hidden in the swamps all night to escape a mob and finally got to a train and brought for safe keeping to the penitentiary. They all seemed equally guilty, and if the mob had caught them all would have been killed. It was found after the trial of Mitchell and Luckie that there was no evidence against the other four men, and after keeping them in jail a few days to let the people settle down from their excitement they were released.

Briefs.

At Florence Dave Gibbes, a half crazy negro, got on the war path and for a while had a number of his race in hot water. He went to Hudson's hardware store to look at a pistol. The clerk showed him a good one and he walked out with it, telling the clerk he would try it and if it was a good one he would buy it. The clerk, being alone in the store, was powerless to stop him. As he left the store he loaded the pistol and defied all with whom he came in contact. He shot at several darkies, one bullet going through Dick McClenaghan's hat.

There is a well developed case of smallpox at Almeda four miles from Hampton. It has been pronounced such by Dr. Vincent, of Barnville, the attending physician. The patient is a negro man, aged about 22.

At Columbia Ruben Williams got in the way of a cut on the Seaboard Air Line Friday afternoon. He was loaded under a heap of dirt. A force worked for ten or fifteen minutes and got Ruben from under the heap. It was a surprise to find the negro still alive. He was sent to the Colored Hospital in the city patient and at last accounts was getting along very well.

The State has made about 100 bales of cotton or more on its farms. The crops have been well managed and Superintendent Griffith is much elated with the showing that his farm superintendent have made. It was not so generally known, but it is a fact that on the day Superintendent Griffith took charge of the State Penitentiary he had to buy some corn upon which to mind stock and make a crop which to feed the convicts and on all the farms corn had to be bought until what on the place could be harvested.

British Feel Blue.

New York, Special.—Dr. Doty, after a thorough examination of the history of the bubonic plague on board the steamer J. W. Taylor, which arrived from Santos, last Saturday, decided to discharge the cargo of coffee into lighters and keep the loaded lighters at quarantine for a period of eight days. Dr. Doty believes that the exposure of the coffee to the air at this season of the year will be ample protection of the danger of infection.

Khalifa Killed in Battle.

Cairo, By Cable.—Lord Cromer, the British minister here, has received the following dispatch from General Kitchener: "Wingate's force came up with the Khalifa's force, seven miles north of Godid, and attacked it. After a sharp fight he took his position. The Khalifa, who was surrounded by a bodyguard of Emirs, was killed, and all the principal Emirs were killed or captured, except Osman Digna, who escaped."

MEDAL FOR VICTOR BLUE.

Gift of the Women of South Carolina to be Presented in New York.

The South Carolina Society for Patriotic Award has received a magnificent gold medal given by the women of the State which will be presented to Lieutenant Victor Blue at an early date. As the officer is now on duty in New York City, on the battleship Massachusetts, it is probable that the presentation will be made there by Hugh Thompson, ex-Governor of South Carolina.

The medal is 2 1-2 inches in diameter and a quarter of an inch in thickness. The obverse bears the coat of arms of South Carolina. The inscription on this side of the medal is, "The women of South Carolina to Lieutenant Victor Blue, U. S. N., in high appreciation of his courage, enterprise and distinguished services in the Spanish-American campaign, 1898."

The reverse side of the medal presents a design of the United States navy, the lines of the design being the great seal of the Navy Department.

A Fight in Spartanburg.

A Spartanburg special says: The fight to grow out of the recent investigation of county affairs occurred Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock on Main street between Elder H. Allen and W. W. Coughes. Both of these have been prominent in county politics and have numbers of friends. Neither was injured as bystanders interfered. Both came hand for their appearance before the mayor. The little fight over this matter did not break out where it was expected. It grew out of a Sunday statement. A little people about town became the investigating committee.

The Cabbalis Cotton Mill.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Wallalla Cotton Mill in R. Tucker, Jr., of Anderson, S. C., was elected president and manager of the mill. The following were elected directors: S. M. Millikan, New York; Arthur B. W. Gibbs, Savannah; W. E. Lucas, Laurens; and E. R. Lucas, John D. Verner, C. W. Pitchford, and A. E. Crisp, of Wallalla. An annex 90 feet in length will be built at once to the mill, making the building 390 feet long. The capital stock has been increased to $150,000 and soon 12,000 spindles will be humming. J. E. Crosby, the new superintendent, will soon take charge.

State News Notes.

The citizens of Camden are justly proud of the new Moxcine Temple which is now nearing completion, and is second to none of the handsome buildings in Camden. In the corner of the building the Camden Masonic Lodge has fitted up a lodge room entirely independent and furnished another evidence of the good people of the city and county. It is a very much to be proud of the people of Camden. The Newspapers have recently decided to go to the expense generally for ads by means of a trip to be held in the new building on the evening of December 12, 13, 14 and 15.

