

A. S. JOHNSTON IS VISITING THIS CITY

COMES TO ANDERSON ON OFFICIAL BUSINESS TRIP

TO MAKE REPORT

He is Secretary of South Carolina Charities and Correction Commission Recently Created.

Albert S. Johnstone, secretary of the South Carolina Charities and Correction commission, which was created by the last legislature, is in the city for several days on official business. Mr. Johnstone arrived yesterday morning and will be here for probably two days more. After that he will go to Greenville. Mr. Johnstone said that he would make public a report as the result of his investigations here, but probably would not have time to write the report until after he reached Greenville.

Mr. Johnstone spent yesterday inspecting the city guardhouse and one of the county convict camps, the one in charge of Capt. Carl McConnell. He has three institutions yet to inspect, the county jail, the county home or poor house and the other county convict camp.

Mr. Johnstone is an old Anderson boy, having been born and reared here. He is a son of Dr. A. J. Johnstone. For the past several years, however, he has been living away from Anderson. He took up his present work upon his election to the office by the members of the board of Charities and Correction last spring. He has an assistant, Mr. A. D. Oliphant.

Mary Miller Earle has let the contract to Mr. J. L. Master for the erection of a two story building on her lot on Church street, the work to begin immediately. The building will be erected at a cost of approximately $6,500.

The plans call for a two story red brick building, with two store rooms down stairs and a basement under one of these, the front part of the second story to be divided into offices and the rear to be used as a hallway. The plans were drawn by Casey and Fant, architects of this city.

Her Own Version.

A little girl in Connecticut, aged two and a half years was allowed to go to church Christmas Sunday on condition she would not talk out loud, but could join in the singing, says The Detroit Free Press.

The first hymn happened to be "Joy to the World," song to "Old Antioch." She recognized the tune and felt her opportunity had come. But the only words associated with that tune were not the words of Isaac Watts. This made no difference, and the congregation was convinced to hear a high, childish voice ring clear above the voices around her: "There was a man in our town and he was wondrous wise. He jumped into a bramble bush and scratched out both his eyes."

Especially effective was the repeat of the line when, instead of hearing: "And heaven, and heaven and nature sing," then heard, "And scratched, and scratched out both the eyes."

At Salem Church.

There will be preaching at Salem church Sunday morning at 11:30 by Rev. W. B. Hawkins. All members are requested to attend for church conference will be held and a pastor elected.

FARMERS ARE SELLING COTTON IN HARTWELL

MARKET THERE MUCH BETTER THAN IT IS HERE

A COTTON TRAIN

Has Been Established By Mr. Elias McGee—Will Haul 50 Bales Today.

Mr. Elias McGee, one of the most extensive farmers of this country who lives near Starr, yesterday bought 15 bales of cotton from his neighbors and carried them to Hartwell where he sold them. Mr. McGee stated last night that he bought most of the cotton at 10 1-4 cents per pound and sold it at 10 1-2, a profit of about $1.25 a bale.

Mr. McGee stated that today he would haul about 50 bales of cotton to the Georgia market, buying it as he did that yesterday. He also stated that he intended to keep this up all during the fall. He has teams of his own which are idle at this time of year and a kind of cotton train will be operated.

No one will blame Mr. McGee for doing this for it is perfectly legitimate and he can make a reasonable profit out of the business. The farmers in his section will be glad of the opportunity to sell their cotton on the ground at the same price that they would get if brought to Anderson because they will not have to go to the trouble and expense of hauling it.

A reporter of The Intelligencer yesterday in conversation with a prominent business man of the city was told that for a number of years the Anderson cotton market had not been on an equal plane with that at Hartwell, Ga., and that there had been much complaint on this score. Every year thousands of bales of Anderson grown cotton are taken to Hartwell to be sold, the market there being better than it is here at Anderson.

Another man stated that the reason cotton brought a better price at Hartwell was because the staple of North Georgia grown cotton was better than this on this side of the Savannah River. He stated, however, that Carolina cotton taken to the Georgia

SNAKE STORIES FROM GEORGIA

Atlanta, Sept. 16.—Some of the biggest rattlesnakes are being killed this fall in Georgia that this state has ever seen, and they are said to be more numerous than in many years. F. O. Wade, of Cordele, killed a big rattler that was five feet ten inches long and had nineteen rattles and a button, the largest of those reported. He shot the snake in the head, being unwilling to get into close quarters with a club.

Walter Pritchard, a Cobb county farmer, killed a rattler four feet long near the Fulton county line on the river car line.

W. M. Strickland, near the Savannah river above Fdmond county killed a rattler that was as large round as his arm, but which had lost its rattles and part of its tail in a fight with some animal or perhaps in a trap.

market always brought just as good price as that raised over there. He said that evidently there was something wrong somewhere.

BUSINESS SURE TO BE LIVELY.

During the last thirteen months and more the people have been economizing. Many a woman postponed for a year the buying of a dress that she coveted. Many a man "went without" the suit of clothes that he needed last winter. Truth to say, thousands of people have been more economical than was actually necessary. They were not nearly so "strapped" as they thought they were. That cotton is selling for ten cents or thereabouts is a fact that dawns rather slowly in the popular mind. Some weeks will pass before the people discover that the dress and the suit of clothes can be afforded this winter. Fact is the people are not at the moment allowing themselves to consider that the new clothes are necessary. The season is in its infancy. In a few weeks they will begin to realize that there is money in their pockets. This isn't mere prophecy—it's a certainty based on cotton and cotton seed together worth around $65 a bale. It is not for the editorial department to discuss advertising. Nowadays the brick merchants and the lively advertising solicitors are all experts in the art or science of publicity. They can talk all around mere editors and make them "feel small." Besides, your clever "ad man" in these times can write all around an editor. Nevertheless, we think we can discern the certainty of money spending by the people in a few weeks. There will not be extravagance but the promise is that the people will not be poor and in despair and they are not likely to be afraid to buy what they need. Much of what they didn't buy last winter they must and can buy now. One kind of business man will wait till business shall be active, very active. Then he will start an advertising campaign which will educate the public in regard to what he has to sell about the time the people's autumn and winter buying campaign is ended. Another kind of business man will advertise ahead of the business activity. The procession is coming in the distance. It is approaching a point where roads radiate in many directions towards as many mercantile concerns. Some of these houses already have their signs up, the people can read them from afar and they will not be uncertain about the road to take. Some things about advertising even an editor may know.—The Columbia State Editorial.
