Death of Miss Georgia McDonald.

Sunday evening, December 15th Miss Georgia McDonald, after protracted suffering, fell asleep to awaken in the blissful home where pain can never come. She was a native of South Carolina. For some time she was a student in the Columbia Female College where she was converted and soon after united with toe Methodist church. Five years ago, in company with the other members of the family, she moved to New Mexico where for two years she taught in the public schools. It has not yet been three years since she came with the family to La Junta, the mother having purchased a home at 502 Raton avenue.

The western climate had proven to be a tonic to Miss McDonald's broken health until last summer when visiting Manitou she contracted a heavy cold, the effects of which followed her until death. She was a patient sufferer and resigned to the Father's will. Cultured and refined, her life was full of good cheer for all who crossed her pathway. The home has been robbed of a sunbeam and the shadow rests heavily on the mother, Mrs Margaret McDonald, two sisters, J D Craighead and Miss Clarice McDonald, and two brothers, Jack and Angus.

The funeral was held from the home Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, the services being conducted by Rev R H Ayres, pastor of the Methodist church, of which church Miss McDonald was a member. The young men acting as pall bearers were all intimate friends of the family, nearly all of them having boarded with them for a time. The beautiful floral from so many loving friends bore witness to the highest seem in which Miss McDonald was held by all who knew her. We beleive she has but gone to her coronation. We shall see her again.—La Junta, Colo Tribune.

THE B. AND C. TO DRAKE

The First Railroad in Brownsville Reached There This Week.

For the first time a locomotive engine rolled into Brownsville township this week. It went across Three creeks, just below Drake's mill. The B and C train is now hauling freight from Drake, and the passenger trains will run to that point in a few days, as soon as a little leveling up can be completed in the fill across Three creeks.

President Heckart says that W B Drake promised him some eggnog if he would come over to his store on the locomotive Christmas day. The work was being pushed with a view to getting the eggnog, but Mr Heckart says Mr Drake played a trick on him by turning the water loose from his mill wheel and flooding the creek so that the trestle could not be quite completed by Christmas It lacked just about one days work, and Mr Heckart missed the eggnog.

There are three stations on the new portion of the road, Scott, at Edwin Weatherly's place; Argyle, at J N Drake's; and Drake, at W B Drake's store and mill.

Mr Weatherly named the station at his place Heckart, for the president of the road; but Mr Heckart is too modest to accept that name, and has named it Scott, for Alex Scott of Pennsylvania, the president of the Scott Lumber Company.

Scott is six miles from Bennettsville, Argyle 10, and Drake 11. A two mile spur will branch off from the main line between Scott and Argyle and will be built to Blenheim.

It is also proposed to extend the road from Drake southward six or eight miles. The Scott Lumber Company has timber as far down the river as Cashway ferry and the Arcadia place, now owned by W A and B D Rogers.

Death of John [illegible] Moore.

John S Moore died Sunday, about noon, after an illness of less than an hour. He was attending services at the Methodist church when he became [illegible] and was taken home by friends. Drs Kinney and Poyner were with him and did what they could for the relief of the sufferer, but he died in a few minutes after the attack. The physicians were feeling his pulse, when his spirit suddenly departed.

Mr Moore attended a meeting of the stewards of the chsrch just before preaching, and did not complain of feeling nnwell. It is thought that he was taken with a sudden attack of acute indigestion while in church.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev R E Turnipseed at Oak Ridge cemetery Monday at 3 P M in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. The pall bearers were his fellow officers of the Methodist church: J F Everett. C S Chaffin, R K Breeden, H H Newton, Tom C Weatherly, P A Hodges, J M Jackson and Dr J F Kinney.

Mr Moore was 75 on Sept 3, last, and was next to the oldest of the old citizens of Bennettsville. Judge Hudson is a few months older, and Capt P L Breeden about two months younger.

Mr Moore was a native of North Carolina, and his family was a distinguished one, some of his ancestors having occupied the governor's chair, and other high officers. He was practicing law in Goldsboro before the war and met there Miss Laura Cook of Bennettsville, who was teaching in the Goldsboro female college. A little later he took Miss Cook to Goldsboro as his wife.

Mr Moore gallantly served the confederacy in a North Carolina regiment during the war. After the war he came to Bennettsville, and later settled at his country home, two miles south of town. He taught here and at Hebron for a number of years, and many of our citizens went to school to him and Mrs Moore.

Mr Moore was always interested in education, and devoted to his church. He always wore a flower on the lapel of his coat, and had a smile and a word of cheer for everybody. He always visited the sick, and he has knelt in many a home and offered prayer for the bereaved and the suffering.

He is survived by his wife and two daughters, Mrs Wilcox of Marion and Mrs Collins of Conway. All his brothers and sisters have preceeded him to the grave.

MISS CARLISLE BURNED

A Bennettsville Girl Had a Narrow Escape at Mullins.

Miss Sallie Carlisle, daughter of E S Carlisle, was painfully burned at a school entertainment at Mullins. She is at home, and has about recovered from the burn and fright. The Mullins Enterprise gives the following account of the accident:

At the entertainment given at the school house last Friday night, a very serious accident happened to Miss Sallie Carlisle, one of the popular young teachers in the graded school, and numbers among her acquaintance and friends almost all who were present. In the tableau in which Miss Sallie was to take part, she was to represent the spirit of Christmas. The tableau was to be produced by her standing on a pedestal and being lighted with a blaze of red fire. In the tableau she was to throw the box from her hand as she advanced to the front of the stage. In the tableau she was to be followed by a Santa Claus who was to follow her and take the box from her hand. The pedestal was made of boxes and was covered with white cloth. The red fire was placed behind the pedestal and was to be lighted when she came on the stage. The curtain rose and she came on the stage and the red fire was lighted. She became frightened at the blaze and instead of throwing the box from her, she threw it over her head. Her hair caught and blazed over in a moment. Miss Inez Brown and Evan Lewis who were standing near by, rushed to her assistance, and soon extinguished the flames, but not, however, until her clothing had caught. The collar of her waist was burned nearly off. Things were very lively for a few moments and great excitement prevailed, but cool heads soon restored order. The shock was a severe one to Miss Carlisle, and her many friends deeply sympathize with her. Her physician thinks that there will not be any evil effects from the burns, as they were not deep. She left Friday night for her houe to spend the Christmas holidays.

With The Pacific Fleet.

Geo M Stackhouse, a Marlboro boy, is with the fleet which has sailed for the Pacific. He is a son of former Senator H Milton Stackhouse of this county, and taught for a while in the graded schools here. Later he was private secretary to Senator Tillman, and then received an important position in the navy.

A Box from Home.

The Palmetto Leaf, published at the institute for the deaf, dumb and blind at Ceder Springs, contained the following item last week:

"Last Saturday evening Carrie Bowyer was delighted to get a box from her home."

Carrie is a daughter of John W Bowyer of Red Hill. It is always a pleasure for a child away from home to get a box at Christmas time. The friends of this little deaf and dumb girl from Marlboro are glad to know that she got a Christmas box, and that she is taking a high stand in her classes.
