BERLIN ENFORCING STRINGENT LAWS ON SALE OF LIQUORS

Berlin, Sept. 30.—(Associated Press Correspondence)—The restrictions regarding the sale of distilled liquors in Greater Berlin, which were proposed in August by Police President von Jagow to the government authorities, have gone into effect. They are so drastic that landlords and distillers are in despair, and the general public feels that its indulgence in "schnaps" and similar drinks is to be very largely curtailed. The rules now laid down forbid the sale of distilled liquor except between 9 a. m. and 9 p. m.—the sale in restaurants having women waitresses and bar maids—the sale in "automatic" restaurants and the sale to drunken persons. The liquor may be sold only for cash and must be drunk on the premises. Only casual examination of the new rules does not reveal how drastic they are. Relatively few persons, because of the late working and eating hours in Berlin, have either desire or opportunity to indulge in spirituous liquors until after the new closing hour. Secondly, scores of reputable restaurants and cafes now have female employees in place of the waiters who have been drawn into the army, and therefore these cafes are barred from making their former profitable sales. Thirdly, the provision that the liquor must be drunk on the premises deals a blow to a bottle trade that heretofore has assumed considerable proportions, especially in the less pretentious cafes and saloons. Practically the only provision to which there is no objection is that governing sales to drunken persons. President von Jagow's suggestion of the restriction of distilled liquors included the provision that none should be sold after 7 p. m. and that only liquor of a comparatively high grade and cost might be dispensed. The distillers and liquor dealers breathed easier when they heard that the authorities did not favor anything so drastic, but all their hopes vanished when the authorities finally did make public their new regulations. It is asserted on every side that many cafes that do not specialize in beer—the so-called "wine rooms"—will now have to close at 9 instead of at 11 or 1 o'clock, and that many of them will have to go out of business. These cafe proprietors allege that they cannot understand the new order nor the reason for it. For months now it has been forbidden to serve soldiers or sailors with distilled liquors, and they say that therefore there is no military need for the rules. They maintain that there is a great sufficiency of liquor for army, medical and hospital needs, now on hand, so that there is no necessity for extra measures to conserve the supply in this drastic way. Also, they assert with the utmost positiveness that Berlin suffers not at all from any undue indulgence in liquor, which would require correction through restriction of the supply.

DELINQUENT GIRLS SUBJECT OF REPORT TO PRISON ASSOCIATION

Oakland, Cal., Oct. 13.—Delinquent girls are products of heredity and environment and a majority of them can be reclaimed for society according to a report which Kenosha Sessions, president of the women's association of the American Prison Association, made today to the convention of the parent body in this city. President Sessions, who is superintendent of the Indiana Girls' schools at Indianapolis, said in part: "With very few exceptions we find the delinquent girl comes of either markedly vicious and immoral parents, or of generations of impoverished, unpurposeful people, who feel that they have done well when they have kept the wolf from the door and have kept out of the hands of the police; people who feel that the sacred duties of fatherhood and motherhood have been fully met when they have provided food and raiment for their children during the first twelve or fourteen years of their lives. The fathers are often drunker and grossly immoral; many times the mothers are equally bad. In a goodly percent of the cases where the mothers are not bad they are weak in will power, helpless in discipline, the kind of mothers whose children soon override their feeble desire for them to do right. "This is the type of intact home from which our girls come. The intact home, however, is by no means in the majority. In a large percent of the cases the domestic relations are disturbed. The father and mother are both dead, or one is dead with the consequent step-parent, with whom the girl does not agree, or the parents are separated with one or both remarried, and, as a consequence, the girl may have anywhere from none to four parents, all either vicious or inefficient." Mentally, the report said, at least fifty per cent of the girls received at the Indianapolis institutions are "markedly sub-normal," and unable to pass beyond the fourth grade although kept in school indefinitely. Temperamentally the girls were declared to be anything but stolid. "They are industrious, willing, kind, generous, loving, longing for love and praise, full of kindly affection for which there has been no wholesome outlet," the report stated. At twelve or fourteen years of age girls of this stamp, bred in the environment noted, were declared "easy prey" for "that reversionary beast known as society." "Organized society should have taken some note of these girls earlier; when they were babes in their mothers' arms," said Mrs. Sessions. "What a splendid opportunity for some good woman, with intelligence, poise and dignity, to come into the life of the untrained, unpurposeful mother and to teach her the beauty of womanhood, the tremendous responsibility and wonderful sacredness of motherhood." The report then described the methods by which the correctional school inculcates ideals of right living and thinking and told of the "encouraging percent" of girls who have rehabilitated themselves. The problem of the girls who are too poorly balanced to grasp the ideals of the training but who must be turned out of the school when they become of age was then considered. It was suggested that for such girls independent institutions should be established "where they will have the protection of the state as long as they live, or at any rate during the child-bearing period." These places, it was pointed out, could be made self-supporting through the work of the inmates.

BELGIUM SALVATION ARMY Major Wallace Winchell of Jersey City Picked by Gen. Bramwell Booth to Lead It.

(The New York Sun.) Major Wallace Winchell who has had charge of the Salvation Army Industrial Home in Jersey City for 10 years, has been appointed by international headquarters to take command of the Salvation Army work in Belgium. He will sail next Saturday on the American liner New York. The major will go to Washington today to arrange for passports and he hopes to arrange for passports and he hopes to see President Wilson. In selecting a commander for the Belgian work, Gen. Bramwell Booth, commander in chief of the Salvation Army, confined himself to officers of rank who were born in America and who were known to be thorough going Americans. Major Winchell's success in army work in this country had made him so conspicuous that the general didn't have much trouble in picking his man. While the major is abroad the Salvation Army Industrial Home and the extensive relief work which he has been carrying on in Jersey City will be in charge of Mrs. Winchell. She will be assisted by Ensign H. S. Burlew and Capt. Samuel Bateley. Mrs. Winchell will be aided in the relief work by Richard Stevens of Castle Point, who is acting as treasurer. Major Winchell was born in Oswego county, N. Y., and was brought up in Michigan. He joined the Salvation Army 20 years ago and was the man who opened the Salvation Army industrial colony in California. His industrial home in Jersey City is one of the prides of the army in this country.

Son—Yes, sir, but my tongue isn't as long as my arm.—Congregationalist Due Caution. "Bobby" inquired the mother, according to The Ladies' Home Journal, "did you wash your face before the music teacher came?" "Yes'm." "And y'r hands?" "Yes'm." "And your ears?" "Well, ma," said Bobby judicially, "I washed the one that would be next to her." Anderson Tonight, Ladies Free. Watch for the Football "Specials" in Friday's paper. They will be well worth while. "I'll Never Give You an Ad for 'Specials' again for Saturday."

Thus spoke Max Geisberg yesterday about the result of an ad he carried in The Intelligencer last Saturday morning. He stated further that crowds came in, saying: "We came to get some of those 'Specials' we saw in The Intelligencer this morning." Of course, Mr. Geisberg was joking about not advertising any "Specials" again in The Intelligencer on Saturday; this was just his way of telling the Ad Man that he had gotten unusually fine results from that one ad.

The circulation of The Intelligencer is such that if a merchant advertises bona fide bargains, and the people have confidence in that merchants advertisements, the results will be sure and certain.
