JUDGE LETS CHILD CHOOSE GUARDIAN

Greenville, Oct. 30.—Pretty ten-year-old Gladys Burnett, with glossy red hair and bright blue eyes, was the feature of the habeas corpus proceedings brought by her grandmother, Mrs. Martha F. Burnett for her custody, which case was argued this morning before Judge Memminger, in the court of sessions. The little girl, who is an orphan, had been cared for during the past year by her aunt, Mrs. T. W. Belcher of Greer, and Mrs. Belcher and her husband defending today's proceedings testified that they had become very fond of the child and were educating her with their own children and appealed to the court to leave the child in their custody. Mrs. Burnett, the grandmother of Gladys Burnett, on the father's side, petitioned the court for custody of the child on the ground that she was the rightful guardian.

Judge Memminger held that on the showing Mr. Belcher made and since the law gave neither of the parties higher right than the other, it was his opinion that the custody of the child should not be disturbed. But to respect the little girl's wish in the matter, he called her to the stand and inquired where she wanted to stay. It was an experience new and novel to her. She was frightened. Tears swelled in her eyes and between sobs she said that she wanted to go with her aunt, Emma Belcher, and didn't want to go with her "grandma." The petition was then refused and the petitioner, Mrs. Burnett, was required to pay the costs of the action. A. H. Miller of Greer represented the petitioner and J. D. Lanford of the city represented the defendants.

FIRST VIOLENCE IN BROGON MILL STRIKE MONDAY

when the men employed for the loading "showed up at the mill on Monday morning they were met by a crowd of the strikers. The men were allowed to go into the mill, and then the strikers called for Mr. Cassey, superintendent of the mill. Mr. Cassey went out and talked with a committee of the strikers. He was asked if the men were to be quartered in the mill and he replied that they were to sleep there, and eat there until the loading was finished, but that was all. The strikers declared that they would starve, that they would allow no food or water to be taken into the mill. Mr. Crawford, paymaster of the mill, went out and brought in a bucket of water unmolested. The trucks were loaded on the inside and preparations were made to start the actual loading of the cars. Mr. Cassey had suspected that there would be trouble, and he had called the sheriff's office in Anderson. The sheriff was out of the city at the time, but was notified at the mill about 1 o'clock in the afternoon. When the truckmen started to load the cars they were met by about 100 women, wives and daughters of the operatives. These women seized themselves on the platforms and would not move, making it impossible for the men to load the cars. Mr. Ashley arrived at this juncture and talked to the strikers. He told them that the loading of the cars was not an issue of the strike, and the mill operatives are said to have agreed that it was not and to have consented to the loading. Mr. Ashley informed the management of the mill of this and the work was continued. The first truck load was hardly in the car when Mr. E. P. Coffield, with Mr. Ben B. Gossett, vice president of the mill, went out on the platform. Mr. Gossett stepped into the car and as he did so some man from the crowd stepped up to Mr. Coffield and struck him in the face. Mr. Coffield prepared to defend himself and several others crowded around him. He was roughly handled and was beaten about the head. When seen last night, Mr. Coffield stated that he was not in very much pain, except his head ached a great deal and he was generally bruised. Mr. Gossett was in one of the cars when the attack was made on Mr. Coffield. He did so all manner of threats were made against him. There was no violence against Mr. Gossett, in fact no one laid hands on him. When Mr. Coffield started across to the mill, a shower of rocks were hurled at him. No arrests have followed this act of violence on the part of the strikers. The sheriff succeeded in quieting the crowd after a short time and warned them that they would have to refrain from any such acts of violence. He stated to them that if he and his deputies could not control them, he would ask Governor Manning for help with which he could control them. Heretofore rough talk and threats have been as far as the strikers carried their ill will against the mill officials. The argument as to the stopping of the goods is not an issue of the strike. The goods are not the property of the mill. They have been bought and paid for by outside parties and these parties are anxious for their delivery. It was the attempt to do this which caused the trouble. The strikers had given their promise to assist Ashley not to molest the work of shipping the goods, but did exactly what had been promised not to do. The men engaged to do the loading are sleeping in the mill and are being fed there. The loading will go on this morning as soon as possible. The mill officials are awaiting the action of the operatives when the

The Wesleyan class of the St. John Methodist church will serve a turkey dinner on Wednesday in the store room above Tolly's Furniture store. An elegant dinner will be served, and the ladies will also have a beautiful display of fancy work on sale.

