

FOURTH CELEBRATED BELTON YESTERDAY

Large Crowds Were Present and Day Was One of Genuine Enjoyment.

The Fourth of July was celebrated in Belton yesterday and one of the largest crowds that ever assembled in that city was present to take part in the program and to watch the contests.

WATERMELONS IN CITY YESTERDAY

First Loads Home Raised Melons Put On Market By Negro Farmers in Anderson.

Two loads of home raised watermelons were brought to town yesterday morning, one by E. D. Thompson, who rents land from C. D. Shandon on R. F. D. No. 6, and one by Hood Willis who also lives on the place of C. D. Shandon.

SUMMER SCHOOL BEGINS MONDAY

100 or More Teachers Are Expected to Attend—Meeting of County Board Also.

Tomorrow morning at 9:45 the Anderson county teacher's summer school will be called to order in the West Market street school building.

Some of the teachers who will attend have already arrived in the city and others will come tomorrow.

There will be a meeting of the county board of education tomorrow at 10 o'clock and owing to the summer school, this will be held in the West Market street school building.

The Swimming Pool.

Down at the swimming pool the other day a great company of boys were splashing, wading, diving, swimming, laughing, shouting, kicking, floating and tossing. It was a sight worth walking a mile to see.

Mr. Henry B. Harper, advertising manager of B. O. Evans & Company, leaves this morning for his vacation.

BERLIN ART EXHIBIT CONTAINS MANY GEMS

War Has Not Affected Character of Exhibits at Annual Art Exhibition.

Berlin, July 3.—The "Grosse Berliner Kunstausstellung" for 1915, Germany's closest equivalent to the Paris Salon, is now in full swing, and is to be open also during July and a part of August.

Those who anticipated that this year's exhibition would be a "war exhibition" are, to a certain extent, doomed to disappointment.

Such material—and naval—sketches as there are, are unquestionably the most popular, however, as the "Sold" tickets attached to them testify.

When complete the exhibition will have between 500 and 600 paintings and bits of sculpture—with the former far in the numerical ascendancy.

The committee in charge—composed of Prof. Carl Langhammer, Fritz Burger, Ernest Freese, Willi To Hall, Ernst Rantach and Prof. A. Lewinfunke, has arranged the canvases and statues effectively and with care.

Only a bit less striking but as different as day is from night is a "Portrait" by Theodor Schumacher of Charlotteburg. It is that of a woman, clad in purple and standing in a field of green.

The best of the religious pictures is "But You Remember" by Wilhelm Pape of Berlin. It shows the dead Christ, illuminated by a strong yellow light, lying on the bier within a greenish grotto, with dark clad figures at his head and foot.

The collection in many ways are two Venetian scenes by Karl Lepold. One is of the Grand Canal, the other of Santa Maria della Salute, which hundreds, probably thousands of artists have "painted to death."

Prof. Ernst Koerner's "Sunset on the Nile near Gizeh," has a wonderful combination of yellow and reddish gold.

The best of the religious pictures is "But You Remember" by Wilhelm Pape of Berlin. It shows the dead Christ, illuminated by a strong yellow light, lying on the bier within a greenish grotto, with dark clad figures at his head and foot.

The collection contains some charming aquarells, notably a "Portrait" by Fritz Reusing of Dueseldorf, the picture of a young woman in green.

Among a number of soldier portraits there are several of relatives of the artist—always with the Iron Cross and likenesses of some of the notables that the war has brought into prominence.

In the naval canvases, the ill-fated "M. S. Bouchard" is pictured twice, and the "Zemden" as often. The former, as portrayed, is far from a sinking condition, while all about her the vessels of the enemy are going down from her well-placed shots.

The soldier in almost every conceivable attitude is reproduced—from the Uhlans at Christian Speyer mounted and waiting at the altar for something that isn't apparent in the picture, to the gray-clad troops marching through the streets of Antwerp.

The exhibition contains the usual quota of purely local paintings—reproductions of Berlin life in the streets, the sea means the harbor, attractive of these is the tiny picture

SPECIAL SERVICES AT TENT LAST NIGHT

BIG ATTENDANCE IN SPITE OF RAINS JUST BEFORE THE SERVICE.

88 ARE CONVERTED Meeting Was Conducted For Benefit of Mill People Unable to Attend Other Nights.

As announced, Rev. Baxter F. McLendon preached last night for the benefit of the mill people in the city, many of them being able to attend on other nights.

The subject of the sermon was, "Rest" and was in part as follows: "My subject tonight is just the offer this old whiskey soaked, profanity using, Sabbath desecrating, devil possessed world needs and you will find it in Matthew 11:28, 'Come unto me all ye that are weak and heavy laden and I will give you rest.'"

"Now those are either the words of a lunatic. If Jesus Christ offers rest and gives it, He is a God; if He offers rest and cannot give it, He is as crazy as a lute. Suppose William Jennings Bryan or Woodrow Wilson or one of the great men of earth would stand and hold out his hand to this old adwatrodden, grief stricken, sin burdened world of ours and say what Jesus said, 'Come unto me and I will give you rest,' you would at once know that that man was a fit subject for the madhouse.

"Perhaps the most fantastic—certainly by far the most striking picture of the entire exhibition, hangs in this first room. It is 'War' by Martin Brandenburg of Berlin, a wild and almost ghastly conceit in which lurid colored devils with flaming red eyes and shimmering, iridescent bodies cavort before one's fascinated eyes.

"Now some men doubt that an unbelief is a burden. They are glad that they are sceptics; they are proud of their doubts; they rejoice in their infidelity. If that kind were to take hold of your doubts and pull them up by the roots, you will find a need at the bottom and that need is sin. But to an honest minded man, to a man of any real moral earnestness, doubt is an awful burden and he is never proud of it.

SERVICE

Service is a simple little word that may or may not mean anything; it all depends upon the person or firm or concern uttering it.

From time to time we try to call attention to the service of this store; and we are heartily sincere and deeply sincere about it.

You often see a Sale advertised, in which the term is used: "Nothing Exchanged," which interpreted, means that if you buy it and take it out of the store and later find that it does not fit you, or for some reason, it is not what you wanted you cannot exchange it. That, we think, is very poor service.

It matters not to us whether you buy from us during a Sale or not, we stand squarely back of every shoe we sell, and if for any reason it fails to give satisfaction, we will exchange your purchase or refund your money.

In other words, we are selling Satisfaction and Shoes are only the vehicle.

During this "Whirlwind Shoe Sale" we are selling shoes at remarkably low prices. Why? Because we are overstocked, and not because the shoes are of inferior quality, hence our willingness to Guarantee Satisfaction.

We are here at all times to give you the very best of Store Service.
