BRITISH SOLDIERS OF WASTEFUL HABITS

London, Nov. 26.—British soldiers in and about the trenches are careless and wasteful both of ammunition and "bully beef" as "corned beef" is known here. This statement has the authority of John Hodge, M. P., who has just returned from a visit to the troops in France. He was informed, he said, that thousands of things of beef and millions of rifle cartridges were lying about the trenches and trampled into the mud.
Wastage, Mr. Hodge's friend, was in some cases checked by the officers in charge. The trouble is, the men get an excessive amount of meat—12 oz.—in their daily ration. No account is taken of casualties or of the sick. So the tin lies around the trenches, fall into the bottom and get stepped on. Ultimately they are buried in the trench mud. This is also the fate of the cartridges left behind by the men when relieved. In some cases, the officer of the relieving party would ascertain how many rounds had been served out and how many fired so as to keep a check on the amount lost. But these officers, according to Mr. Hodge, are in a minority.
The same complaints as to wastage have been made against the troops in the English training camps. Here the blame is laid to overabundant rations and the wastefulness of cooks who throw away whole loaves of fresh bread and left over beef and vegetables.

How to Teach Children Obedience.

In the December Woman's Home Companion Caroline French Benton says:
"There is no chapter in Colonial history more full of domestic tragedy than that which deals with the practice pursued at the time, for breaking a child's will. Those times when the parent was an autocrat have gone forever, but the problem of obedience is always present.
"Parents sometimes shrink from the plain duty of training a child to obey. They fail to see that obedience is law, as the great underlying principle of good character and good citizenship. No one should try to evade the responsibility of giving a child his right start in life, by making him obedient.
"The child as an individual has a right to his own will one we dare not refuse lightly, and certainly one we dare not take from him altogether. A parent's experience is meant to help the child avoid mistakes as far as may be. When the child realizes that his parents are trying to help rather than govern him, he will become obedient has begun already to shape it himself. The one great point to realize is that the state of obedience is a temporary one; it is only the means to a great end—that of training the child's will toward constant right doing."

A Bad Banach.

Frank B. Kellogg tells the story of a forlorn man who was brought before a western magistrate charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct. When asked what he had to say for himself, he gazed pensively at the judge and launched forth:
"Your honor, man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn. I'm not so debased as Swift, as pigat cas Byron, as disipated as Poe, or so debauched as—
"Bat will do," thundered the magistrate. "Thirty days; and officer, take a list of those names and run 'em in. They're as bad a lot as he it."—New York Globe.

Charging the Jury.

The recently elected mayor of a small rural town was holding his first court.
An offender against the law requested a jury trial. After the case has been disposed of, some one approached the mayor and asked him why he had not charged the jury.
"That's right," answered the mayor. "You see I'm kinder new to this kind of job and I plum forgot it. Hereafter I'm gonner charge 'em 25c apiece."—Donchano.

Distress in the Stomach.

There are many people who have a distress in the stomach after meals. It is due to indigestion and easily remedied by taking one of Chamberlain's Tablets after meals. Mrs. Henry Padghan, Victor, N. Y., writes: "For some time I was troubled with headache and distress in my stomach after eating, also with constipation. About six months ago I began taking Chamberlain's Tablets. They regulated the action of my bowels and the headache and other annoyances ceased in a short time." For sale by all dealers.

A High Average.

It has been ascertained that ninety-nine out of every 100 men boarding trains in Ohio and Kentucky cities where there are saloons bound for prohibition West Virginia carry with them a supply of liquor varying from one quart to five gallons. Presumably the other one per cent carry only a drink or two concealed from view.—(Washington Herald).

Went to the Hospital.
C. E. Blanchard, administrator at Blanchard, Ky., writes: "I had kidney trouble and had to go to the hospital. Dr. Sidney Ellis was recommended to me and they were completely cured me. I cannot speak too highly of them." Sufferers in every state have had similar benefit from this standard remedy for kidney and bladder ailments. It banishes headache, stiff joints, swollen muscles and all the various symptoms of weakened diseased kidneys. Sold everywhere.

GERMAN MILITARY TO BUILD FINE RAILROAD

Amsterdam, Nov. 26.—What is expected to be the finest stretch of railroad in Europe is planned by the German military authorities to connect Aix-la-Chapelle and Brussels. Already a line of surveyor's posts marks the route of the new road from the German frontier to the heart of Belgium, and work has begun on the tunnel through which it will pierce the hills between Wavok and Lixhe.
The line will be four-tracked all the way and roadbed and bridges will be built to bear the heaviest and fastest trains. According to present plans, the first trains will be run sometime during 1917.
The gains to Germany from the construction of the new railroad are largely strategic. Parts of the old lines connecting the German border with Brabant and Antwerp cross Dutch territory. The new route obviates this difficulty, establishing easy connections with all parts of Belgium.
A railroad similar to that now under construction was proposed to Belgium a few years ago by German capitalists, but met with opposition from the city of Liege, which would have suffered heavy loss from the diversion of traffic to a more direct route between Germany and Brussels.

COMB SAGE TEA IN HAIR TO DARKEN IT

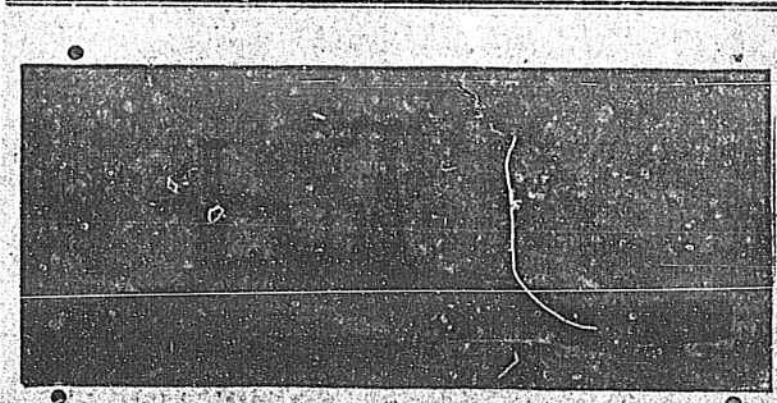

It's Grandmother's Recipe to keep her Locks Dark, Glossy, Thick.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.
Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delight the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive, besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.