Hallowe'en Party.

A beautiful Hallowe'en party for Saturday night was given by Misses Mary and Elizabeth Famsay in honor of their guests, Misses Elizabeth and Earline Ramsay of Greenville. The young folks were delightfully entertained with all sorts of Hallowe'en games and the evening was especially happy and pleasant.

Mrs. C. B. J. DeCamp will go to Richmond today to spend a month with friends.

Fisher-Bowen.

A surprise marriage of great interest to the many friends of the young couple was that of Miss Rubie Fisher and Mr. Ed Bowen of the Antreville section on Sunday afternoon at half past three at the Baptist parsonage, the ceremony being performed by Dr. John B. White, in the presence of a few friends and the brother of Mr. Bowen. They left immediately for a trip to Greenwood and Charleston. Both young people are very popular in their community and have many friends who extend good wishes.

Hallowe'en Dinner Party.

Miss Sarah Lattimer was the gracious hostess Saturday evening when she gave a Hallowe'en dinner party at the home of her mother, Mrs. A. C. Lattimer in Belton. This dinner was in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Blair Rice, who were recently married in Aikou.

The interior of the house was elaborately decorated with autumn leaves and Hallowe'en effects. The guests were received at the door by several "spooks" and after many exciting and amusing Hallowe'en festivities they were invited into the dining room. Here was a most gorgeous scene, nothing having been spared to make the room a typical Hallowe'en bower. A delicious course dinner was efficiently served by two "spooks." Several Andersonians were present.—Daily Mail.

Anderson College Alumnae.

At the lovely country home of her father, Mr. C. Q. Burris, Miss Lucille Burris entertained the Anderson College Alumnae Saturday afternoon.

The president, Miss Maggie Clipp scales, presided and a plan for study this winter was made. Then beautiful music was furnished by Miss Betty Lawrence of Duluth, Miss Jeanette Aiken of Central and Miss Miriam Weeks, of Aiken, three graduates of the class of '15. The pretty hostess, assisted by her sisters served a delicious salad course.

Miss Lucy Heard Entertains.

Miss Lucy Heard was the attractive young hostess for a few of her friends on Saturday evening when she entertained at a Hallowe'en party at her home on First street. A merry series of games were planned for the amusement of the guests, and a very delightful evening was spent by the fortunate guests. Last in the evening a delicious menu was served.

SALTS IF BACKACHE AND KIDNEYS HURT

Stop eating meat for a while if your bladder is troubling you.

When you wake up with backache it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and clogged. When your kidneys get sluggish and clogged you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad's salts, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then not fail. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness. Jad's salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

Theodore Hardy.
If, on Wednesday, November 3rd, you should happen to note a tall, spare, smooth-shaven, middle-aged gentleman with cool and pencil, busily engaged in sketching some picturesque bit of landscape or private residence in our fair city, that will be Theodore Hardy. Who is Theodore Hardy? Actor—excellent actor. Plays the big part of "Jefferson Worth" in "The Winning of Barbara Worth," which is to be produced at the Anderson Theatre on date mentioned above. Mr. Hardy has enjoyed a long and varied stage career. For a number of years he was a prominent member of Klaw & Erlanger's "Ben Hur" company, playing a king or emperor or some high dignitary of the period. The writer isn't clear as to the identity of the character, but it required an accomplished actor of Mr. Hardy's ability to play him. "Ben Hur" isn't on tour this season, so the management of the "Barbara Worth" company secured him for the important part of "Jefferson Worth." It was a fortunate choice. His success has been great. Every reader of the book knows him the minute he makes his first appearance, for he might have stepped from the book to the stage, so closely does he resemble Harold Bell Wright's pen picture of the strong, stern master of men. Mr. Hardy was born and still resides in Washington, D. C., where his summers are spent at his pretty suburban home. Aside from his beloved profession, his hobby is landscape painting, at which he is an adept, finding a ready sale for any of his pictures.
