A THOUGHT A DAY.

By Dr. C. W. Montgomery.

The best way to hold your friends is to never tell all you know.

A trained mind can never be at ease.

A parrot can talk, but he has never produced a thought.

If some people reap what they sow great will be the harvest.

VISITORS FETED

The home of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Manigault was the scene of a delightful [illegible] when [illegible] ing, August 19th [illegible] at home, with a group of her Columbia friends, to several of her friends from Tryon, North Carolina; and Spartanburg.

The evening was one of merriment for all who were present and it was with sincere regret that the hour of departure had to come. Mrs. Annie Manigault Patrick, the hostess, is recognized as being without a superior when it comes to making her friends feel at ease in her home; and because of this trait she is very often the honoree at social events while out of town. This season she has been the recipient of honors at Tryon and Spartanburg.

The guests in whose honor the party was given are: Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Camp, and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Pickens, of Tryon, N. C.; Mesdames Fara Belle Foster and Carrie Symms of Spartanburg.

Tuneful music was furnished by Henry (Bubba) Stacks, our radio artist, and Paul Allen Stewart, of Orangeburg, who is one of Jim's [illegible] Collegians. The visitors left in their cars shortly after the party was over. Before leaving, however, the hostess provided them with coffee and sandwiche that no disaster might befall them.
