BALKAN TERRITORY BONE OF CONTENTION NORTHERN EUROPE

Paris, Nov. 17.—The Balkan question, formerly internal with Macedonia, is now a chief stake and the states ranged against each other or against Turkey over this bone of contention, has undergone a complete change within the past few months.

Some of this Macedonian issue still remains, between Bulgaria and Serbia, but it is almost lost in a far greater issue, international instead of internal, as the two great warring elements in Europe have suddenly recognized these little Balkan states controlled the high-road from northern Europe to the Orient—the link between Germany and Austria in the north and that vast vista of sleeping power in the southeast: Turkey and the Dardanelles, Egypt and the Suez canal, Asia Minor and the Persian gulf, and the overland route straight from Berlin to the far east.

So that the petty Balkan disputes which have been going on for years are now suddenly merged into a great international drama, in which the Balkans are a mere incident, the supreme issues now being:

For the Quadruple Allies—to hold the Balkan states intact as far as possible, as a solid wall or buffer between the Austro-Germans in the north and in their imperial goal in the south; Turkey, the Dardanelles, Egypt and the east.

For Austro-Germany—to divide the Balkans as much as possible, state against state, with a predominating state, Bulgaria, favorable to the Austro-Germans aim of a direct route from Germany to Turkey and the Orient.

Shift of Balkan Issue. This shift of the Balkan issue, making it part of a great international game instead of a petty struggle of small states, has come about within the last four months. The allied powers were slow in realizing it, and their negotiations with Bulgaria and Serbia up to a recent date treated the question as the old fight over territory in Macedonia. But all the time Germany was setting the scenes in the larger drama—the warring of Bulgaria and the linking of the central powers to Turkey and the east.

Each of the Balkan states has a number of issues involved in the new struggle. Some explanation of these has been gathered from official and diplomatic sources—Serbian, Bulgarian, Greek and Rumanian—and from other available quarters, showing the respective viewpoints about as follows:

Bulgaria considers herself the aggrieved party of the Balkans. She claims to have done most of the fighting against Turkey, over Macedonia, and to have received the least of the reward, the bulk going to Serbia and Greece, which, Bulgaria claims, did not do the hard fighting. The Bulgarian legation furnished The Associated Press with a pamphlet review of its case, showing the following distribution of the territory taken from Turkey:

Distribution of Territory. "Serbia with the smallest territory before the war, received 30,000 square kilometers, of which 15,000 were fertile, and added 1,200,000 to her population.

Greece, next smallest in area and population, gained 54,000 square kilometers, of which 23,000 were fertile, and added 1,600,000 to her population. "Bulgaria, the largest in area and population, received only 15,000 square kilometers, of which none were fertile, and added only 400,000 to its population." Then follows this explosive official statement:

"Is this possible? Yes! And because of it, this is what Bulgaria demands: She is not satisfied with such a division; she demands a new one; she shuts her ears to proposals of a Balkan union in which she pays all the expense."

Bulgaria has issued another pamphlet, printed at the royal printing

EAT WITHOUT FEAR OF INDIGESTION OR SOUR, ACID STOMACH

Instant relief! "Pape's Diapepsin" ends your stomach trouble forever.

Wonder what upset your stomach—what portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; head dizziness and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Pape's Diapepsin and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

Millions of men and women today know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps this delicate organ regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear. If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it digests food and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. Please, for your sake, don't go on and on with a weak disordered stomach; it's unnecessary.

establishment at Sofia, entitled, "How the Serbs Behave in Macedonia," giving detailed accounts of alleged atrocities in Serbia's part of Macedonia against priests of the Bulgarian state church. These accounts are harrowing in the extreme, alleging that in some cases Bulgarians were crucified, others buried alive, others tortured until they died, with names and places. This pamphlet is given as an evidence of Macedonia's claim that her people in Macedonia are being crushed.

Bulgaria's Allegations. Another of Bulgaria's allegations is that Rumania took 3,370 square kilometers of Bulgaria's Black Sea front while her hands were tied during the struggle with Turkey. The Black Sea country added 300,000 people to Rumania's population. The people are Bulgarians, according to Bulgaria, and she wants them back, and the Black Sea front too.

