Mercer Minutes.

[Correspondence of THE LEDGER.]

MERCER, S. C., March, 12.—Mr. Editor: If you will allow me the space in your paper this week I will give an account of something that occured in a court room.

THE GREAT DESTROYER—A TERRIBLE CHARGE.

"Prisoner at the bar, have you anything to say why sentence of death shall not be passed upon you?,,

A solemn hush fell over the crowded court room, and every person waited in almost breathless expectation for an answer to the judge's questions. Will the prisoner answer? Is there nothing that will make him show sign of emotion? Will he maintain that cold indifferent attitude he has shown through the long trial, even to the place of execution? Such were the questions that passed through the minds of those who had followed the case from day to day. The judge still waited in dignified silence. Not a whisper was heard anywhere, and the situation had become painfully oppressive, when the prisoner was seen to move, his head was raised, his hands were clinched, and the blood had rushed into his pale and care-worn face, his teeth were firmly set, and into his haggered eyes came a flash of light. Suddenly he arose to his feet and in a low, firm but distinct voice said:

"I have! Your honor, you have asked me a question and I now ask, as the last favor on earth, that you will not interrupt my answer until I am through. I stand here before this bar convicted of the willful murder of my wife. Truthful witnesses have testified to the fact that I was a loafer, a drunkard, and a wretch; that I returned from one of my long debauches and fired the fatal shot that killed the wife I had sworn to love, cherish and protect. While I have no remembrance of committing the fearful, cowardly and inhuman deed, I have no right to complain or condemn the verdict of twelve good men who have acted as jurors in this case, for their verict is in accordance with the evidence. But may it please the court, I wish to show the court that I am not alone responsible for the murder of my wife."

This startling statement created a tremendous sensation. The judge leaned over the desk, the lawyers wheeled around and faced the prisoner, the jurors looked at each in amazement, while the spectators could hardly suppress their intense excitement. The prisoner paused a few seconds and then continued in the same firm distinct voice:

"I repeat, your honor, that I am not the only one guilty of the murder of my wife. The judge on this bench, the jury in the box, the lawyers within this bar, and most of the witnesses including the pastor of the old church, are also guilty before Almighty God and will have to appear with me before his judgment throne, where we all shall be righteously judged. If twenty men conspire together the for murder of one person the law power of this land will arrest the twenty and each will be tried, convicted and executed for the whole murder and not for one-twentieth of the crime. I have been made a drunkard by law. If it had not been for the legalized saloons of my town I never would have become a drunkard; my wife would not have been murdered; I would not be here now, ready to be hurled into eternity. Had it not been for the human traps set out with the consent of the government, I would have been a sober man, an industrious workman, a tender father and a loving husband. But to day my home is destroyed, my wife murdered, my little children, God bless and care for them, cast on the mercy of a cold and cruel world, while I am to be murdered by the strong arms of the state. God knows I tried to reform, but as long as the open saloons were in my way, my weak, diseased will-power was no match against the fearful, consuming, agonizing appetite for liquor. At last I sought the protection, care and sympathy of the church of Jesus Christ, but at the communion table I received from the pastor who sits there, and who has testified against me in this case, the cup that contained the very same alcoholic serpent that is found in every bar-room in the land. It proved too much for my weak humanity and out of that holy place I rushed to the last debauch that ended with the murder of my wife."

"For one year our town was without a saloon. For one year I was a sober man. For one year my wife and children were supremely happy, and our little home a perfect paradise. I was one of those who signed remonstration against re-opening the saloons in our town. The names of one-half of this jury can be found to day on the petition certifying to the good moral character(?) of the rumsellers, and falsely saying that the sale of liquor was 'necessary' in our town. The prosecuting attorney in this case was the one who so eloquently pleaded with this court for the licenses and the judge who sits on this bench and who asked me if I had anything to say before sentence of death was passed upon me, granted the license."

