WINNSBORO, S. C.

Friday, May 17 - - - 1901

The appeal that is being sent out to all parts of the country in behalf of the Jacksonville sufferers should be largely responded to, for while many were so fortunate as to be well insured there were many without any insurance whatever, and it is this class for whom help is wanted.

And so Winnsboro is to have some memorial day exercises. While the program will consist of nothing further than the decorating of the graves, this is the most important thing of all. Elsewhere in this issue will be seen the call of the Ladies Memorial Association for the decoration this afternoon. It perhaps may be that all can not attend, but even those who can not could contribute largely to the success of the occasion by sending in such flowers as they can.

For several years a few of the faithful women of Columbia have been running a free kindergarten school at the various mills of that city by means of money raised by entertainments, membership fees, and subscriptions. While planning for a similar work this summer they had a very pleasant surprise in the way of a free offer from the mill authorities to furnish the money for the school this summer. This is highly complimentary both to the kindergarten association and to the mills—to the former for having begun the work and to the latter for coming to their rescue. The mills of Rock Hill are also to have a free kindergarten school this summer, the funds for the same having been raised by the Rock Hill Kindergarten Association. With such provisions as these the child labor question will do much towards solving itself.

In an address at a school picnic in Richland county a few days ago Superintendent Wallace spoke of the establishment of a county high school as one of the greatest needs in our educational system. In this he was eminently correct. It is many a day until the country schools can be brought up to such a standard as to meet the demands made upon them. Leaving every other consideration out of the question the teaching force is too small for this—and to say this is only another way of saying that the funds are too short. The necessary money that would be required to do higher work for a few of the higher pupils would go far towards the sending of them to a county high school where the conditions for their advancement would be far more favorable. The most expensive schooling in America is that in some county schools where the attention of the teacher is so taken up with two or three pupils of the advanced classes that those of the lower classes must be neglected till the others are out of the way.

As Winnsboro was the first to establish a graded school she should also be the first to establish a county high school the counter part of the graded school.

Furman University is to try the experiment of a Summer Law School. Prof. G. B. Moore is in charge and Hon. Joseph D. McCullough of Greenville and the venerable Joseph Daniel Pope, professor of law at the South Carolina College in Columbia, will be among the members of the faculty.

The Press Committee of the Woman's Department of the South Carolina Inter-State and West Indian Exposition, will publish very shortly a mammoth special edition of the Charleston News and Courier. This great newspaper will be a thirty-two page edition and will have a circulation of at least 50,000 copies; when these are exhausted, another edition will be printed. It will be sold in every city, town and village in this State, and by the leading news-dealers in the large cities both north and south. In addition to this, the paper will be on sale at both the Buffalo and Charleston Expositions; thus extending the influence of this great paper through the term of an entire year.

All the reading matter is contributed by women, and realizing what a power such a publication can become, many of our country's most famous women have contributed liberally to make the paper a veritable literary treasure house.

Among the well known poetesses whose verses adorn the columns of the paper, are Elizabeth Akors, author of "Rock Me to Sleep"; May Reilly Smith, who wrote "Baby Fingers on the Window Pane"; Louise Chandler Moulton and Jennie Drake, South Carolina's own poetess. Among famous prose writers represented by specially written short stories and sketches are S. Rhett Roman, Kate Chopin, Gertrude Atherton, Septima Collis, Mma. Gustave Lehlback, Belva Lockwood and Elizabeth Cady Stanton.

There will be a charming children's page, to which some of the most celebrated writers of juvenile literature have contributed stories and poems; while the page devoted to Charleston's landmarks, institutions, societies and surroundings, will be full of interest to all lovers of quaint records of Colonial and Revolutionary days.

What the women are doing to make their share of the Exposition a success, will be graphically told in articles prepared by the chairmen of the various committees and lady commissioners of the woman's department.

Altogether, this magnificent paper will be one which every man, woman and child in South Carolina should read, and will doubtless be treasured as a souvenir for long years to come.

The price of this paper will be only ten cents, putting it within the reach of all. Any one desiring copies should leave name and address at this office, with remittances for number of copies desired, or communicate at once with either Miss Martha Washington, chairman press committee, No. 38 Chalmers street, Charleston, S. C., or Mrs. J. M. Visanska, business manager, No. 2 Bull street, Charleston, S. C.

Mr. J. B. Adams of Columbia, and Miss Etta Stitt, of Fairfield County, were married at the residence of her mother, Mrs. Nettie Stitt, on the afternoon of May 8th.

The bride being in deep mourning, the occasion was a quiet one. At the appointed hour a few friends and relatives had gathered in the tastefully decorated parlor to witness the ceremony.

Promptly at 3 o'clock Miss Cooper Walkup, sister of the bride, took her place at the piano, and the couple marched in to the strains of the wedding march. The ceremony, performed by Rev. R. F. Kirkpatrick, was very solemn and impressive. The bride was gowned in black silk and was looking her best.

The handsome young groom seemed to feel no compunctions of conscience that he had robbed old Fairfield of one of its fairest daughters.

The happy couple left Thursday morning for their home in Columbia, where the best wishes of a host of friends follow them.

RE-ELECTION AND RESIGNATION.

An announcement of the close of the Lebanon school at Stevens was made in Tuesday's issue of The News and Herald: "Monday, the 13th, the patrons and trustees of the school met, and they recommended to the county board the re-appointment of the same trustees. The trustees then met and J. W. Pope, the secretary of the board, was authorized to write Miss Gaines the following:

Upon the recommendation and endorsement of the patrons we have hereby elected Miss L. L. Gaines principal of the Lebanon Graded school, with the power to elect her own assistant and music instructor for the next term.

In reply to this notice of her election, Miss Gaines wrote Mr. Pope the following:

Dear Sir:—Your letter notifying me of re-election to the principalship of Lebanon school received. I had requested that my name should not go before the board as I had positively decided not to return. I cannot accept the position under any consideration. I thank the patrons for their support and the trustees for their co-operation.

My best wishes go with you always. Respectfully,
L. L. Gaines.
Richmond, Va., May 15.

The trustees very much regret that Miss Gaines could not be retained as she has given such general satisfaction.

Stock fatten up. Cows give a larger yield of milk and butter. Horses have more spirit and muscle. Can do and like to do the work demanded of them. Buying inferior grades of feed to save a few cents will spoil all this. Better buy here. We sell the best, but not at the highest price.
