IMPRESSIVE SERMON BY DR. J. E. WHITE

PREACHED AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH SUNDAY NIGHT

AIMS UNREALIZED

Nothing so Saddening as Careers Broken Short of Their Purpose and Aims Unrealized.

Dr. John E. White's sermon Sunday evening at the First Baptist church was especially impressive. The subject was, "The Bent of a Soul." Text: For as much as it is in thine heart to build an house for my name, thou didst well that it was in thine heart. 2nd Kings VIII:18. There is nothing so saddening as the record of careers broken short of their purpose, of lives that ended with great aims unrealized. The Bible history is full of such disappointments. Abraham with his adventurous faith seeking a country for an inheritance dying without owning a single inch of land in Canaan; Jacob, his grandson, cherishing the same passion, but ending his life a stranger in a strange land; Joseph living for the same great ambition but "A coffin in Egypt for his end; Moses almost tortured with desire for Canaan's bright and happy land, giving his life utterly to its pursuit. He did great work. He created a nation. He led them to the brink of Jordan. From a mountain top he was permitted to see "The Promised Land in Moab." These all tasted the bitterness of unrealized aims. Down the ages to this present hour this seems to have been the fate of great souls. Buckley, the historian, had the passion to write a consummate interpretation of history. One volume was completed. In the midst of his great task he died, pathetically crying "Oh my poor book! my book!" Lord Shaftesbury told Francis Power Cobb that he could not bear to die as he did, leaving his work for the poor girls of England unfinished. The last words of Cecil Rhodes who dreamed and toiled for an Anglo Saxon empire in South Africa were: "So much I had to do, so little have I done." Wm. Gilmore Sims of South Carolina left as his dying request that a broken shaft should be placed over his grave and these words carved upon it: "Here lies one who after a reasonable life, distinguished chiefly by unceasing labors, has left his best work undone." In this connection one thinks of Timrod and Lanier who did not live out their ministry or clearly sing their true, true thoughts, utterly bodied forth their life. As I stood by the grave of my brilliant friend, Dr. Howard Lee Jones, the pathos of this thing swept over me like a storm.

David's Ambition.
David, the shepherd king of Israel, is a supreme illustration of frustrated ambition. It was his passion to build a house for the Lord. He was a statesman, and a warrior, and a poet, but it was not for these things he lived. His life's passion was to be an architect—a builder of a great temple to God. He pored and prayed over plans of beauty and art. He laid it on his conscience as an intolerable wrong, that while he lived in a house of cedar, God's house was only a tent. The Temple was on his heart, the desire of his life, the work for which he felt himself appointed. But he went to his grave in sorrow and disappointment. He did not build the house of his dreams. Now if this were all the fact, we could weep with David bitter tears, and over all these lives or broken purpose throw the mantle of our pity. But this is not all the fact, and my message is for all sad hearts which have David's experience of failure. Years afterwards when the temple was rising in splendor under the hand of David's son, the record was made that in his last hours God had comforted David and blessed him for what had been in his heart, but the Lord said unto David, "Whereas I was in thine heart to build an house for my home thou didst well that it was in thine heart."

The Blessing of Unrealized Aims.
To every man who is trying to do something worth while in this world, disappointment, and the sense of failure, are inevitable. As we begin with high hope and labor manfully through many years only at last to say: "Alas for all my well pitched plans I have not attained to them." But is this the true view of noble failures? What a comfort it is to know that we cannot fail really if we have joined our hearts sincerely and linked our lives passionately to a holy ambition. God takes care of every career centered in a noble purpose. David did not fail because he had it in his heart to build a house for the Lord. Nor will any man fail who cherishes in his soul a good work. He may not see his hopes accomplished, but striving to achieve the best, his labor will flow back in blessing upon his own character. What he does achieve will be the foundation on which others will build. God keeps the books and David gets credit for the temple after all because it was in his heart to build it. It was counted unto him in Heaven.

Do you remember those great lines of Browning's:
"All we have willed or hoped or dreamed of good shall exist.
Not its semblance, but itself; no beauty, nor good, nor power
Whose voice has gone forth, but each survives for the melodist
When eternity affirms the conception of an hour"

DEATHS

Mrs. Margaret Eveline Archer.
At the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. B. Lewis, on South Main street, Mrs. Margaret Eveline Archer, widow of the late W. M. Archer, passed away on last Sunday morning at 9:15 o'clock. Mrs. Archer had been in delicate health for quite a while, but her death was a surprise to all when it came. She had reached the advanced age of 89 years and had been confined to her room for some months, although at times she was able to be out, and during the summer had spent several weeks as the guest of the family of Mrs. T. A. Archer on North Main street.

It is safe to say that there have not lived many people in Anderson who were more greatly beloved than was this estimable woman. She was a strong character naturally, and her life had been literally suffused by the grace of God and transformed into one of spiritual grandeur and beauty. It has often been remarked by those who knew her well that she was the very embodiment of gentleness and patience. She was never known to murmur at any experience to which she was subjected. Physical suffering, deprivation and sorrow but made her to shine in the beauty of her God-like character. She leaves as a heritage to her loved ones this precious memory, and it is one that it greatly prized by all who knew her.

