No Chance to Try It. A man who sells shower baths on five days' trial told this story: "I sent one out to a man in the rural districts. I told him to use the shower bath five days and if at the end of this time he was not satisfied to send it back. This is the letter I received: "Your shower bath looks good and perhaps it is all right. I don't know whether it is or not because the five days of trial passed before Saturday night came around, and I didn't have a chance to try it out."—Louisville Times.

Darken Gray Hair Look Young, Pretty
Sage Tea and Sulphur Darkens So Naturally That Nobody Can Tell.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stop falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair as long as it is so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy.

U. S. Ambassador May Be Sent Home

FREDERICK C. PENFIELD Ambassador to Austria.

Ambassador Frederick C. Penfield, the American representative in Austria, may be sent home by the government of that nation as a result of the request by President Wilson that Austrian Ambassador Dumba be recalled. Washington diplomats have not yet been able to gauge the situation, but they fear this will be the result of President Wilson's action.

Revenge of the Poor Old Horse. An old horse that lay sleeping in his stall was rudely awakened by the hired man who jabbed him with a pitchfork, relates Judge. "Oh, ho, ho!" said the horse, arising stiffly. "Another day's work ahead, I suppose."

"For once," said the hired hand, who was a college graduate in disguise "your supposition is incorrect. You will be permitted to remain in your stall and rest. Your master is dead, and his funeral will be held today."

"But I am going to the funeral," said the old horse. "Why for the love of Mike," gruffly asked the hired man, "should you go when you may as well stay here and rest?" "For 20 years," replied the aged horse, "I have been wanting to attend my master's funeral, and now that the opportunity is presented, I will not be denied."

Piqued. Uncle Ozias Pike cleared his throat, shifted his quid, seized his chance to get a word in edgewise, says Judge and began "About the war—"

"About the war—" A murmur of protest checked him. But again he began. "About the war—" When a dozen determined men draw in breath with a hissing sound, such as the snake makes before it strikes, will know what it means. Uncle Ozias knew what it meant. But he did not lack courage. Again seizing his moment, he exclaimed. "About the war—" "Shet up about the war!" "Shet up about it yourselves," shouted Uncle Ozias in return. "About the war—deed-them—Smith—gals—wuz-t-giv-ye-on-the—skulehus—ot-they-won't-giv-ye none—sell—durn-ye—and—serves-ye-right!"

Their Relation. "Are you sisters?" asked the census taker of two colored women who sat on the tiny porch of their cabin, according to Everybody's Magazine. "No, sir," one of the women replied, "us ain' no block kin. You see," pointing to a rather pretentious looking house on the hill—"hit's diser way: "Sanders, up dar in de white house, he married me fust; der Sis' Lisa heah come long an' he vorsted me an' put me out heah in de cabin so he could marry her. But bimbeby he fetch her down de hill to be cabin to make room for dat young gal, Cora, he done married. No, sir, us ain' blood kin—I guess we's wives-in-law."

Speaking Softly. A Virginia farmer was driving a refractory cow down the road, and cow and driver came to a cross-roads. The man wanted the cow to go straight ahead, but the cow picked out the cross-road. A colored man was coming along the cross-road, says The Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph. "Haid hed off! Haid her off!" yelled the driver. The colored man jumped about the road and waved his arms. The cow proceeded calmly on her way. "Haid'er off! Haid'er off!" yelled the driver. "Tee tryin' ter," replied the colored man. "Speak to her! Speak to her and she'll stop!" "Good mawin' cow—good mawin'!" said the other politely.

Biliousness and Constipation. It is certainly surprising that any woman will endure the miserable feelings caused by biliousness and constipation, when relief is so easily had and at so little expense. Mrs. Chas. Peck, Gates, N. E., writes: "About a year ago I used two bottles of Chamberlain's Tablets and they cured me of biliousness and constipation." For sale by all dealers.

BLACK COTTON POSSIBLE

Luther Burbank States, However, That He Would Not Attempt to Produce It. (From the New York Times.) To an inquiry whether the production of black cotton is possible, as predicted by a Georgia planter who has succeeded in growing various shades of colored cotton, Luther Burbank telegraphed: To the Editor of The New York Times: It is somewhat doubtful if black cotton will be produced during this generation, if ever. There are yellowish and brownish cottons, and black cotton is not an absolute impossibility, by any means, though I would not undertake its production myself at any price. My congratulations to the man who shall produce black cotton. Luther Burbank. Santa Rosa, Cal., Sept. 11.

Qualified. Germany, always "well provided with lotteries, was just before the great war came on full of expeditions. Almost every city had one, says The New York Evening Post. Connected with a certain exposition was a lottery which offered as prizes to the lucky tickets entitling the bearer to a free voyage on a Zepppelin. A good citizen of Munich won such a prize and was the happy possessor of such a ticket when the war gave the Zeppelin something better (or worse, to do than take sight-seers on excursions. The air voyage was off. As it happened the citizen who was assigned to the second Landstrum, decided instead of waiting for his call to volunteer for the airships corps. "Have you," asked the recruiting officer, "any special equipment for service in this department?" The Volunteer solemnly handed over his lottery ticket. "If you please," he said, "I am the possessor of this free pass to the air."

A Gift of a Mountain. (From the New York Press.) Representative Kent of California has given to the people of that state a big section of Mount Tamalpais which he bought some years ago to prevent the destruction of its natural attractions by a lumbering interest. It includes the Muir Woods of splendid old redwood, and a wonderful natural amphitheater. Mr. Kent tried to have this land made a National reserve; falling in which he bought it and now gives it to his state. In the amphitheater there is produced once each year some notable theatrical production: "Abraham and Isaac," the first year; then "Twelfth Night," and a year later "Sakuntala"; this year it was "Rip Van Winkle." From 4,000 to 10,000 people have each year climbed the 2,000 feet of mountain trail, which leads to nature's amphitheater to see this production. With the gift of the theater to the state it is hoped that an annual fête may be developed not unlike the "Oberammergau" presentation, which has become famed throughout the world. In any event, Representative Kent has done something for his state very much worth while.
