RESUMPTION OF TRAFFIC BY BOATS ON THE DANUBE HELPS CENTRAL POWERS

Berlin, Dec. 1.—The resumption of steamboat travel on the Danube is an event of much economic importance for Germany and Austria-Hungary. That river is in peace times, the great highway for freight traffic between Rumania and Bulgaria on the one side and the central powers on the other; and by far the greater part of the foreign trade of the two little Danubian kingdoms has been with their western neighbors. But river traffic has been entirely suspended since the war broke out—and this for two causes. Not only did Serbia put mines into the river, but the Rumanians sank several old vessels; in the narrow channel of the Iron Gate just below the Hungarian frontier. This wholly stopped the export of grain from Bulgaria to Germany and the dual monarchy, and also greatly restricted shipments from Rumania, indeed, but not only were the railroads quite inadequate for the traffic offered, but the Rumanian government pursued a policy which appeared to be dictated by the wish to check shipments.

The government apparently believed that Germany and its ally were placed in a position of dependence upon Rumania for grain supplies; hence it was disposed to drive a hard bargain with them. Not only were export duties on grain introduced, but special fees for placing freight cars at the disposal of shippers were charged.

In consequence of this policy the greater part of the grain available for export from the 1914 crop was left in the country and is still there. Only recently after the Serbian campaign was well advanced—did the Rumanian government see that its system of squeezing the trade for all that could be got out of it could no longer be maintained; and about a week before the Germans and Austrians effected a junction with the Bulgarian troops the Bucharest authorities began to relax the onerous burdens upon the exportation of grain and other agricultural products. In view of the harsh measures enforced by Rumania, however, there is now a strong disposition in Germany and Austria to buy no Rumanian grain at all, and to buy from Bulgaria instead; but doubtless the trade will later come around to taking Rumanian grain without objections as soon as it is offered on equal terms with Bulgarian.

The supplies to be obtained from those two countries are very large—much larger, in fact, than Germany and her ally are likely to need. Here in Germany, the fact has been established through official inquiry that the stock of grain in the country is ample for feeding the population; hence there is no need for buying abroad for bread-making purposes. On the other hand, a big addition to the grain supplies will come in very acceptably, as it can be fed to livestock and thus increase the meat supply.

Rumania produces about 6,500,000 tons of grain, of which about 1,000,000 tons represent corn, 2,300,000 tons wheat, and the rest is chiefly barley. Nearly half of the crop has hitherto been exported. The amount now available for export, however, is believed to be at least 5,000,000 tons, after about two-thirds of last year's exportable surplus was left in the country through the government's restrictive measures. In Bulgaria, according to official estimates, there will be about 1,000,000 tons of grain for export from this year's crop of which about 200,000 tons represent corn and the rest chiefly wheat; and besides these amounts there are about 400,000 tons of corn and barley left in the country from the 1914 crop. There is thus a possible supply of some 6,500,000 tons (or more than 225,000,000 bushels) in the two countries for Germany and Austria to draw from.

Other food stuffs can also be obtained from Bulgaria. Before its recent period of wars began the country was exporting about $5,000,000 worth of animals and meats yearly; and it is expected that considerable quantities of butter and eggs will not be exported to Germany. The resumption of traffic on the Danube will also bring Germany into trade relations with Turkey again. The importance to Germany of this connection is evident from the fact that Turkey's exports of raw materials amounted before the war to nearly $110,000,000, and those of food products to about $135,000,000.

Women on the Trail

The women are getting ready to pester congress more aggressively than ever, for this time there will be two sets of organized bodies—the suffragists and the antisuffragists. Both are to meet in Washington simultaneously. The National Woman's Suffrage association will open headquarters at one location on December 14, and at the same time the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage will open at another place. Rival delegations will be trailing the congressmen with a greater persistence than has been known since woman began to take a hand in the political game, but with the president matters are going to be a little different. He has intimated that he will give no audience to the women, not out of a spirit of disrespect, but because he has said all he thinks necessary for him to say at present and there are weightier things commanding his time and attention. The last "visiting delegation" thought the president almost insulted them, and it is a fact that he did talk a little bit plainer than is usual with him. But the congressmen, and especially the committee chairman, are defenseless, and to use an ordinary expression, are "in for it."—Charlotte Observer.

Love is Blind

Mr. Z. Y. Taylor, president of the Southern Public Utilities company, always a delightful after-dinner speaker, told of a certain ugly girl, who was so ugly that her fame had spread abroad in the land. Her ugliness was unquestioned and absolute. Her defects were multitudinous.

But finally, one lad fell in love with her and bowing before her said, "Miss Mary, you are the most beautiful girl in the world."

And the young lady went up to the privacy of her room and thanked heaven "That love is blind."

Native Wisdom

Amid all the twaddle of comment about what effect the circumstance of having been born a slave had on the life of Booker T. Washington, it will be noted that he had two notable characteristics of the citizen of color born in bondage: He knew how to get money out of a yankee and to laugh with him on perfect social equality; and he knew how to keep his own place in the South. The average ex-slave has a good deal more native wisdom than he is credited with.—Raleigh Times.