The impassioned words of the prisoner fell like coals of fire upon the hearts of those present, and many of the spectators and some of the lawers were moved to tears. The judge made a motion as if to stop any further speech on the part of the prisoner, when the speaker hastily exlained::

"No! no!, your honor, do not close my life, I am nearly through and they are the last words I shall ever utter on earth. I began my downward career at a saloon bar legalized and protected by the voters of this commonwealth which has received annually a part of the blood money from the poor, deluded victims. After the state had made me a drunkard and a murderer I am taken before another bar, the bar of justice, by same power of law that legalized first bar, and now the law-power conduct me to the place of execution and hasten my soul into eternity. I shall appear before another the judgement bar of God, and those who have legalized the traffic will have to appear with me. Think you that the Great Judge will hold me, the poor, weak, helpless victim of your traffic, alone responsible for the murder of my wife? Nay, I in my drunken, frenzied, irresponsible condition, have murdered one, but you have deliberately and wilfuly murdered your thousands and the murder-mills are in full operation today with your consent. All of you know in your hearts that these words of mine are not the ravings of an unsound mind, but God Almighty's truth. The liquor traffic of this nation is responsible for nearly all the murders, bloodshed, riots, poverty, misery, wretchedness and woe. It breaks up thousands of happy homes every year, sends husbands and fathers to prison or to the gallows, and drives countless mothers and little children into the world to suffer and die. It furnishes nearly all the criminal business of this and every other court and blasts every community it touches. You legalized the saloons that made me a drunkard and a murder, and you are guilty with me before God and man for the murder of my wife. Your honor, I am done and I am now ready to receive my sentence and be led forth to the place of execution and murdered according to the laws of this state. You will close by asking the Lord to have mercy on my soul. I will close by asking God to open your blind eyes to the truth, to your individual responsibility, so that you will cease to give your support to the hellborn traffic."

Take warning. W. P. D.

Home.

PROVIDENCE, March, 11.—Mr. Editor: Please allow me space in your columns to say a few words about home. That word home always sounds like poetry to me. It rings like a peal of bells at a wedding, only more soft and sweet, and it chimes deeper into the ears of my heart. It does not matter whether it means thatched cottage or manor house, home is home, be it ever so homely, and there's no place on earth like home. Green grows the house-leek on the roof ever, and let the moss flourish on the thatch. Sweetly the sparrows chirrup and the swallows twitter around the chosen spot which is my joy and rest. Every bird loves its own nest. The owl thinks the old ruins the fairest spot under the moon, and the fox is of the opinion that his hole in the hill is remarkably cosey. When my father's horse knows that his head is toward home he wants no whip but thinks it best to put on all steam; and I am always of the same mind, for the way home, to me, is the best bit of road in the country. I like to see the smoke out of my own father's chimney better than the fire on another man's hearth, there's something so beautiful in the way it curls up among the trees. Cold potatoes on my own table taste better than roast meat on my neighbor's, and the honey-suckle at my own door is the sweetest I ever smell. When you are out friends do their best, but still it is not home. "Make yourself at home," they say because everybody knows that to feel at home is to feel at ease. "East and West home is best." Why at home you are at home and what more do you want? Nobody grudges you whatever your appetite may be, and you don't get put into a damp bed. Safe in his own castle like a king in his palace a man feels himself somebody, and isn't afraid of being called vain for thinking so. No need to guard every word because some enemy is on the watch, no keeping the heart under lock and key, but as soon as the door is shut it is liberty hall, and none to peep and pry. I cannot make out why so many working men spend their evenings at the public house when their own fireside would be so much better and cheaper too. There they sit, hour after hour, boozing and talking nonsense and forgetting the dear good souls at home.

A Royal Myrtle Bush.

Near the principal entrance at Osborne there is a flower garden in which an immense myrtle bush is to be seen. This has been grown from a sprig which was taken out of the wedding bouquet of Empress Frederick in 1858. It has been a rule at court that at every royal marriage at which bride or bridegroom was a descendant of the queen some pieces of this myrtle have been placed in the bride's wedding bouquet. The practice commenced when Princess Alice married, Prince Louis of Hesse at Osborne in 1862, and it has been continued until the day when their daughter was married to the emperor of Russia.