The secretary of state has issued a commission to the Woodland Lumber Company, which is to do a general lumber and timber cutting and sawing business in Berkeley county, with a capital of $15,000 divided into shares of $50 each. The corporators are I. K. Heyward, W. Montrie Fell and R. G. Rhett, all of Charleston.

Notley, in an altercation with Moore, made to his physician, and the latter was convinced upon hearing a drawn pistol which he took. Moore, who had been released upon a $500 bond, gave himself up to the officers and was placed in the jail at Lexington.

Governor Ansel, having received the certificate of the Governor of Georgia, worked up a Mason and Dixon line, in accordance with the act of last session, and appointed Hon. Asbury Lever, of Chesterfield, and Hon. Wade Hampton, of Richland, commissioners to run the line.

A. Lee Loveland, of Greenville, has been appointed by the Supreme Court a commissioner to take testimony in the case of Greenville against the Southern Railway, involving the question of the constitutionality of the Greenville and Spartanburg Railway.

As a negro festival Saturday night, four miles from Pelham, the usual row occurred, in which Rich Gaston was shot and instantly killed. One of four negroes is suspected of firing the fatal shot. An inquest was held without result and adjourned until the next day. The negroes implicated are shielding each other and it appears that their friends are swearing strongly for them.

BRANCH RAILWAYS.

The Line From Lockhart Shoals Well Under Way.

In the past year and the big railroad lines, particularly the Southern, the Seaboard and the Atlantic Coast Line, have been so busy working out the problems of main line competition, and building connecting links to establish these main lines to meet new situations, that their officials have had practically no time to devote to propositions looking to the building of short branch lines. There are several such in contemplation in this State, and it is safe to say that it will not be long now before a considerable amount of such mileage will be added to the South Carolina divisions.

It was only a short time ago that a company was formed and chartered to build a branch line from the Lockhart Mills at Lockhart Shoals, in Union county, to Grer's Creek, just about three miles this side of Jonesville on the Southern, a total distance of 14 miles. Upon obtaining the charter the company made an arrangement with the Southern railway to build, equip and operate the proposed road as agent of the original company. As soon as this was accomplished the Southern sent a construction force to Union and Saturday night the force reported that 10 of the 14 miles have been graded and ready for the track. Practically all of the material necessary to the building of the line is already on the ground. It will be only a short time therefore before the road will be ready for trains to move over it.

The Weather and Crops.

The department of agriculture, through its weather and crop bureau, issued a summary of the conditions for the month of October, which will be of interest and is quite valuable. It reads as follows:

October was cooler than usual during the first and the early part of the third decade, and generally warmer than usual during the rest of the month.

There were two rainy periods. The first period set in on the 3rd and ended on the 7th, and gave quite heavy precipitation over the entire State. The second period occurred from the 29th to the 31st, and was caused by the passage of a hurricane along the coast. It was attended by heavy rains and gales over the larger portion of the State; the exception embraced the extreme western portions, where the rainfall was comparatively light. There were a few threatening days, with sprinkles of rain during the middle of the month, but at a few points only the agric was appreciable.

The season as a whole was extremely favorable for outdoor field work and for gathering the Cotton crop. Cotton was mostly picked out, and very good picking weather prevailed. Cotton was very open. Cotton was nearly all picked in good condition. Some were days lost by the rains of the 3rd, but the bulk of the crop was picked in November. A little was yet unpicked, and trade were prepared for an unusually large percentage of late cotton. In the truck-farming districts the weather was mostly favorable until the 30-31st, when truck was damaged to some extent by the severe storm. The general weather conditions throughout the month proved increased yields of the minor food and forage crops that have their periods of maturity in October and November.

Notes.

After 57 years' active and successful practice Col. J. T. Blanding, of Sumter, is winding up his business and will retire from the bar on January 1.

Mr. Walter Harman, one of McCormick's suburban citizens, was quite painfully but not seriously hurt with a rock thrown at him by one Abe Hemsen, colored, Thursday morning. The negro was arrested and bound over to court. Failing to give bail, he was confined in the lockup, but some of his friends drew the staple and liberated him some time during the night.

Fears in London.

London, By Cable.—The position in Natal remains full of perplexities which the censorship has increased. Although a division and a half have now reached Durban, that place is practically powerless until supplied with cavalry and artillery, and until these arrive the situation will undoubtedly remain grave. With three beleaguered garrisons in Natal, besides Kimberley and Mafeking, and no signs of succor in the immediate future, it is no wonder that the outlook is regarded as distinctly gloomy.

SAYS EARTH IS ROUND

AND HE MAY BE THROWN INTO PRISON.

Sad Condition of Affairs in England—Sir John Gorst Accused of Intention to Teach False Precepts—City of Portsmouth Excited.