Aside from these official claims, there are reports of other aspirations of Bulgaria. King Ferdinand is said to foresee another great Byzantine empire in southeastern Europe, with himself as the first Czar of Byzantium. The realization of this dream would mean the absorption of the Balkan states into Bulgaria, and her evolution into an empire stretching to the Bosphorus. Cherif Pasha, the Turkish agitator, has even asserted in a recent signed article in Paris newspapers, that the Young Turk element had agreed with Bulgaria to turn over Constantinople to that country, rather than let it pass into the hands of the Allies through their assault on the Dardanelles.

Serbia's Attitude. Serbia's attitude in the Balkans is summed up as the staunch and loyal friends of the Quadruple Allies, and their chief reliance in blocking the Austro-German advance. Serbia was neighbor to clash with her giant neighbor to the north, Austria and thus precipitated the European war. Serbia has always stood in the way of Austria, barring her advance westward to the Mediterranean and the Adriatic. Serbia's first aim, therefore, is to hold what she now has of Macedonia against the encroachments of Bulgaria, and at the same time aid the Quadruple alliance by holding back the advance of Austria and Germany southward.

As to Bulgaria's claim of rights in Macedonia, and of alleged atrocities, Serbia simply denies them. She was willing to yield Macedonia to Bulgaria while the Quadruple allies were hoping thereby to win Bulgaria over to a united Balkans. But that prospect has passed, and Serbia is now holding on to all she possesses in Macedonia, with the interest of her own.

Greece's interest in the Balkan conflict are partly local, partly international. Like Serbia she is defending her part of Macedonia, particularly that near Cavalla, the rich seaport on the Aegean nearest Constantinople. The Greek legation has furnished The Associated Press with the report of Prof. Fets of the University of Lausanne to the Greek Prime Minister, answering Bulgaria's claims as to Macedonia, and establishing by a mass of data that Cavalla, Saloniki and the great centers of Macedonia, as well as the interior, are overwhelmingly Greek in population, language and custom. This has been one of the chief terms of dispute, Bulgaria claiming the country to be essentially Bulgarian.

Besides this local issue, Greece's great coast line on the Mediterranean and Aegean, and her proximity to Egypt, the Suez Canal, Turkey and the east, have inspired hopes of a greater Greece, restoring the prestige of ancient Greece as one of the great powers of the world. France has looked with sympathy on these aspirations, while Bulgaria pins her faith on Germany. At the same time Italy has hopes in the eastern Mediterranean, and one of the reasons Italian troops did not join the Anglo-French landing party at Saloniki was to avoid exciting Greece's susceptibilities that her aim of expansion was being encroached upon.

Greece's harbors, notably Saloniki and Cavalla, also supply the allies with the best strategic landing ports, for the double purpose of aiding Greece's ally, Serbia, and the greater end of throwing a barrier in front of the Austro-German advance toward Turkey. At Cavalla a landing party would be within 100 miles of the route through Bulgaria to Constantinople. At Saloniki the railroads through Greece and Serbia give quick means of transit for a landing party up to the Serbian frontier. So that Greece is a strategic highway by which the allies accomplish their purpose of aiding Serbia and preventing an Austro-German junction with Turkey.

Rumania has thus far held aloof from the gathering conflict. Her premier, Bratianu, is strongly favorable to neutrality. Rumania is at issue with Bulgaria over the Black Sea country which Bulgaria claims was unfairly taken from her by Rumania. Rumania's natural interests are with Russia, as Rumanian hope of expansion is northward in Transylvania. But there are powerful elements at work to draw Rumania in, and if she enters the conflict she will add the largest population and the largest army of the Balkan states to the settlement of their internal and their international issues.

She stabbed me once—she stabbed me twice. "Oh, why?" I cried in pain. "Oh, just because," she presently said. And ran as though I were a snake. —Siren.

Juvenile Diplomacy.

Young Arthur, the pride of the family, had been attending school for all of six weeks, and his devoted parent thought it was high time he should find out how things were running, says Harper's Magazine. So he asked one afternoon:

"And what did my little son learn about this morning?"

"Oh, a mouse, Miss Wilcox told us all about mouse."

"That's the boy. Now, how do you spell mouse?"

"It was then that Arthur gave promise of being an arifful dodger. He paused meditatively for a moment, then said:

"Father, I guess I was wrong. It wasn't a mouse teacher was telling us about. It was a rat."

DARKEN GRAY HAIR, LOOK YOUNG, PRETTY

Sage Tea and Sulphur Darkens So Naturally that Nobody can tell.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and
