Has the Cake Walk Come Back?

The cake walk would seem to have come back for another run, to judge from the hit it made with the brilliant throng at a Chicago hotel the other night. Miss Wilma Wynn, the little southern girl who less than three years ago went from her Norfolk home in quest of a career, directed the dance. In an exhibition number with John Clay, Miss Wynn attempted the old fashioned cake walk, and from that moment until the close of the evening's festivities nothing but this style dance was in order.

Quote Confucius In Controversy Over Monarchical Rule

Peking, Sept. 23.—(Associated Press Correspondence.)—Confucius looms large in the controversy which is being hotly waged in China over the monarchical plan. President Yuan Shikai and his supporters are constantly quoting the ancient sage. Advocates of the republic are also using Confucius freely, and arguing that the change to monarchy would be a violation of a Confucian oath and consequently would discredit the teachings of the great moral leader in the eyes of the world.

Plans are now in preparation by government officials for the erection of a great bronze statue of Confucius in Peking. At present the ancient sage is represented in the various temples only by pictorial images or sacred tablets. These do not create the vivid impression of the great teacher which the Chinese officials desire, and the movement is under way to place bronze statues of him in Confucian temples throughout the republic.

Mandates have recently been issued by President Yuan Shi-kai strengthening the position of Confucius' teachings in Chinese schools, and the society for the preservation of peace has constantly quoted the sayings of Confucius concerning loyalty to the emperor in support of the restoration of the monarchy.

Four Confucian canonical books are taught in Chinese schools, and no students who are not thoroughly versed in them are regarded as well educated. Quotations from these books, written nearly twenty-five hundred years ago, are frequently used in nearly all governmental communications. The advocates of absolute concentration of government in an emperor are especially fond of such Confucian excerpts as this: "To no one but the supreme head of the empire does it belong to disturb the established religious and social institutions, to introduce new forms of government, to change the form and use of language."

"CASCARETS" BEST IF HEADACHY, BILIOUS, SICK, CONSTIPATED

Best for liver and bowels, bad breath, bad colds, sour stomach.

Get a 10-cent box. Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with cold, always trace this to torpid liver, delayed fermenting food in the bowels. Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system, is absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain there is congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache. Cascarets immediately cleanse the food and foul gases, take this poison bile from the liver and carry out all the congested waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. If you feel your bowels clogged, your head clear, stomach sweet, breath light, complexion rosy and your liver and bowels regular for months.

Public does it belong to disturb the established religious and social institutions, to introduce new forms of government, to change the form and use of language? "At the present day throughout the empire, carriages wheels all have the same standard form and size, all writing is written with the same characters, and in all the relations of life all recognize the same established principles."

Public speeches concerning the monarchical movement, letters to the newspapers and editorials in support of the restoration of the empire are filled with quotations concerning the five duties of universal obligation outlined by Confucius and the three moral qualities by which the sage said these duties must be carried out. The first of these duties are those between ruler and subject. Next are the duties between father and son. Then the duties between husband and wife. The fourth duties are between elder brother and younger, and the fifth duties are those in the intercourse between friends. Intelligence, moral character and courage, in the order named, are the three moral qualities upon which Confucius laid great stress. Of these he says: "They are the three universal recognized moral qualities of men. It matters not in what way men come to the exercise of these moral qualities, the result is one and the same."

"Some men are born with the knowledge of these moral qualities; some acquire it as the result of education; some acquire it as the result of hard experience. But when the knowledge is acquired, it comes to one and the same thing. Some exercise these moral qualities naturally and easily; some because they find it advantageous to do so; some with effort and difficulty. But when the achievement is made it comes to one and the same thing."

The effort to strengthen the influence of Confucianism is apparent throughout the vernacular press of China. Scholars are urged to "halt his tomb at Chufu, and to have a careful reading of his classics is advised. Young men are told that Confucius began gathering disciples around him at the age of twenty-two. His services as minister of crime are reviewed, and the marvellous abolition of crime under his direction is emphasized. His great success as a teacher in the later years of his life when he gathered three thousand disciples around him is stressed, and readers are constantly reminded of the enduring fame of this teacher who had the proper ideals of government."

Personal Appearance Counts

Kansas girls who desire to be stenographers and draw a salary from the state are wondering if they should take a course with a beauty doctor before taking the civil service examination. The rules of the commission as announced show that personal appearance and demeanor count for 30 points. Stenography, typewriter, grammar, spelling and penmanship between them count for the other 70 points.

But the girls are figuring proficient in all those and yet failing to get on the eligible list because they are dowdy, because their hair is not done in the latest style, because a smudge is run over at the heel, or because they are too trackled.
