How to Care For Lamps.

To make a lamp give a good light wash the burner once a week in a hot solution of soda, a teaspoonful of soda to a pint of hot water. To clean a lamp chimney hold it over the steam of a kettle and polish dry inside and out with a newspaper. Lamp chimneys are made much stronger if when new they are covered with cold water, set over the fire and the water is let to come to a boil. Lamps should be emptied and washed out once each week.

How to Clean Hair Combs.

Combs should never be washed, but they may be cleaned by brushing and by pulling a piece of cotton through the teeth, changing it as it becomes soiled. Finally, rub well with a clean cloth.

Seals Learning to Swim.

Young seals do not know how to swim. They have to become gradually accustomed to the water either by entering it to paddle about by themselves or by being carried into it in their mothers' jaws. They have great fear of the waves that break into foam, and as soon as they see one approaching take to flight in terror and do not turn round until they have ascended to a very high place above the sea.
