OVER THOUSAND LIVES LOST WHEN STEAMER OVERTURNS

those at the river when the steamer capsized. Mothers fell across the tiers of children whom they had sent away a few hours before on what was intended to be a day of pleasure.

Men had to summon all the stoical qualities they possessed to retain composure as they passed between rows of corpses looking for missing children or wives.

Yet amidst all the horrors and heartache officers of the various departments attended to the pressing duties of disposition of the dead and injured, the tracing of missing, inquiry into the cause disaster and precautions against disease from sunken bodies and the carrying of corpses by the river towards the canal locks.

Chicago, July 21.—Under the glare of searchlights tonight scores of men worked in the hull of the Eastland to remove bodies, where it is believed three still lay. Three had been taken alive from the hull four hours after the vessel capsized, but there are not believed to be any more alive there. One of those taken out was a baby, unharmed, which was caught fast in a berth and held above the water.

In the afternoon while those on land disposed of the dead, injured and rescued, the divers who had used acetylene and oxy-acetylene torches to cut their way through the steel sides into the heart of the vessel, sent up an almost constant stream of bodies. First it was a gaily dressed girl in her teens, who had been caught between a chair and a wall. Then a slight boy gathered from his fathers lifeless arms, then an old woman, who had gone aboard to enjoy the day with her grandchildren, and next a little girl with bare legs and bootees, her bright hair-ribbons sodden against her curls, then the body of an old man. And so the afternoon wore on.

Efforts were made to resuscitate all the first taken out but generally this proved unsuccessful, although hundreds of pulmonary were rushed to the scene, and physicians and spectators worked scientifically and unscientifically to bring back life.

When reports from the morgues and from the produce houses which became morgues showed seven hundred and seventy bodies, it was decided to take all dead to the second regiment armory, where the living might have a better chance to recognize their dead, but there had been few identifications tonight, not even the living baby having found its parents, who are in all probability dead.

It is many of the injured will die. Charles Williams, of New York, stripped to his underclothes, jumped in the river and saved a man, returned then and brought out two girls, and went back and got a three year old baby. There were scores of other incidents of heroism.

Acting Mayor Moorehouse tonight forbade motion pictures of the tragedy being shown in this city.

Flags are at half mast over the city, mourning is displayed, theatres closed and baseball games postponed. The churches are holding special prayers.

Other great disasters are the Titanic, April 14, 1912, when fifteen hundred and ninety-five lives were lost; the Lusitania, May 7th, last, eleven hundred lost; Embress of Ireland, May 29, 1914, a thousand and twenty-four; and General Stockton, June 15, 1904, nine hundred fifty nine lost.

Farmer's Union to Meet.
Columbia, July 24.—Program for the annual meeting of the South Carolina State Farmers' Union to be held in Columbia next Wednesday and Thursday. The work of the state union will be reviewed in the annual address Wednesday afternoon by President Babbs.

Gold Output of Alaska.
Washington, July 24.—Alaska's gold production in 1914 was valued at $15,764,280, an increase of $140,900 over the previous year figures made public today by the geological survey showed. Production of copper amounted to 21,450,628 pounds, against 21,659,958 in 1913. The total mineral output was $19,218,080 compared with $19,476,256 in 1913.

Harvard Men Sail.
New York, July 24.—The Panama Pacific steamer Kroonland carried a large number of Harvard men today when she sailed for San Francisco, via the Canal. They plan to attend the annual meeting of the Harvard clubs in August at the fair.

Harrisburgh, Pa., July 24.—Anton Martin has a job as a dog, if the revenue kept up all the year. He began his annual duties as city dog catcher a few days ago and the first five days netted him $54, at a dollar a dog.

ADVICE FOR THE NERVES

Well to Turn Habit of Overstrenuousness into Some Really Profitable Channel.

Are you strenuous? Do you go in for things for all they are worth? If you are an American-born woman I know the answer. You pitch headlong into club life, art, society, or some other pursuit because your nerves are ragged American nerves that never stop sending out impulses from dawn to dark.

There is too much pent-up vitality in all of us, and yet it is better for your everlasting beauty and poise that you expend it with discretion over a number of activities rather than exert it over one that may be a mere fancy.

I realize that this is a day of specialization, and to be a success one must adhere to one thing, but vitality is both physical and mental, and the first must not be neglected or the second will suffer. Regular walks in the open country and daily exercises would give her the perfect equilibrium and nerve control which she and her work both need.

Have you ever noticed what a lot of useless things we do when our nerves are on the ragged edge? When they are rested and well you keep calm, you enjoy life and accomplish things without leaving lines of wear on the face.

If you must be strenuous in the pursuit of some object, expend a good amount of daily enthusiasm on physical exercise. The benefits will show in your looks and health and the perfection of your work.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

WELL TO ABSTAIN FROM FOOD

Giving Stomach an Occasional Rest is Regarded as an Excellent Idea.

