TRUSTEE'S SALE

By virtue of the power given me by deed of trust executed to me by R. F. Hall the fifth day of February, 1915, recorded in the office of the clerk of the court the twenty-third day of February, 1915, in book L L L L, page 473-474, I will sell at public outcry before the court house door at Anderson, South Carolina, sale day in November, 1915, the following described real estate, the property of R. F. Hall, to wit:

I. All that lot of land, containing 26.57 acres, more or less, lying on the South side of the road from Orr Cotton Mills to Keys Spring, and bounded on the North by said road, on the East by lot number sixty-nine of the said Hall lands, heretofore sold, on the South and the West by lands of S. C. Major, and others.

II. All that lot of land, containing 11.18 acres, lying to the North of the road from Orr Mills to Keys Spring, and bounded by streets laid out on the said lands, being bounded on the East by Orr Cotton Mills, on the North by lot number three, on the West by street, and on the South by road from the Orr Cotton Mills to Keys Spring.

III. All that lot of land, containing 12.30 acres, immediately North of lot last above described, and bounded on the North by lot number two, on the South by the public road which divides it from the Orr Cotton Mill land, on the South by street which divides it from lot number four, and on the West by street.

IV. Also, lot number two, containing 11.50 acres, bounded on the North by lands of Mrs. Nettie Burdine, on the East by road to city, which divides it from lot number one and Orr Cotton Mill's land, on the South by lot number three, and on the West by street which divides it from lot number five.

V. Lot number two, containing 2.56 acres, more or less, being in shape a triangle, bounded on the North by lands of J. F. and J. M. Evans, on the East by Orr Cotton Mill's land, and on the West by road to the city of Anderson, which divides it from lot number two.

VI. Lot number five, containing 8.52 acres, more or less, bounded on the North by lands of Mrs. Nettie Burdine, on the East by street which divides it from lots three and two, on the South by lot sold to J. P. Catlett, and on the West by lot sold to J. P. Catlett.

VII. Lot number six, containing 3.85 acres, more or less, bounded on the North by street which divides the land from and sold to J. P. Catlett, on the East by street, and on the South and West by road from Orr Mills to Keys Spring.

VIII. That lot of land containing 19.20 acres, known as the Whitner land, lying on Whitner and Byrum Creeks, bounded by lands of Mrs. Nettie Burdine, Mrs. Althea Orr, Mrs. Kate R. Whitner, W. N. Webb, and Byrum's Creek and Whitner's Creek.

IX. All that certain lot, and storehouse thereon, situate at the corner of Greenville and Ella streets, in the city of Anderson, S. C., conveyed to R. F. Hall by E. S. Moore by deed dated 3 June, 1905, and recorded in clerk's office in deed book D D D, page 672.

X. That storehouse and lot situate on South Main Street, in the city of Anderson, beginning on South Main Street at the Northern corner of a lot owned by D. C. Brown, and running along the line of Main Street 26 feet 8 inches, more or less, to a corner, thence along the line of storeroom formerly owned by S. M. Orr parallel with the line of the lot formerly belonging to John O'Donnell's estate, now owned by D. C. Brown, 140 feet.

GERMAN SCARCITY OF COTTON

Has 500,000 Bales, But Belief Is That It Is Insufficient for a Year.

(Paris Dispatch to New York Sun.) Lazare Weiller, whose son has just won the war cross in recognition of his services as aviator, has sent a letter to The Temps upon his return from a recent trip to Switzerland in which he says he was able to ascertain that Germany evidently has not yet reached the end of her reserves in men and raw material.

German commercial travelers, Mr. Weiller asserts, seemed as numerous as ever in the Swiss towns, and he adds that Germany is still manufacturing more steel than all the allies together.

"India rubber is scarce in Germany," he continues. "The price is 10 times that in England. Wool too is lacking. Cotton will play the most important role. At the outbreak of hostilities all the spinning and weaving works in the invaded regions were transformed into cotton manufacturing, but these and the works in Germany proper are allowed only one-third of the usual output, and that only for army purposes.