Happy Ending Wanted

A charming, Auburn-haired nurse tells the story. She bent over the bed of one badly wounded man and asked him if he would like anything to read. The soldier fixed a humorous eye on her and said, "Miss, you get me a nice novel? I'd like one about a golden-haired girl and a wounded soldier, with a happy ending."

After this the pretty nurse looks down contemptuously on civilian complaints.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

GERMAN TREATMENT OF DANISH CITIZENS

Copenhagen, Dec. 1.—Remarkable reports are in circulation here in the Danish capital regarding the treatment of the Danish population in the north of Schleswig-Holstein, the German province which borders on Denmark and which was formerly Danish territory. There are still over a hundred thousand inhabitants of Danish extraction and of Danish tongue, commonly known as South Jutlanders in this German territory ever since they came under Prussian rule there have been charges that the Danes suffered persecution, although for years before the outbreak of the European war the trouble had nearly ceased. It is now charged that the Danes are meeting with new affronts, which are bitterly resented since a great number of the Danes have fought with great bravery and distinction as part of the German army in the present war. It is said that German commanders have been drawing up certain black-lists of the Danish South Jutlanders, and that these persons are being punished with a severity out of proportion to the offences committed.

When war began, South Jutland, or the north of the province of Schleswig-Holstein, was placed under a military rule which superseded the authority of the high bailiff. One of the first measures taken by this military command was to send 300 South Jutlanders to prison. It is charged that many of these persons were awakened in the middle of the night and rushed off to the jail scantily clad. It is declared that the arrests were made on tenuous and imaginative evidence, such as the fact that a large number of fishermen who were arrested were put in prison because they possessed boats in which it was thought that men eligible for military service would try to escape. Many of three fishermen were over 70 years old, and one of these old men, who has four sons and three sons-in-law serving in the German army, complains that he was kept for six days in a prison cell on most meagre prison fare. Most of the prisoners taken at this time were kept in jail for a month.

Danish newspapers in the province are subjected to the most rigid censorship and one of these papers, "Heimdal" was suppressed for eight days because it failed to mention the birthday of the German empress, according to the editors, who added that their protests that the empress had expressed the desire to pass the day quietly did not serve to move the authorities from their stand in the matter. The censor's work is also seen in the fact that they deleted an item in one of the papers which referred to the Italian crown prince's celebration of his eleventh birthday.

Innumerable reports of such curtailment of privileges are current in Copenhagen, some of them well authenticated and others mere rumor. In the latter category perhaps is the report here that practically all persons formerly rejected by the German army authorities on account of physical infirmity have been accepted for military service, even, the rumor goes, men with club feet, others who are lame, crippled, and suffering from chronic illnesses of various sorts.

GETTING GOOD FROM MANURE

Keep Manure in Dry Stall Until Spring, Then Apply Lightly.

Clemson College, Dec. 1.—In view of the present high prices of commercial sources of potash, farmers should take special pains to keep and apply their stable manure in such a way as to get the greatest benefit from this valuable product. The liquid manure, which is often permitted to go to waste, is even more valuable for plant food than the solid, and farmers should be careful to use good bedding to save this part of the manure.

In a forthcoming bulletin on potash and its sources, T. E. Kelt, chemist of the South Carolina Experiment Station at Clemson College, says of methods of keeping and applying manure:

"Under ordinary farm conditions it is not practicable to haul out manure every day and apply it to a field that is soon to be planted. When manure is hauled out it is desirable to have it incorporated with the soil immediately. Under present conditions it is best to conserve manure until spring and apply it to cotton land in very light applications."

"The best way for the average farmer to handle his manure is to permit it to accumulate in the stall being careful to keep the stall dry and well littered. The animal will pack the manure by tramping it and it keeps best when packed. The litter will absorb the liquid manure."

"We should advise its application to cotton land in the drill when the land is 'laid off.' Applications may be as light as one ton per acre. One ton of manure running 65 per cent potash contains as much potash as 100 pounds of kainit or the potash content of 300 pounds of an 8-4-4 fertilizer."

Has Faith In Remedy

Mrs. H. S. Carlson of Wakefield, Nebr., testifies to the relief she experienced from the use of Fruitola and Traxo:

"I used Fruitola and Traxo with very good results, having passed almost a cupful of gall-stones with the first bottle. My skin is clear now, and I have a good appetite. I have lots of faith in Fruitola and Traxo."

Fruitola is a powerful lubricant for the intestinal organs, softening the hardened particles that cause so much suffering and expelling the congested waste in an easy, natural manner. A single dose is usually sufficient to clearly indicate its efficacy. Traxo is a splendid tonic-alterative that acts on the liver and kidneys, stimulates the flow of gastric juices to aid digestion and removes bile from the general circulation.

For the convenience of the public, arrangements have been made to supply Fruitola and Traxo through representative druggists. In Anderson they can be obtained at Evans' Pharmacy, Three Stores.

O'CONNOR'S VERSALITY

Irish Statesman Never Writes His Speeches Beforehand.

London, Dec. 1.—T. P. O'Connor, who, after 30 years' representation of a Liverpool constituency in the House of Commons and the editorship of countless publications, is still one of the most versatile talkers and writers in public life, does not venture to prepare any addresses in advance. An Associated Press man, knowing that he was to address the house on a certain day asked him if he had a summary to take in with him.

"My dear boy," said "T. P." "I never do that and if a grateful country
