CHIEF SAMMONS WARNS ON CHRISTMAS FIRES

NO BONFIRES ARE ALLOWED ON THE PAVED STREETS

GET LICENSE EARLY

The Law is Regard to Fires and Other Regulations Strictly Enforced.

"There are just a few things I want to call attention to," said Chief of Police J. W. Sammons last night to a reporter of the Intelligencer. "The first is the fact that no fires are allowed on the paved streets and the other is that all licenses for Christmas fire works stands should be secured early."

The chief stated that the law would be rigidly enforced in regard to the fires, and that no bonfires would be allowed on any part of the paved streets. It has been customary for a long time, when fireworks are being discharged to start small bonfires on the square, or on other streets where a number of "celebrators" are congregated. This is injurious to the pavement for one thing, and is against the law. Watch the fires.

The licenses for stands, operated independently is $1 a day. The stands operated by a store, in front of the store are not licensed, but are run in connection with the store and under the store's license. These stands must not be constructed in such a way that they will interfere with persons passing on the sidewalks. In making application for a license, the location of the stand should be mentioned, and the chief of police will personally see to the exact location.

CHRISTMAS BOOZE IN PLENTY IN ORDERED

Large Amount of Money Sent Out of State for Usual Toddy.

There will be no lack of Christmas booze in Anderson if all that has been ordered comes. In the first two days of this week, there were 466 money orders sent off from the Southern Express office alone. The number of orders sent represents a sum of over $1,100 and all of this is going out of Anderson for booze.

On Monday orders were sent off for 252 persons, the sum being $669.49. Tuesday was almost as heavy, the number of orders being 164, and the sum represented being 748.01. This makes a total of 466 orders and a sum of $1,114.50.

The shipment coming in on one train was two big truck loads, whiskey, whiskey, and more whiskey. All kinds of whiskey from mean whiskey up to good whiskey, with all the different grades and species.

The big shipment recalls to mind the fact that on the last week the county dispensary was run in Anderson, the whiskey sales averaged over $1,500 a day. This sum seems almost incredible, when it is considered that Anderson was such a very small town at that time.

A tramp weekly knocked on the back door of a rural home and asked for a bike to get from the housewife who responded.

"You don't look like a man who should starve," she declared, after a critical survey. "Why don't you go to work?"

"I would, lady," was the reply of the tramp, "only everybody I go to wants a letter of reference from my last employer."

"Well, can't you get one?"

"No, ma'am," he answered, beginning to back away. "He has been dead more than 30 years."

APPLES FROM TREES PLANTED BY WEBSTER

FOUR BARRELS RECEIVED YEARLY BY FRET WELLS

BIT OF HISTORY

Webster Farm Owned By Man Who Formerly Visited in Anderson.

Accompanying a basket of delicious red apples received yesterday by the editor of the Intelligencer from Mrs. J. J. Fretwell was the following note giving an interesting account of these apples, which grew on trees planted by Daniel Webster, and the man who is now in possession of the historic farm:

"The four barrels of apples which come to us yearly in the month of November and sent by our good and generous friend Mr. Walton Hall, of Marshfield, Mass., have arrived as usual. On opening a barrel we find a most magnificent display of red apples, and marked by way of introduction 'Table Baldwin, from the Webster Farm, Mass.'"

"Everybody goes into ecstasy over this treat from Appledom and the eating begins and keeps up night and day till the last barrel is emptied. We open only one barrel at a time and try not to be too greedy, but to make them hold out for several weeks. Then when they are gone we wait till next November before we have such a treat again."

"These apples are quite historic, as they not only come from the Webster farm, but from the trees originally planted by Daniel Webster, which have been pruned and made to bear for many years. This very valuable piece of property formerly belonging to the Websters, and now owned by our good friend Mr. Hall, has been sought after for years by the state of Massachusetts, to be used as a kind of show place or museum. There are so many interesting relics there. The main residence was burned a few years ago, but many of the relics were saved. Mr. Webster's old office in the grounds stands intact. Many pictures, chairs, and the famous speech of Mr. Webster made in reply to Robert Y. Hayne of South Carolina in 1830 are preserved. This speech of Mr. Hayne was such a masterpiece that one of the household of Mr. Webster is said to have remarked this speech of Mr. Hayne's is 'unanswerable.' Webster speaks. Still it is considered a most brilliant document. A magnificent collection of butterflies is to be found here in a glass case which was a gift from some crowned head. The old Webster coach is to be seen and one can but imagine with what dignity and pride the Webster family would drive about in those palmy days."

"Mr. Hall not only grows apples but has some of the finest cranberry bogs on his place, which have cost him a thousand dollars per acre to get established. Some of these cranberries have also been sent to us and are the largest and finest we have ever seen. Mr. Hall is an enterprising mill man of Boston, Mass., and once when on a visit to us unsolicited subscribed a thousand dollars towards the erection of the Episcopal church, which was then struggling in its finances. This only shows this good man's generous and kind nature and that other good things besides the social affairs of commercialism appeal to him. If there were others like our good Mr. Hall the world would be better and brighter."

SON OF HUGH RUSSELL SUFFERS BROKEN LEG

Dean, the 14 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Russell had his right leg broken when he fell from a mule he was riding on the pavement on South Main street.

The lad was coming to Anderson from the home of his father on his way to school and was riding a mule. He was just this side of Provost's store and the mule ran, and instead of coming straight up South Main street turned suddenly into Sayre street. The lad was thrown heavily to the ground, breaking the thigh bone of his leg.

He was taken to the home of his grandmother, Mrs. P. E. Russell, and was later taken to the Anderson hospital. The leg was set and last night the little fellow was resting easily. The hospital authorities say everything is favorable for a rapid recovery.

COTTON GOODS MARKET IS RATHER UNSETTLED

"The cotton goods market is rather unsettled just now," said Mr. J. D. Hammett Wednesday morning to a representative of the Intelligencer. "I have just come home from northern markets, and I found the buyers rather skeptical about making purchases just now. Of course, all our business is based on the cotton market, and as the market had just had a violent break, there was little trading along the lines of cotton goods."

Mr. Hammett stated that he found conditions so unsettled in the north over the market that he would rather not make any statement, or write anything about conditions except the mere fact that when he was there, the market was very unsettled.
