PICKENS, S. C.:

THURSDAY, JUNE 17, 1909

Do your part to help this town grow, as it is not going to grow by sitting around talking about it. The work is what counts.

Time may be money, but some how some of your friends appreciate the money you spend with them more than the time.

Some want the Tariff taken out of politics. This is not the only quality in which it resembles Prohibition. It prohibits imports.

"Where there is unity there is strength." Remember this at all times and stand together, as we will never advance our city by pulling against one another.

We are not politicians. We want no office, and have no axe to grind. We have the welfare of the people of this town and the surrounding country at heart and if we cannot help to forward the interest of both we are ready to quit. But improvements can be made and our people made to prosper, if we only stand together.

Everybody is talking good roads all over the country. How about this county? The merchants, the farmers, and the leading news papers say we must have good roads. The people have realized the necessity for good roads and their value. Be up and doing. Talk for good roads, work for good roads and the automobile route.

When an observant person notes a need and suggests it, it does not argue that he is trying to run the town, and only those who possess the disposition to "run things" will attach such an extreme construction to his interest. If you know of anything that would be helpful to the town, don't hesitate to suggest it, we'll gladly print it for you.

Patience is a virtue that needs to be more generally cultivated. As a people the citizens of this town are a restless set, impatient of delay and of opposition and chafe under trial and adversity. The world was not made in a day and neither can towns be built up in a day, a week, or a year. But she is growing every day, and will continue to grow with push and energy behind her.

Who said Blacksburg wasn't on a boom? Our people have begun to realize the fact that she has got the best future ahead of her of any place in the up country. One thing, our natural advantages give us the lead. Our climate is the best, our farming lands the finest, and our railroad facilities are the best in the county. Any one can get in and out of our city at very near any time, night or day.

"Some men enjoy work as work, but there are still more who enjoy standing by to see them do it," remarks an exchange. Our people here, or a majority, have gotten over such as this, and each one wants to do his or her part. This is one thing that has put new life in our little city, as our citizens have realized the fact that it takes work, push an energy to make a town grow.

Take life like a man. Take it as though it was—as it is—an earnest, vital, essential affair. Take it just as though you were born to the task of performing a merry part in it—as though the world had waited your coming. Take it as though it were a grand opportunity to achieve, to carry forward great and good schemes, to hold and to cheer a suffering, weary, it may be a broken hearted brother.—Chas. H. Spurgeon.

The Rev. Anna Shaw was discussing playfully her contention—raised at Mrs. Clarence Mackay's house—that man, not woman, was too emotional to vote, says the Rochester Herald. "Why," said the learned lady, take all these extraordinary jury stories. They show the most intense emotionalism. And yet they have nothing to do with women. For instance, there's the story of the tin can murder. The jury remained out thirty-four hours. Then it filed back into the court room, very stale and ill-humored. 'Gentlemen, what is your verdict?' said the judge. 'Wall,' said the foreman, 'eleven on us for hangin.' Judge, Yer Honor; but the 12th man sticks out for acquittal, and there ain't no arguin' with him. He's a low down, no' count rooster, anyways, and so we've decided to make our verdict unanimous by hangin' 'em both.'"

As He Sees It.

The newspaper man often hears suggestions. Frequently he is asked to call attention to this or jump on that; occasionally he is threatened if he shall to thus and so, and once in a great while he is commended for something he has written. But, philosophically, he pursues the even tenor of his way, knowing that he cannot please all the people some of the time, using the judgement with which he is endowed, and influenced less by hope of pecuniary gain, words of praise or threats of loss or violence than by the desire and intention to do the right as he sees it—to act fairly.—Exchange.

County Dispensary Graft.

A few days ago this writer was told an interesting incident in connection with the management of the county dispensary of one of the counties that retain this system. The gentleman who related the story requested that his name be not used, if the story was published and for that reason neither name nor place will be mentioned. The story is a true one and every statement can be verified, therefore it is too good to keep. The facts are as follows, according to the relator, who said that the story was told to him by a member of the dispensary board of — county.

