

DR. GILL WYLIE'S MALARIA

Treatment a Sure Cure for Chronic Malaria.

A few days ago, while at Great Falls, we noticed posted in many conspicuous places the treatment below for chronic malaria. Working in the summer along the river in a section partially malarial, it was naturally expected that this treacherous disease would lay hold on the workmen. So the president of the Southern Power Company, Dr. Gill Wylie, the eminent surgeon of New York, took great precaution against malaria among the workmen by posting everywhere his treatment of the disease. The very fact that it bears his signature makes it well worth trial on the part of any one suffering from malaria in any form.

DIRECTIONS FOR TREATING CHRONIC MALARIA.

Take four 1-10 grs of calomel after dinner at night, and the next morning a saline laxative, a seidlitz powder or mineral water sufficient to give one free movement of the bowels a day. After each meal take three of the 3 gr. capsules, or two of the 5 gr. capsules of quinine with the juice of a half of a lemon in a half glass of water, so as to insure its absorption, making 27 to 30 grs. a day. In large strong people the amount of the quinine can be increased up to 40 grs. a day instead of 30 grs. Keep this calomel and quinine up for four consecutive days in the above quantities. If during the four days the quinine makes your head buzz or disturbs you excessively, take 20 grs. of bromide of potash in a half glass of water in the afternoon or evening.

After taking 27 or 30 grs. a day for four days, then take 3 grs. three times a day, or one capsule after each meal for four days longer.

After this a tonic pill which has arsenic and iron in it may be taken three times a day for several weeks if indicated.

Then if at any time after this you have the pains in the back of your neck and exhausted feelings, and more or less depression or disturbed digestion have your blood examined and report to me for further treatment will be indicated. It would be perfectly safe if the same general symptoms return to repeat the above treatment in two or three months or more, especially if you live in a malarial district where there are mosquitoes.

By using Merk's bi-sulphate of quinine, 5 grs. dissolved in a teaspoonful of steril water, an injection can be made in the deep muscles of the buttocks with a steril glass syringe, giving two injections of 5 grs. each instead of one of the 9 or 10 gr. doses by mouth. In extreme cases two of these 10 gr. doses may be given by hypodermic instead of by mouth, more effectively.

Meeting of Two Old Vets

(Sunday's State, Oct. 21.)

Dick Hogan, celebrated Hampton scout, and Col. W. W. Miller, another one of the men who wore the gray under Hampton, met yesterday. This simple statement may seem trivial to those who were not associated with the war or in companies that were in Hampton, but to the two it meant much. It was the first time they had seen each other in 42 years. Of course it was a mutual friend to bring them together. Col. U. R. Brooks did this.

"This is Col. Miller," said Dick, with the polite and constrained air used with entire strangers.

"Yes," said the colonel with the same intonation.

"Hogans my name."

"Hogan. The name is familiar."

"Think I met you on the firing line," said the scout.

Then the two men embraced.

"This man," said Col. Miller, "was shot through the lungs and still lives." The astonished bystanders said it was remarkable.

Then the three men wandered off and sat down to talk over old times.

Mr. Hogan gained extensive fame as one of the Hampton scouts and sharpshooters. He came from Fairfield county and after the war went west. He is now a member of the Arkansas legislature and is one of the most peaceful of men. Hearing of the homecoming he decided to come back to his native State for a few days and visit old friends. He called on the governor and others around the capitol and will remain in the city until after the State fair.

A Life Worth Living.

Under the above caption the editor of the Union Times pays a beautiful tribute in his paper to the memory of young Jeffares, of this county who met such a tragic death only a few weeks ago.

"Over in Fairfield county, there is now a very sad home. Sad because the pride of that home has met untimely death; untimely it appears, because it was cut off in the very bloom of young manhood, with all its vigor and force. John W. Jeffares, a young man of 27 years, riding serenely along the public highway, with buoyant thoughts and energetic longings for the work he was soon to begin, was thrown from the animal he was riding and in a few short hours died.

