INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. BELLERS, Acting Director of Sunday School Course of Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

LESSON FOR JUNE 20

PRAYER FOR THE TEMPTED.

LESSON TEXT—Psalm 141.
GOLDEN TEXT—Keep me from the snare which they have laid for me.—Psalm 141:9.

The style of this psalm closely resembles the known psalms of David in the first part of the psalter. From its structure and character, it is to be credited to David. In it are presented complaint, prayer and confident hope of relief. It is a petition for deliverance from sins to which his afflictions tempted him, and from the enemies who caused his affliction.

I. Prayer. "My prayer directed" (vv. 1, 2). There is good reason for believing David wrote this while going through the experience recorded in I Samuel 24. It is evident he is passing through a time of great stress and was in dire need of help for he urges "haste" in giving heed to his call, (Luke 18:1-8). David looks to Jehovah as his only and sure helper. We are told to omit the first word "unto" in this verse and to read, "I have called thee." Every human help had failed and faith fearlessly turns to God. Can God be urged? Surely we are taught that God respects his "remembrancers" who cry "day and night" (Psalm 40:13; 69:17, 18; 70:5; 71:12; 143:7). To fold the hands weakly and to "bide his time" is usually an evidence of spiritual debility and of a desire to shirk the work involved in a true exercise of prayer. True faith knows but one way of deliverance, that of prayer (Phil. 4:6, 7), and those who call in faith get deliverance (Rom. 10:13). Such prayer, the fruit of heart and lips, is before God "as incense" and its effectiveness does not depend upon its being presented in the tabernacle—it is a "sacrifice" of praise well-pleasing to God. We are to pray to God through his Son and in the Holy Spirit. Such prayer is set forth before him as a sacrifice of sweet smelling savor.

II. Practice. "Incline not my heart to practice wicked works" (v. 4). Such prayer as here suggested demands a preparation of purity. As the "incense" was prepared with great care (Ex. 30:36) and its fragrance was brought out by fire (Rom. 8:26, 27; Eph. 6:18), so likewise there must be a continual practice of prayer and an absence of "wicked works." In no way are we so apt to sin as with our lips, but back of the lips is the heart (Matt. 18:11; Luke 6:45). The tongue can no man tame (James 3:8), yet God is able and his way is to cleanse the fountain. To have the mouth filled first with prayer and praise and then with evil is contrary to reason and to God's commands. David recognized that the heart is the source of "wicked works," and prayed that he be not even "inclined" to them (Matt. 6:13; Jam. 1:13). If he "keeps the door" we have a safe guard (Pa. 127:1).

III. Position. "Let him reprove me" (v. 5). "Faithful are the wounds of a friend." This seems to be the position David desired to occupy, one that would be "a kindness" to him. Such correction is as sweet oil. Oil is healing and soothing and here symbolizes the healing effect of correction. Fools hate reproof, wise men plead for it. David not only welcomed wisdom but (see R. V.) promises to pray for such friends when calamities come upon them and in the time when they are overcome by wickedness. When such are cast down by the rocky roadside "they shall hear my words," says David, and they will be sweet. The psalmist's experience, when hunted as a partridge, taught him how to appreciate the petitions of Jonathan, —his friend, whose words to him were "sweet." A careful reading of verse seven reveals David's dire extremity (see Am. R. V.). Death stared him in the face. His soul was torn as "one ploweth and cleaveth the earth."

IV. Protection. "In these do I put my trust" (R. V.). Though thus brought low David knew where to turn, and one to whom he could look. The church of Christ needs to look to God, to become like him. It needs the transforming, encouraging, energizing, vision. David is now taking his eyes off the difficulties and fixing them on the one who enables him to overcome. "Look unto me and be ye saved." Literally his prayer is "make not my soul naked" or "pour not out my soul."
Whoever else a man harms by his sin he harms himself most. Saloonkeepers and their sons most frequently fill the grave of the drunkard. Gamblers nearly all lose their easy gains. "They that take the sword perish by the sword." Our only safety is Jehovah. God is constantly answering this last prayer, and we do see the wicked falling into their own nets (Pa. 7:15-16; 37:14, 15; Ex. 7:10).

This lesson has a strong temperance suggestion and application. (1) Prayers that God will hear; (2) Preparation of the mouth and heart; (3) Position for reproof to learn thereby; (4) Protection from temptation and trial.

Foreman Is Expected to Arrive This Morning—Asphalt Plant Is Being Placed.