It is painful to read that Sir John Gorst, the head of the British educational department, is in serious trouble and has been threatened by Mr. Ebenezer Breach and other taxpayers of the city of Portsmouth, in the kingdom of England, with prosecution under the "imposters' act." It seems that the schools of Portsmouth have been teaching the damnable and heretical doctrine that the earth is a sphere. Sir John's attention has been called to this dissemination of seditious and treasonable doctrine, but he has refused to correct the abuse. Ebenezer and his friends know, of course, that the earth is as flat as a pancake. They have been patient with Sir John, and day after day have allowed the false teaching regarding the shape of the earth to go on, but can stand it no longer, they say, to see their children corrupted with this most "heretical doctrine," as the complainants call it in this protest. Sir John Gorst has many political enemies, and even his political friends do not always agree with him; but the depth of his depravity was not known until he was unmasked by Mr. Ebenezer Breach and his friends. Sir John may cavort about parliament and deceive some people, but when he runs up against a body of responsible British taxpayers, the bulwarks of the throne and the guardians of the constitution, it is another matter. Such new-fangled ideas as that of the earth being a sphere he may impose upon the frivolous persons who dwell in the unholy city of London, but not upon the taxpayers of Southampton. Ebenezer and his friends never knew, and have never formed notions upon the Portsmouth school board that the teaching that the earth is a sphere "cannot be allowed to continue under any circumstances, plea or explanation whatever," and that it must be abandoned under pain of the "punishment for sedition by the law provided." After having stamped out the dastardly doctrine in the schools of Southampton, the committee announce that they will next go up to London and bring the London school board before the courts, being well advised and informed that the same doctrine regarding the shape of the earth is also taught in the London schools. Sir John, meantime, is to be brought to court and prosecuted under the "imposters' act" aforesaid. Now, the "imposters' act" is a part of the British constitution, probably—no one knows what is, and what is not a part of that religious thing—and provides a fine and penalties, such as forfeiture of state and burning at the stake, for violations. Ebenezer and his friends are worthy and remarkable citizens and men of means. If he stands they will light the fires of Smithfield again for the wicked Sir John. At last accounts Sir John was still at large, and so was Ebenezer.

The Australian Bunyip.

Legends of a weird creature called the bunyip, said to have once inhabited the Australian lakes and rivers, still survive at the Antipodes. Whether it was an aboriginal myth or a vanished reality continues to be a debatable point. Some are inclined to think that it was the former, as not a bone or vestige of the bunyip is to be found in any museum or scientific collection. If, however, we are to believe Buckley, the most renowned and remarkable of the wild white men of Australia, the bunyip had a real existence. He alleges that he actually saw one in Lake Modewrra, a few miles to the south of Geelong. "The waters of the lake are perfectly fresh, abounding in large eels, which we caught in great abundance. In this lake, as well as in most of the others inland, and in the deep water there, is a very extraordinary amphibious animal, which the natives call the bunyip, of which I could never see any part except the back, which appeared to be covered with feathers of a dusky gray color. It seemed to be about the color of a full-grown colt and sometimes larger. The creature only appears when the weather is very calm and the water smooth. I could never learn from any of the natives that they had seen either the head or the tail, so that I could not form a correct idea of its size, or what it was like."

Thanked Providence and a Railroad.

A curious vote of thanks was recently passed at a camp meeting in Georgia at the last meeting of the series and was in the form of a resolution which was adopted by a rising vote. The preamble declared the tender of thanks to those named in the clauses which followed. The seventh and eighth clauses read: 7. To the railroad for the reduced rate of one and one-third fare for round trip to persons attending the meeting. 8. To Almighty God, the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, for calling so many of his people together and meeting with them in power and demonstration.

Old Ruins to Be Sold.

The ruins of Chepstow Castle, in England, in which Henry Marten, one of the judges of Charles I., was confined for upward of twenty years after the restoration, are to be sold at public auction. They cover an extensive area near the mouth of the Wye, and the walls on one side are nearly perpendicular with the cliff, which overhangs that river. The castle itself is said to date from the time of William the Conqueror, and it stood two sieges during the revolution. It has been successively in the hands of the Fitz-Osbornes, the Clares, the Pelands, the Herberts and the Somersets, and it is now placed on the market by order of the new Duke of Beaufort.

Take Care of Your Ears.

Men and women have much to do to keep straight. A hundred nerves and muscles are at work all through the waking hours, giving warning or receiving orders that the body, with its many joints and natural instability, shall preserve its equilibrium, shall not stagger or double up in a hopeless heap. These nerves and muscles are a highly organized signal service, the chief offices of which are in the semicircular canals buried in the "stony" homework that protects the inner ear. Were it not for these canals a human being would find it difficult, often impossible, to maintain a proper balance either while walking or standing still.

So long as these canals are in healthy working order their reports are trustworthy; but when any undue force has shocked them, or any agency, such as sickness, has interfered with their workings, their messages are incoherent, and the brain, like the engineer of a battleship in action when the men above are blinded and bewildered, has nothing to do but let things go.—Berlin (Md.)