"He was on his way from Chester to take charge of a school, a rural school, where he should instruct in the ways of knowledge and morality the young of that district. A word should be said of his own school days, so fraught with obstacles and set-backs. In childhood he attended the little school near his home, going when other duties did not prevent. The desire for knowledge was the burning spirit of this youth, and when he reached the proper age, overcoming many obstacles he entered Clemson college. There he carried the mails back and forth from Calhoun and did many other services to help pay his way. When the season was over he would return to his farm and work a crop to aid in defraying the coming year's expenses. These things he did until he was graduated from college, and when he received his diploma there was none who was more honored, and we believe none who felt prouder on receiving his commission. After leaving college, he worked on his farm during the summer and taught through the winter. He gave back to those who were struggling for an education, those things which he had gained with so much labor.

"And he has been cut off in this work. Was it all worth while? Who can say? those years of privation and bitter toil and now the result, cut off. Aye, there's the point! The result of that man's life can never be reckoned by man's mind. Even in the few years of his life, he has instilled principles that never die, and that will go on and on working good in the mind and heart of man, finding a culmination only when the deeds of man are all summed up. And the influence of his example, his character and his struggles, may induce others to exhaust every recourse in securing that greatest of treasures knowledge.

"We beg to place one flower over the grave of this young man, for his was the life worth living."

A Young Mother at 70.

"My mother has suddenly been made young at 70. Twenty years of intense suffering from dyspepsia had entirely disabled her, until six months ago, when she began taking Electric Bitters, which have completely cured her and restored the strength and activity she had in the prime of life," writes Mrs. W. JOHN ROBINSON'S

Ten Big Shows Combined, Will Exhibit at Chester, November 9.

Indications are that a large crowd will attend from here. Very low excursion rates will be in effect on all railroads.

The show, under the management of John Robinson, is now enjoying its eighty-third year of prosperity, and is one of the foremost amusement attractions of America, if not of the world.

It numbers among its arenic favorites some of the most expensive and best acts that money can procure. The Capt. Thomson troupe of American cavalrymen, in expert feats of daring and original horsemanship; Dare-devil DeBurr, who sets at defiance all the fixed laws of nature when he dashes down a dizzy incline, and with the speed of a hurricane loops the gap on a bicycle; the marvelously educated group of seals, under the master hand of Capt. Winston; Edna, acknowledged Princess of the realm of horsemanship, the world's only lady somersault rider, and twenty equestrian associates; forty joyous subjects of King Momus in a gleeful rufficiency, and more than a hundred other foreign and American features in three rings and an elevated stage, and introducing as an added feature King Solomon, His Temple and the Queen of Sheba, requiring a cast of a thousand men, women, children and horses, 100 ballet girls reproducing the dances of the day of the king of a thousand wives.

The Robinson Show has always been famed for its menagerie, and this season finds the zoological annex the most complete ever carried by a tented show, comprising costly and rare animals from every section of the globe. This splendid array of animal talent will be seen in the big daily street parade, pronounced by all as the most gorgeous and elaborate pageant of modern times, comprising more than a mile of gold encased wagons, chariots and 500 of the finest of American horses. This is the only big show that is not in the circus trust and no advance in the prices will be made.

Letter to J. C. Caldwell.
Winnsboro, S. C.

Dear Sir: Here's a tale with three or four tails to it.

Professor Irvine has an Academy, Mercersburg, Penn. He paints the floors in summer vacation. It used to take 90 gallons of paint. There were two paint-stores there, and he used to buy (one year of one, next year of the other) 90 gallons year after year.

Now he paints Devoo; 60 gallons; and the difference is a saving of 150 a year.

H. C. Fallon was one of those dealers, good man; but he wouldn't take up Devoo; so we turned to the other, J. A. Boyd. But Fallon has found it necessary to get a good paint to compete with Devoo. He got one of the eight honest paints. He has a big hardware store and is doing an excellent hardware business; but Boyd, of course, has the run on paint—he's a little hardware man.

We don't care how little or big a man is, if he wants good paint and is active and sound.

Yours truly