Short Breath, Palpitation.

Mr. G. W. McKinsey, postmaster of Kokomo, Ind., and a brave ex-soldier, says: "I had been severely troubled with heart disease ever since leaving the army at the close of the late war. I was troubled with palpitation and shortness of breath. I could not sleep on my left side, and had pain around my heart. I became so ill that I was much alarmed, and fortunately my attention was called to

From Alabama.

TUSCUMBIA ALABAMA, March 11.—Mr. Editor:—You remember I promised to write you a letter when I got over here and things began to move along, but some how I have procrastinated, thinking that I could sum up something that would be interesting to LEDGER readers later on, but nothing of special interest has presented itself.

I am always glad to get my paper as it is a little dandy, and gives me all the news from home—somehow I don't get it regularly as the postmaster at home can't keep up with me at all times though when she comes I am as proud of it as a boy is of his first pair of pants.

I hit Birmingham, the first of Alabama's towns, but I didn't remain there long as I had no business there and I am glad I didn,t, as I understood that one of our boys who left Gaffney a few days after I did was relieved of his purse near there—I hope he had enough left to get back home to his mama—I don't know what some boys would do if they could not depend on their father and mother for the sustinance of life—Father and mother of course are our best friends but when a boy gets smarter than his father I think he ought to make his own grub. My father says I have got the bighead but I don,t think it is any larger than it was ten years ago—I suppose he means by this that my head has gotten larger, or at least I will say so here. Birmingham is a good manufacturing city but is not the town it was some years ago—I didn't stay there long enough to find out who was the meanest or best man in town but I saw a man over at Iuba, Mississippi, last week who had just married a young lady from somewhere over on the Tennessee river that was too mean to buy his sweet little wife a five cent box of snuff. When she asked him to make the purchase he said: "Now Sallie Ann we have just got married and against I get us some little tricks and a pint of whiskey my money will all be gone." Coal mining and some manufacturing is the leading pursuits for a livelihood here. The coal mines extend from Birmingham nearly to the northern part of the state and the miners are well paid for their work. They get from one to four dollars per day, according to the amount of coal they get out. The Galloway mines are the most extensive in the state and they have a very fine quality of coal which can be bought at $1 a ton at the mines, some of this coal is brought from one mile below the surface and of course the miners use lights all day to work by, I haven't gone down in any of them as I am not built that way. I have been over in Mississippi for some time and she is just like all the other states in the south. Tuscumbia, Sheffield and Florence are nearly one town, only two miles to Sheffield and just over the Tennessee river is Florence, they are all good towns and I will be with them some time. Very truly.

JOHN W. BRIDGES.

"Perhaps you would not think so, but a very large portion of diseases in New York comes from carelessness about catching cold," says Dr. Cyrus Edson. "It is such a simple thing and so common that very few people, unless it is a case of pneumonia, pay any attention to a cold. There are a great many cases of catarrh and consumption which have their origin in this neglect of the simplest precaution of every day life. The most sensible advice is, when you have one, get rid of it as soon as possible. By all means do not neglect it." Dr. Edson does not tell you how to cure a cold but we will. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will relieve the lungs, aid expectoration, open the secretions and soon effect a permanent cure. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by W. B. DuPre.

Matters From Maud.

[Correspondence of THE LEDGER.]

MAUD, S. C., Mar. 12.—The rain yesterday somewhat confused the plans of our busy people. Some expected to mine a large amount of monazite, and some to speed the plow and others to get their gardens in order and Mrs. A. L. Thompson had to keep her flock of young lambs in the barn all day. By the way, she has a fine circus of lambs which are quite a show to the children at Maud.

