

Cocktales

Has everyone recuperated from the weekend? It was simply beautiful weather, and many Carolina students took advantage of it by going to the beach. Those who didn't quite make the ocean were most definitely seen at the Rapids, swinging across cables and indulging in other childish games. Of course at night the action was in the way of parties, formals, D.A.V.'s, Al's Club, and more parties. Spring fever has hit our campus and seems to be affecting all of us. But we must get back to the books and study, study, study (at least until Easter).

A warning to all Carolina Men and Women. Girls, watch out when you walk by the benches in front of the Russell House. Some jerks just sit around out there, and you can hear them say, "Check out those respirators." If anyone knows what a respirator is, please tell me. If I have one I think I have the right to know what it is.

After their last fraternity party, PiKA's have their own version of Lady Godiva. Only this one made his grand debut wearing a raincoat, but, all the same, guests were not deprived of a side show. Absolutely everyone and his brother was at the ZTA semi-formal Saturday night. And if you weren't there, then you must have been at SAE's formal. Sigma Nu's made their way on top of "Wolverton Mountain" Saturday and Sunday. But they weren't looking for girls, for they brought their own.

The NROTC Shipwreck party was quite a sensation. It was visited by one of the Gamecocks' own photographers who put down his camera long enough to partake of the evening's frivolity. Upon processing the film he found that he had been photographed in a most compromising situation. Dress attire made you wonder exactly what they were doing when the ship wrecked.

Preston Dorm had another swinging party Friday night. Phi Kaps have been bragging that they did not stand up twelve girls at the rush party which was on Thursday, not Saturday night. It was fourteen girls. . . . Still looking for dates, boys?? Have all of you noticed the "Carolina Moon" over the Honeycombs lately? By the way—who is John Franklin?

So, gang, keep up the studying and enjoy Greek Week, 'cause it will certainly be something for everyone to remember. And just think of all the goodies you'll be able to read about in next week's column that happened to the Greeks this week. Won't that be an absolute scream?

Greek Week Ends' With Dance, Parties

Greek Week activities are continuing Friday with Greek games on athletic field A at 2 p.m.

The Villagers will play for a dance for the Greeks Friday night at the National Guard Armory.

The Shirelles will highlight Saturday afternoon's pasture party at Barkoot's Pond. Individual fraternity parties Saturday night will end the week's activities.

A general convocation on Monday night keynoted by William E. Forrester, national executive secretary of Kappa Alpha, opened the week of emphasis on Greek life. Mrs. Frances F. Alexander, national president of Kappa Kappa Gamma, also spoke on the Greek system. The meeting was followed by a guest reception at the Kappa Alpha Fraternity Lounge, and panel discussions were held later in the evening.

Tuesday's activities began with afternoon panel discussions. A banquet for the speakers during Greek Week was given that evening, and panel discussions followed.

Wednesday was highlighted with an evening concert by the Impressions at Township Auditorium.

University of Georgia Dean of Men William Tate spoke at the IFC-Panhellenic awards banquet Thursday evening at Rockbridge Country Club.

Panel discussion speakers were George W. Spasyk, national service secretary for Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity; Jack R. Hotaling, assistant to the Eminent Supreme Recorder of Sigma Alpha Epsilon National Fraternity; Dean S. L. Healy, Dean of Women at the University of Alabama; Miss Maxine Blake, grand president of Alpha Delta Pi National Sorority; and Mrs. Kenneth Schulz.