Abstinence from food for a short period is a very excellent method of treatment for dyspepsia and kindred digestive disturbances. A raging sick headache disappears after giving the stomach a rest—by omitting to eat only one or two meals. It is common knowledge that a day or two of starving every two or three months enables one to do better work—more mental and physical work can be accomplished without fatigue. It is advisable, however, when on a hunger strike to drink water. Copious libations of hot water—several quarts during the waking hours—will contribute to the feeling of well-being. The water may be taken a tumblerful or more every hour or two. Those persons who eat at irregular hours and partake of foods poorly cooked or of such composition as to cause indigestion will find the mild form of starving for 24 hours or longer a practice worthy of trial, for the resulting effects of the experiment will be gratifying. The rest (when one is on a hunger strike) given the digestive apparatus strengthens it and thus aids in conserving the health. A general feeling of rejuvenation invariably follows a few days' fasting.

Common Humanity.
Olympian Joves do not ride on clouds or sit on mountain tops in these days thundering commands to common mortals. Or if they do, busy folk pay little attention to them. Owsy that simply sit and blink and look unutterably wise do not fool many people.

He who never unbends to speak the simple language of the home and the fields, or hold occasional honest converse with his fellows, may be a truly great and dignified personage. He may indeed deserve and gain a wide respect by sheer force of intellect, perhaps, but we love to feel the quickening power of that divine spark we call common humanity that links mind to mind and heart to heart; that makes us comrades in a common cause. That is the thing really worth while. Without it all is "cold storage," void of the spirit that stands for the sunlight, for God's good earth and the brotherhood of man.—Breeder's Gazette.

Victoria's V. C.'s.
In presenting the Victoria Cross to soldiers actually "in the field," King George may to some extent have been influenced by the original order, which provides that under conditions stipulated, the coveted decoration shall be conferred "on the spot where the act to be rewarded by the grant of such decoration has been performed." The first presentation of the Victoria Cross, however, took place in Hyde Park in June, 1857, when Queen Victoria with her own hands pinned it on the coats of sixty-two Crimean heroes. It is recorded that the queen wore a red and white feather at the side of her round hat, a scarlet body made nearly like a military tunic, and a dark blue skirt. She was on horseback, with Prince Albert on her left, who made a profound obeisance to each wearer of the V. C.

Pigeons That Swim.
The swimming of blue pigeons—the familiar domestic bird—is the remarkable sight reported to a Dutch natural history journal. Some months ago one of the doves was thrown into the water in a fight and rescued by human aid, and since then they have become more familiar with the water. Pieces of bread noticed in shallow places evidently tempted them at first. Gaining courage, they soon learned to swim, and just before making his report the observer saw two of them sailing around like gulls a few yards from his house. When they tired of the bath they quietly flew out of the water.

MODERN PROGRESS A SHAME?

Writer in the Atlantic Disinclined to Believe That the Human Race is Advancing Rapidly.

After all, are frenzied motion and progress synonymous? Any kitten chasing its own tail might, if we were really observant, disprove for us much of our modern claim of great gain. Would any age of real progress talk so much about progress, and so loudly count its achievements? Is not much of this done to hide the inner sense of loss and lack? Perhaps it is from a far-off country childhood that I derive a persistent belief, not obscured by all the noise and dust and glamour of our time, that real growth is silent. For many and many a day I have heard this glowing talk of progress, of widening intellectual horizons, and for many a day have watched the growing wastefulness of human faces. The more thoughtful become increasingly sad, while the number of the merely stolid increases apace, as do the restless ones, with their apparent longing for distraction and change. Unfinished faces, unsatisfied faces, are familiar to us all. They lack the high record of experience greatly taken; expression that denotes profound inner life. Today we are so comfortable, so enlightened, and, with our widening philanthropy, so estimable, that we surely ought to be happy! Yet we see few satisfied faces, such as we can remember from long ago, full of inner content, faces "on which the dove of peace sat trooding," and we pause to ask what our boasted progress has to offer in compensation for the great loss that has come through the seeming gain of these later years?—From the Atlantic.

Excellent Reasons Why Child Should Even Be Encouraged to Ask Questions of All Sorts.

One father who has had some success in training his children to think and act for themselves well and wisely, declares that the secret lies in answering all their questions fully, frankly, and sympathetically, says the Youth's Companion. He tells the child everything he knows on each question that is asked, and if his knowledge is not adequate, spares no pains to make it so. The method is not always convenient for the teacher, but it results in a surprisingly large fund of information for the pupil, an ever growing desire for more, a habit of going straight to his father for enlightenment and a sense of responsibility for his own conduct.

Aside from the inconvenience, the reason why parents so commonly object to this way of dealing with the questioning habit is the fear that the child will never permit them to make any exceptions, but experience has proved that the fear is groundless. Instead of making himself disagreeable, the child usually acquiesces. He is willing for once to remain ignorant; for having learned that his father and mother are sympathetic and reasonable, he concludes that in this case it is not possible for them to explain, and so is content to obey without knowing why.