The storm Friday night caused some excitement at W. P. Self's. A limb was blown from a tree in the yard that pierced through the wall of the house—through the weatherboarding and plastering at the same time. R. E. Linder's house narrowly escaped being burned. The door was blown open and the fire scattered over the floor.

Flemming Littlejohn's (col.) four year old child was burned to death last week. Its clothes was ignited while trying to extinguish a burning broom.

Some of our people was greatly troubled Sunday night during the eclipse. It being a clear night, others enjoyed the scene as one of God's wonderful exhibitions.

Linder & Price, the leading merchants of this place, are doing an extentive business. The monazite mining of this section is greatly increasing their trade. They bought of different customers last Friday in one hour, one-half bushel of eggs, so our place is rich in eggs and monazite.

Rev. C. F. Flement preached last Sunday at the Williams academy. He will preach there every first Sunday at 2 p. m. during this year.

Miss Fannie Glover, of Oak Spring, N. C., is visiting relatives at this place.

The Fairview debating society is in working order. It will hold its next meeting Friday night at 7:30 o'clock. Query—Resolved, that intoxicating drinks are producing a greater evil than the use of tobacco. The public is invited.

Rev. C. M. Teal gave us a pleasant call Sunday evening. We enjoyed his presence very much. He is so cheerful and has so many pleasant words of comfort.

The first load of fertilizer to this place was hauled last Saturday by one of our most prosperous farmers. Shall we follow the example? is the question. T.

Resolutions of Respect.

Wheras, it has pleased the Supreme Architect of the Universe to summon from this terrestrial lodge of F. and A. M. to the Grand Lodge on high, our beloved brother John B. Easterly, whose geniel nature, charitable and generous spirit, together with an earnest zeal and untiring devotion in the interest of Greenward Lodge No. 186—, developed in our hearts for him the prefoundist sentiments of affection regard and brotherly love.

Therefore be it resolved, That while we reverently and devoutly bow to the behests of that being whose ways are inscrutable and who doeth all things well, in removing from this life our deceased brother, we desire to express our deep sense of our irreparable loss sustained in the death of one who, with an exemplary life, always fittingly and impressively illustrated the cardinal principles that constitute the foundation stones upon which the grand superstructure of Freemasonry stands.

Resolved, That we share deeply in the sorrow of the widow, the children and the relatives of our deceased brother, and thereby tender to them our heartfelt sympathy, and commend them to the loving and tender care of him who has promised to be a "Father to the fatherless" and a "Helper to the widow."

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes and that an engrossed copy of the same be transmitted to the widow of our deceased brother.

Etta Jane Notes.

[Correspondence of THE LEDGER.]

ETTA JANE, S. C., Mar. 12.—Farmers are again compelled to stop their plows on account of their lands being too wet. Some who are disposed to make cotton "a curse to the country" say the hand of Providence is against us in raising it; as we will have no time to prepare the land for it this year.

A. J. Sanders finished building Jeff George's barn last week.

Our friend, Mark Donnon is engaged in the monazite business. Joe Estis has made several rich discoveries of it. A Hickory Grove company has taken a lease on some choice mineral lands in this section and expects to begin work on them soon.

Our free schools will close this week. We have only had two and one-fourth month of schooling in this township this year.

Rev. G. W. Boyd preached at Wilson's chapel last Sabbath. His text was the first twelve verses of the 90th Psalm.

Rev. J. P. Knox, of Hickory Grove, will preach at Salem on the 5th Sabbath of this month.

Miss Grace Whisonant is attending school at All Healing Springs, N. C.

H. B. McDaniel is gone to McConnellsville on business.

Another catamount was seen in this neighborhood one night last week by Bob Davidson. He says it was black and white spotted.

There will be an abundence of corn planted this year if the farmers don't change their minds. They say, too, that they won't use guano unless they can get it at living prices.

Some says the new constitution is to kill the homestead and repudiate all old debts. We are at sea yet as to who our candidate will be for seats in that convention. In fact we are awfully mixed up in the matter.