The following children besides a host of grandchildren, great grandchildren and one great-great grandchild survive her: Mrs. Margaret E. Reid of Augusta, Ga.; Mrs. J. B. Lewis of Anderson; Mrs. A. S. Todd of Manning and Mr. John B. Archer of Atlanta, Ga.

In the presence of a great throng of people the funeral services were conducted Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the home of Mr. J. B. Lewis on South Main street by Rev. Dr. W. H. Frazer, assisted by Rev. Dr. W. Dodge. The body was carried to the cemetery of the First Presbyterian church and laid to rest upon the premises of the church of which she was for so many years a faithful and consistent member. The elders of the First and Central Presbyterian churches acted as pall-bearers.

The high, that proved too high, the heroic for earth too hard. The passion that left the ground to lose itself in the sky. Are music sent up to God by the lover and the bard; Enough that he heard it once; we shall hear it by and by.

The Bent of a Soul.
After all, we judge men by what is in their hearts. The poor external trappings of life are burned away before eyes of unerring insight, that look beneath the surface into those depths of the soul where is the real man. It is not the brains a man has in his head, it is not the skill he has in his hands, it is not the books he studied or read, it is not the fortune in money or land. Many a miser is smart. It is not what a man can say, nor what he can do, that makes his place in our memories. It is what he is in his heart. It is not the heights he has scaled, nor the medal he wears, nor the fact that he is aided by many, as a success, that makes him welcome wherever he goes. It is not the glory that a man shows on the outside that intitles him to our reverence. It is the glory that is hid in his heart. The question that will be asked every man at the judgment is not what did you say, nor what did you profess to believe, but what did you want most, what was your passion, what did you live for, what was your heart's desire, what was the bent of your soul? When our bodies drop away to the dust, all that will be left of us to be laid before God for judgment, will be the size and sort of souls we are. If you bend an arrow to the left and send it against a shield it will glance to the left and continue its course to the left according to the power of the bow-string. If you bend the arrow to the right it will glance to the right and continue its course to the right. It is so with a human soul bent wrong. Its point turned from God and good, when it leaves the body for its eternal flight and strikes

PLANTERS BANK OF STARR ORGANIZED

E. P. VANDIVER PRESIDENT,
AND C. C. JONES
CASHIER

OPEN THURSDAY

As Soon as Charter is Received From Secretary of State—
Capital is $10,000.

The organization of the Planters Bank of Starr was completed yesterday and officers and a board of directors were elected. It will be remembered that this bank was recently capitalized with a stock of $10,000 and that Mr. E. P. Vandiver and Mr. C. C. Jones were those applying for the commission.

Mr. E. P. Vandiver was selected as president yesterday, Mr. C. C. Jones of Starr as vice president and cashier and Mr. M. A. Chapman as assistant cashier.

Mr. Vandiver has been associated with the Peoples bank of this city for a number of years and is well known throughout this section. Mr. Jones is one of the most successful business men in Anderson county and has hundreds of friends. He is especially adapted to serving as cashier since he is so widely known around Starr. Mr. Chapman comes from the Farmers bank of Iva and is a young business man of ability and tact.

A board of directors were chosen yesterday as follows: Messrs. C. C. Jones, L. E. Dean, E. P. Vandiver, T. Frank Watkins, Lee G. Holleman, T. W. McConnelly, J. T. Watson, George M. Tolly and J. J. Major.

The bank is ready to open up for business as soon as the charter is received, which will be about Thursday.

BIG MEETING OF RED MEN

The meeting of Generosoteo Tribe, No. 30, Improved Order of Red Men, held at the Orr Mills Saturday night was largely attended, and was pronounced as being one of the best meetings of the tribe ever held. The Adoption and Warrior degrees were conferred upon A. N. Day, Tom Bolt, Thad Herring, Bob Teasley, J. L. S. Searard, H. H. Acker, K. P. Smith, Winston Smith and G. B. Greene. The tribe will meet in special convention tonight at 8 o'clock to confer the Chief degree upon these same candidates.

The degree work Saturday night was done by the degree team of Grey Eagle tribe from Williamston. This tribe won out in competitive work as being the best Red Man Degree team in the state.

Reception Saturday.
Every patron of the Lebanon high school and member of the Improvement association is cordially invited to the reception to be given in the hall Saturday, the second of October, from four to six o'clock. Mrs. A. J. Smith, President.

the buckler of God, it will go the left for evermore, into a permanence of sorrow which is destiny; but if a soul is bent toward God and good its point turned in a heavenly direction, its purposes aimed and fixed upon God likeness, it will surely go to its appointed glory and continue in increasing immortalities of perfection.

"One ship drives east and another drives west, With the self same winds that blow, 'Tis the set of the sails And not the gales Which sends them the way they go.

"Like the winds of the sea are the Winds of fate, As we voyage along through life, 'Tis the set of the soul That decides its goal, And not the calm or the strife."