The foreman who will superintend the laying of the concrete for the city paving is expected to arrive today and it was stated yesterday that unless something unforeseen happened, this work would start on Monday morning. The work of lowering the water mains on West Market street has been going on for the past few days and everything is almost ready for the concrete work.

The railroad company has a force of hands putting down extra siding for the plant and it was stated yesterday that it was thought everything would be in readiness to begin mixing within the next two weeks.

SUES FOR $2,000.00 RESULT OF COLLISION

Greenville Woman Employs Council to Bring Action Against John H. Earle.

Greenville, June 18.—As a consequence of the Earle-Fayonisky collision and episode on North Main street Tuesday evening, it is rumored that Fayonisky will bring action against John H. Earle for $20,000 damages, on account of alleged humiliation to Mrs. Fayonisky. It was reported that Fayonisky had retained the firm of Sirrine and McKissick to represent him. When asked this afternoon about the purported action, Capt. Sirrine denied that the action would be for $20,000 damages, but admitted that Fayonisky had sought the firm of Sirrine and McKissick to institute the action. Fayonisky said that he was much grieved over the treatment accorded his wife and her humiliation as a result of the affair.
It was also reported that Earle would have a warrant issued for Mrs. Fayonisky charging her with assault and battery.

Preparedness + Action = ?

"Prepared in mind and resources," reads the motto on the coat of arms of South Carolina—and every word of it's true. But, to crystallize this preparedness into fruitful results, the old Palmetto State needs action, Action, ACTION.

Let us review her state of preparedness as concerns mind and resources—then let us boldly examine the facts as to the use she is making of her splendid equipment.

First, in the realm of things mental—there is the famous old Citadel at Charleston. Here, courses similar to those at West Point are given. And, owing to a wise policy of general publicity, students are drawn not only from the home State, but from a great many other States as well.

Then there is Converse College for women—one of several good schools under private control. Through a generous use of space in national magazines Converse is wisely announcing the opportunities she has to offer. And results are encouraging. She is to be congratulated on her bold, progressive advertising policy. It is action of this kind that will lay the foundation for a great future for this institution.

While we already serve several splendid South Carolina schools, we believe there is an opportunity for general advertising that many other good schools should enjoy. Our broad experience in guiding the publicity of a large majority of the schools in the United States that advertise has especially fitted us to give expert counsel and advice in this respect.

Now, as to South Carolina's material resources:

The old Palmetto State is largely agricultural. Her most important crop is cotton. Both in the value of cotton as raw material and as manufactured products, South Carolina takes her stand well to the front.

Here in deed are unsurpassed opportunities for industrial growth and commercial expansion. Especially is this true of cotton-made materials.

And yet, in this State of tremendous cotton growing and cotton manufacturing, the only national advertising along commercial lines is that done for a freckle cream made in Charleston.

What a splendid opportunity for the manufacturing and merchandising, through advertising, of a trade-marked brand of kerosene! How perfect is the setting for the launching of a characterful cotton cloth—so advertised that women would call for it by name as they do any number of cotton-made materials! Here, where the raw material is produced in abundance, does it not seem to be the natural home for nationally known brands of men's negligees and outing shirts, children's dresses and rompers and a score of other cotton-made articles.

And why stick to things the basis of which is grown at home? Massachusetts does not raise her cattle to supply the leather for her magnificent shoe business; the vegetables for making Heil's famous 57 varieties do not grow on the hills of Pittsburgh nor does Missouri manufacture all the hardware that she uses. Keen Kutter a household word.

Why should not South Carolina be known as the home State for a nationally known brand of kitchen cabinets, or corsets, or shaving cream, or men's and women's clothing, or any number of other articles that are produced far from the source of raw materials?

What the Old South State should do is to vary her industries as she is now varying her crops. To diversify her manufacturing is to prepare for bigger state growth and greater wealth and opportunity.

South Carolina needs the sprinkling can of advertising or nationalize the hum of her industries. Prepared in mind and resources as few States are, there is lacking only the necessary action to bring South Carolina to her old role of leader of the South.

Here, we aim to give good counsel and to guide to merchandising success brands which are ready to be built on the rock of national good will. More small accounts are handled by us than by any other advertising agency. At the same time we are serving hundreds of the leading national advertisers. Perhaps an advertising scope as broad and varied as this will suggest to South Carolina manufacturers where to come for expert merchandising and advertising counsel.