"The remainder of the stock is used in the output of munitions. When Prince von Buelow left Rome there were 500,000 bales lying in Italian ports, chiefly in Genoa. Much of this was sent to Switzerland when a rupture between Austria and Italy became imminent.

"There are now 50,000 bales in Switzerland, most of the remainder being still in Italy. Investigation showed that Germany at the end of August possessed 330,000 bales held by the spinners and 180,000 bales held by the government. It is doubtful, however, whether this amount will be sufficient for another year of war."

Missed Something.

Mrs. McGreevey was a dinner guest one evening where a noted explorer was the attraction. Being of a somewhat languid turn of mind she paid more attention to her dinner than to the conversation. After dinner was over she turned to one of the guests and asked: "What was that tiresome old explorer talking about?" "Progressive Patagonia," was the reply. "Really?" asked Mrs. McGreevey, with sudden interest. "And how do you play it?"—New York Times.

Her Version.

Mistress—From your references, I see you've had four places in the last month.
 Servant—Yes; that shows how much in demand I am.

ALLIES DEPEND ON ELEMENTS TO HELP FORCE DARDANELLES

London, Sept. 30.—(Associated Press Correspondence.)—The hope that the forcing of the Dardanelles might be accomplished by the middle of October, when the weather and the tides are likely to become more formidable, has been often discussed wherever British officers meet. Not that there will be any diminution of effort after that time, but there is a full realization that conditions will then become far less favorable.

An observer who has been in the Marmora vicinity for 30 years, making close meteorological records, while admitting that the winter is not so agreeable for military achievements, describes what sort of weather may be expected and gives these general observations, in the Westminster Gazette.

"To those who have relatives or friends at the Dardanelles, let them send good strong warm stockings for the men besides the usual waistcoats and mufflers, and as for creature comforts, sweets, chocolate, and tobacco, especially cigarettes. It is the Turks who will suffer from the cold; they cannot stand it long, and being fed generally mainly on bread, they have no stamina to meet cold weather. Most of their troops come from warm climates."

November, according to this scientist, has a cold snap or two generally in the last week, but many people call it the most glorious month of the year. The battle of Lae Bourgas was fought three years ago on the fifth, sixth and seventh of that month, in a storm of raging rain and sleet, succeeded by several nights of hard frost, which caused the death of many a wounded and neglected soldier. Another year there was a heavy snowstorm on November 16-17; yet after such setbacks the weather usually recovers and grows warmer.

No real winter need be looked for, he says, till the middle of January when there are heavy snows which have been known to lie six weeks, and with them come the gales which may make the supply from the sea a difficult task. He points out that of late years no great cold has visited the Marmora though in 1893 the Golden Horn from the inner bridge of Constantinople was frozen so people walked about on the ice, and flogs were about for several weeks, this being an exceptional season. Winter is said to have finished always by the middle of April.

That this naturalist has confined his observations to land and not to sea conditions may make him more optimistic about the climate which the British seem to regard as likely to increase their difficulties materially. One writer with the expedition has commented on the general expectation that there will be very arduous work for the destroyers, trawlers and picket boats, as well as for the larger ships when the gales begin to come up out of the southwest, and that undoubtedly is perfectly understood by all in charge of the operations.

On the other hand, the defenders of the Straits are making the most of the weather probabilities to encourage their supporters. For example, the Berlin Lokalanzeiger reports that the Turks are expecting another furious attack "before the equinoctial storms arrive to prevent absolutely the continuance of the campaign till spring." The same paper says the equinoctial storms in this region, particularly in the Saros Bay, are very severe, adding "the allies appreciate that even one south storm which is inevitable, will be sufficient to prevent the landing of supplies and ammunition, the transfer of wounded to the ships and the carrying of water to the troops, for only the most powerful ships by the use of their power can withstand such a storm as every winter brings in Saros Bay, while the use of lighters and small boats is out of the questions for days or weeks at a time."
