THANKSGIVING BY S. M. T.

This is a day that should mean a great deal to all of us, but more often than it means a big dinner, with its attendant indigestion, and that is all. There is not one, however poor, that has not something to be thankful for. There is a very beautiful custom in some places for every one who goes to service Thanksgiving morning, to take a package of some kind, cloth, sugar, tea, coffee, as much or as little as they can give, and place them in baskets in the vestibules of the different churches. I have seen hamper filled and overflowing, the floor hidden, and the walls banked with bundles, and boxes, one little baby girl laid a package carefully on top of a hamper, and turned with a beaming face to some people near saying, "I give my dollie," some poor little waif was made happy by that same dollie. After services, and distributed among the destitute, of which there are so many in the big cities. In small towns and villages, where there are few in such dire distress, there are still many that would appreciate a thanksgiving thought. If they do not need the package of cloth or groceries, they may be happier for friendship shown, or a pleasant hour given. To have one's own home is one of the greatest blessings on this earth, but there are a vast number who have none, who spend the greater part of their lives in boarding houses, which is the dreariest and most hopelessly unsatisfactory life in the world.

Many people make Thanksgiving a family affair, whatever enjoyment is to be gotten out of the day goes only to the few. That is not, the true spirit of Thanksgiving. If you have anything to be thankful for, show it in your thought of others less fortunate than yourself.

Potatoes A La Paul. Slice potatoes thin as for scalloping, put in a shallow pan, add salt, pepper, and water, enough water, however, to cover potatoes, on top of them put lean pork chops also sliced and peppered. When chops are brown, turn on other side, the chops will be soft and tender, and the potatoes will be well flavored.

Spanish Rice. Have ready a saucepan in which are two tablespoonfuls of nice hot dripping. Trow in a half cupful of well washed rice, and toss about until nicely browned. Add one sliced tomato, one sliced onion and a clove of garlic, and brown slightly. Cover the whole with hot water, season with salt and pepper. Cover and let rice cook thoroughly adding more water if necessary. Do not stir, as the beauty of its lies in the plump brown unbroken kernels.

Nut Croquette. Put one cup of roasted peanuts in a basin, add two cupfuls washed potatoes, a little grated nutmeg, some pepper and salt, a teaspoon of onion juice, a tablespoon of chopped parsley, and one beaten egg. Mix and form into neat croquettes, dip them in flour, brush over with beaten egg, roll in fine bread crumbs, and fry in smoking hot fat.

Viennoise Chocolate Cake. Cream half a cupful, each of sugar, cocoa and butter, add the beaten yolks of three eggs, and a teaspoon of vanilla, beat well together, then add the stiffly beaten white, and sprinkle on lightly, half a cupful of finest flour, containing half teaspoonful of baking powder. Bake in moderate oven. When done spread the smooth side with apricot jam and cover with chocolate icing.

New Ideas in Clothes. One of the French designers has evolved a costume jokingly called "the commuters delight," but it is really a clever idea. Living near a city, and longing to go to the theatre, opera, or entertainment of some kind, the question, "what shall we wear" always comes up. If you have your own car, well and good, but evening dress and wraps are so conspicuous in public, and so out of place in street cars, or trains of any kind, that one dislikes to wear them, and to crush a delicate dress with a heavy street

The Ghina Question After Present War

Tokio, Nov. 20.—China will loom up as a great question after the present war, in the opinion of H. Ijuin, former Japanese minister to Peking, and Japan should prepare herself now for a solution of the Chinese question. In a magazine article, Mr. Ijuin warns his fellow countrymen that while the European war continues Western Powers may seem to be taking little or no interest, but that after the war their ambitions for a share in Chinese commerce will revive. He even goes so far as to express the opinion that if the powers were unable to agree on the Chinese question a second international war would be certain to ensue. In consequence of this general situation Mr. Ijuin, while not a partisan of a formal alliance with Russia at the present time, strongly recommends that Japan and Russia maintain their existing cordial relations and be ready to face any emergency that may arise in connection with the Chinese problem. He said: "The policy of Japan and Russia may have much to do with maintaining peace after the European war. Nations will fight to prevent calamity, but some of them will fight quicker to maintain commerce; and this renders the Chinese question a very delicate one. Whether there comes a war of arms or not, there is certain to be a peaceful war of commercial competition in China. In this struggle for commercial supremacy some nations must inevitably take an inferior position, leading to bitter dissatisfaction and danger, as they behold the prosperity of the conqueror." The ex-minister thinks that the Japanese need have little fear of competition in arms, but that they cannot be so sure of themselves when it comes to the peaceful competition of commerce. Japan must therefore do everything to ensure a commercial victory. If Japan made an alliance with Russia most publicists would undoubtedly think that it would be largely to guard against Germany. "The sudden recovery of Germany," wrote Mr. Ijuin, "would be a terror to Japan. Of course it is natural to suppose that Germany will do all within her power to divorce Japan from China and to do everything possible against the interests of Japan. But Japan may hope to be immune from German interference for at least four or five years after the war, before which time Germany cannot be expected to recover former conditions. At any rate Japan has no real fear of Germany, else she would never have declared war against her. Japan entered in the war with Germany with her eyes wide open to the results." The minister's idea was to keep the Anglo-Japanese alliance secure, and wait patiently for more light on the question of the proposed Japan-Russia alliance. If the latter is consummated the greatest care should be taken to see that it militates in no way against the alliance with Great Britain. The developments of the situation in China—the reports of unrest and possibility of outbreaks, and especially the movement for a restoration of the monarchy—are causing a good deal of concern in Japan and form the subject for ministerial conferences. Japan will presumably fulfill a program based on the principle that, as the great neighboring Oriental Power, she holds or should hold the predominant role in the affairs of China. According to the newspaper here, in case China decides to return to the monarchy, Japan is likely to take the lead in securing the recognition of the great powers for the new form of government. President Yuan-Shi-Kai is quoted as being desirous of making sure that the new imperial government would receive recognition from the powers before taking the final steps, and as being convinced that he must first secure the recognition of Japan as emperor, feeling that afterward Japan's allies—Great Britain, France and Russia—would fall into line. The attitude of the United States on the question of recognition is a question that furnishes a great deal of speculation. One writer says: "But even if the Washington government should refuse to fall in line with other powers under the apparent leadership of Japan, it is believed that it will not affect other governments in taking concerted action in giving the recognition to the new government in China."

