Distress in his Stomach.
There are many people who have a distress in the stomach after meals. It is due to indigestion and easily remedied by taking one of Chamberlain's Tablets after meals. Mrs. Henry Padgham, Victor, N. Y., writes: "For some time I was troubled with headache and distress in my stomach after eating, also with constipation. About six months ago I began taking Chamberlain's Tablets. They regulated the action of my bowels and the headache and other annoyances ceased in a short time." For sale by all dealers.

COTTON MANUFACTURE FOR NORTHERN CHINA

Peking, Nov. 24.—Announcement that the Chinese government has participated in the organization of the Huahsin Spinning and Weaving Corporation which is to have a monopoly of the cotton industry in Shantung, Honan and Chihli provinces of North China, has created much comment. L. China as well as in Japan. Chow Hsueh-an, the minister of finance, was the original mover in the scheme and his brother, Chow Hsueh-huan has been appointed director general of the new company. Other prominent and wealthy officials and merchants are co-operating with the government and will raise sixty per cent of the proposed capital of ten million dollars Mexican, or about four million dollars gold.
The monopoly grants to the company in the three provinces named is to continue for thirty years. Despatches from Japan announce that such a monopoly is regarded by many Japanese business men as an infringement upon the rights of foreigners to engage in trade and industry in China.
There had been no cotton mill of any sort in the three northern provinces covered by the monopoly, and an investigation of conditions made by the minister of finance convinced him that cotton can be manufactured profitably in North China.

Preparedness.
As last as a nation we are waking from long years of comfortable, indolent lethargy, and the cold fact is staring us in the face that our boasted strength is a myth. If attacked today we have, as compared to other large countries, very little in the shape of coast defense. We could be whopped a dozen times while we were organizing for protection. The kind providence which has watched over us thus far should not be overlooked; we must now do for ourselves.
The plan for increased army and navy which the president will send to congress will meet with approval by the large majority of Americans. Such substantial increase in equipment calls for a corresponding increase in men. Privates and sailors can be trained to a fair degree of usefulness in a few months; but officers, such as this country needs, require several years in the making. At present we have one military school, West Point, and one naval academy, Annapolis.
The present capacity of West Point is about 700, with an average annual graduation of only 130.
During the present war the English have frequently lost in a few days more officers than the entire yearly graduation at West Point. In view, therefore, of the fact that the training a young man receives at the military academy specially fits him for life work of a high order as a civilian, it would seem advisable to increase the number of military academies by establishing one in the Central West and one on the Pacific coast. The graduations of all three would in time produce 600 or 800 trained officers per year. Even at this rate, deducting deaths and disabilities, it would require at least 10 years to produce a total of 5,000 officers; and this assumes doubling the capacity of West Point and building two more schools equally large.
In these days, mere courage; of however high an order, will not compensate for lack of training in the officer; and now that armies are spelled in millions instead of thousands, the necessity for officers by the thousand becomes evident.
The United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, established in 1816 and enlarged a few years ago, has a capacity of 1,200 and an average annual graduation of 165. Somewhere on the Great Lakes and on the Pacific coast naval academies could well be operated to advantage, providing in time reserves of trained men available when needed, but who otherwise would engage in various professional, or engineering occupations.—H. H. Windsor, in the December number of Popular Mechanics Magazine.

"No Girl Can Disappear" Says Burns
Why no pretty girl can leave her home without leaving some trace behind that can be followed if taken in time is explained by Detective William J. Burns in the December issue of the Woman's Home Companion. The story of how he discovered Edna Kent, who laid her plans with the greatest cleverness, is a proof of this point.
The guiding clue in this case rested with a negro porter. There were several others that in the end would have answered equally well, "but my porter," says Mr. Burns, "can usually remember a pretty girl who has traveled alone in his car."
"The worst of real detective stories is that when the mystery has been explained you see it's nothing but good common sense properly applied," he says. "Every person who steps out of the beaten path, even if innocently, leaves footprints in a dozen different places; if one is only trained to see them."

How to Prevent Croup.
It may be a surprise to you to learn that in many cases croup can be prevented. Mrs. H. M. Johns, Miss. Ohio, relates her experience as follows: "My little boy is subject to croup. During the past winter I kept a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and when he began having that croupy cough, I would give him one or two doses of it and it would break the attack. I like it better for children than any other cough medicine because children take it willingly, and it is safe and reliable." Sold by all dealers.

Grandma Used Sage Tea to Darken Hair
She Mixed Sulphur with it to Restore Color, Gloss, Thickness.
Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with Sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray streaked and faded hair beautiful dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggy and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.
While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

SCHOOL DEDICATED IN NORTHERN CHINA

American Minister Chief Speaker At Installation of Protestant Institution.

Tungchow, Chihli Province, China, Nov. 25.—Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, American minister to China, was the chief speaker at the dedication of the North China American school on October 25 by the Methodist Episcopal, the Presbyterian and the American (congregational) Missionary boards.
The new school was erected on the site of the American board compound in Tungchow with funds given chiefly by the Presbyterian board. Money for the annual expenditure is provided by the three boards. Miss Flora Board is principal of the new school and has three assistants.
The scope of the institution is from the fifth grade to a high school course. The institution was primarily designed for the children of missionaries, but will provide educational facilities for other American and European families in North China. Rev. Charles F. Hubbard, pastor of the Union church ineking, and many other religious workers in North China attended the dedication.
Among the Americans who made special contributions for furniture and equipment is Mrs. Andrew Carnegie. The school opens with twenty-one pupils from Chihli, Shantung and Shanai provinces.

A Remarkable Christmas Tree.
Here is a novel idea for a Christmas tree suggested by a writer in the December issue of the Woman's Home Companion:
"It is not an idea that can be utilized everywhere," she says, "it belongs to the green oak of the Southern Christmas or the evergreen of the north."
"Last year an electrician was set to work wiring the oak, but stringing the tiny bulbs in the usual artificial festoons, but setting them more irregularly along the outermost twigs, where they were partially hidden by clumps of leaves. Our active man of all work fastened the gifts about the branches. We did not use the old ornaments of former Christmases, as they seemed lawdry and trifling against the immensity of the oak. Instead of the tree's bare actual fruit, oranges, bunches of bananas, pineapples, gleaming yellow among the leaves; grapes, red apples, bound to small stems; gay bags of candy and nuts swinging in unsuspected places.
"Packets lurked under limbs, and swung in shadows. It seemed to us, watching in the shadows that the charm of the open-sky, the touch of mystery night lays upon all things, served to lighten and add zest to our own as well as their Christmas joy."

They Simply Won't Be Married.
Several young men were recently asked by a writer in the December Woman's Home Companion why they refused to be married. Their answers throw considerable light on what is becoming a national problem. One said that girls are too clever for the men nowadays—that he wanted "just a wife" and the girl he had been engaged to marry was making more money than he was and refused to give up her work. Another complained of the expensive tastes of the modern young woman, another that he had set out to accomplish certain things before marrying. Still another refused to be sentenced to hard labor for life, and one complained that the local girls were "a bit narrow."

Near Bagdad.
London, Nov. 25.—Within twenty miles of Bagdad the British army is advancing through Mesopotamia. After a serious battle with heavy losses on both sides, the British retired three or four miles from the position they took from the Turk, owing to lack of water.
The violent struggle on the Austro-Italian front continues unremittingly. Rome reports an important victory for the Italians in the capture of trenches near Gortina.