American Ships In Balkan Conflict

Paris, Nov. 20.—American built ships and American big guns will figure in the first line of any naval operations growing out of the Balkan conflict, as the former American battleships Idaho and Mississippi, now the Greek battleships Kilkis and Lemnos, are the best warships possessed by any of the Balkan states, while eight monster 14-inch guns built by the Bethlehem works for Greece are now doing service at the Dardanelles. The Balkans have a long stretch of coast on the Mediterranean and Black seas, making naval operations likely on both of these fronts. All the states have navies, except Serbia. The Greeks had ordered a monster superdreadnaught of 23,000 tons, but this is cancelled. They also had the Salamis, 16,500 tons, building in Vulcan yards of Germany, which the Germans quickly appropriated. This leaves them with the former Idaho and Mississippi in the first line, the Avenoff of 10,000 tons, three 5,900 ton gunboats, and a fair-sized flotilla of destroyers and torpedo boats, including two submarines. One of the best Greek submarines was being built in France, and was taken over by France only two weeks ago because Greece was behind on payments. Bulgaria has a Mediterranean and Black sea front. But her navy is insignificant, consisting of the gunboat Nadejda of 700 tons, six torpedo gunboats, and four small craft including King Ferdinand's royal yacht, the Kroum, which is strongly armed. Should Russia bombard Varna, Bulgaria's Black sea port, as has been threatened, Bulgaria could make little naval resistance beyond that from shore batteries. Rumania is entirely confined to the Black sea, where her navy consists of five coast-defense monitors with 5-inch guns, the cruiser Elizabeth, and a fleet of small gunboats. The eight monster 14-inch rifles—among the largest ever produced—were under way at the Bethlehem works to be mounted on the Greek battleship Salamis building at the Vulcan yard in Germany. But when Germany approved the Greek battleships the huge guns had not been delivered, and Germany preferred her own type of Krupp guns. Just then Greece was much interested in the approach of the Anglo-French force of the Dardanelles, just across the Aegean from Greece, and a transfer was quickly arranged by which the 14-inch guns were mounted on monitors forming a part of the Dardanelles expedition. There they are today, probably the most effective weapons in use.

Altogether Greece is the best equipped of the Balkan states to make a naval showing, and this chiefly through American ships and guns. GERMAN MUSICAL NOVELTY Strauss' Alpine Symphony Produced in Berlin. Berlin, Nov. 20.—The musical novelty of the season in Germany is Dr. Richard Strauss' "Alpine Symphony," which was produced for the first time this week by the orchestra of the Royal Opera House at Dresden. Among other things, the composer has introduced a thunder machine to his orchestra, which consists of 105 musicians "in eight" and twelve for supplementary notes-making behind the scenes. The sound of a waterfall is produced thematically by a blending of strings, harps, woods and the clang of the celesta combined with the tremolo of the triangle. In the sunrise theme, according to the Dresden newspapers, "the sun rises a beam at noon in C, and sets in G." Besides the storm, the waterfall, and the sun, there are themes entitled: The Ascent; Entrance to the Forest; Ramble by the Brook; On the Glacier; Perilous Outlook; Calm Before the Storm; and Night Again.

GRANDMA NEVER LET HER HAIR GET GRAY Kept Her Locks Dark, Thick, Glossy, with Sage Tea and Sulphur. When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is messy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling. Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.