A month or two ago the dispensary board placed an order with a certain liquor house for a quantity of whisky, the proof and quality of which were guaranteed to be the same as sample submitted with bid. When the liquor arrived the board, for reason not stated, suspected that it did not come up to sample, so it was submitted to reputable chemist to be tested. The chemist reported that the whisky was not as good as the sample and it was under proof. The liquor house was communicated with and the report of the chemist laid before them. They came down at once, like Davy Crockett's coon, without forcible measures. They left it to the county board to name the terms of settlement. The board decided to pay for the whisky on the basis of the chemist's report and sent a check for the amount deemed fair and just. The liquor men promptly sent a receipted bill and a credit memorandum and a letter of thanks—and in addition there was included in the same letter, but without a word of explanation, a fifty dollar bill. It is said that the bill was returned to the liquor house by the next mail. The relator of the story also said that he had heard that the dispensary board of another county had had practically the same experience with the same liquor house. Neither story refers to Sumter county, nothing of the kind having occurred here.

The story shows that the liquor houses are still inclined to hand out a little graft when opportunity offers and that they need close watching.—Sumter Item

Fair Meeting.

Another meeting of the Pickens County Fair Association was held in the court house Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The attendance was good and every one present showed a deep interest in the success of the Fair next fall.

All the committees have been appointed and they are urgently requested to get together as soon as possible and get their work in shape.

It is the purpose of the association to interest every man, woman and child in Pickens county in the Fair to make it a greater success than the one last year for it means a great deal to the farming, stock and business interests of the county.

Let every one go to work now to have something in the Fair, talk for it, work for it and come to it, and it will be a big success.

The Telephone Girl.

The telephone girl sits still in her chair and listens to voices from everywhere. She hears all the gossip, she hears all the news, she knows who is happy and who has the blues; she knows all our joys, sorrows, she knows every girl who is chasing the boys; she knows of our troubles, she knows of our strife, she knows every man who talks mean to his wife; she knows every time we are out with "the boys;" she hears the excuses each fellow employs; she knows every woman who has a dark past, she knows every man who is inclined to be "fast;" in fact, there's a secret beneath each saucy girl of that quiet, demure-looking telephone girl. If the telephone girl told all that she knows it would turn half our friends into bitterest foes; she could sow a small wind that would soon be a gale, engulf us in trouble and land us in jail; she could get all of the churches mixed up in a fight and turn all our days into sorrowing night; in fact, she could keep the whole town in a stew if she'd tell a tenth part of the things that she knew. Oh, brother, doesn't it make your head whirl when you think what we owe to the telephone girl?

A Beautiful Story of Love.

Many curious stories were told in Messina after its disaster, according to Robert Hicheds, who has written for the Century Magazine of his experiences and observations. "After the Earthquake." One of the strangest of the stories he heard he tells as follows: "A woman after the shock was buried alone in her room. The door was blocked by fallen masonry. There was no means of ingress or egress, and the rest of the house had fallen in ruins. She was uninjured but she was imprisoned. In this room she remained for eight days. It was a bedroom and contained no food. During the eight days she gave birth to twins. When searchers, with pick and spades

70 Bales on 60 Acres

Editor Daily Mail: Dear Sir—The following correspondence will explain itself. Kindly publish it and very much oblige us. Yours truly, Anderson Phos. & Oil Co.

Mr. J. Wade Drake, Anderson, S. C.

Dear Sir—We have heard that by a liberal use of fertilizer, principally in side dressing, you made 70 bales of cotton on sixty acres of land last year. We will appreciate if you will give us your method of preparation, fertilization and cultivation which resulted in this crop. We wish to give the public the benefit of your experience as we think it will be an inducement to farmers to side dress their crops.

Thanking you in advance for the favor of an early reply, we are, Yours truly, Anderson Phos. & Oil Co.

Anderson Phosphate & Oil Co., Anderson, S. C.

Gentlemen—Answering your favor of the 7th will say that after preparing the land well I put two hundred pounds of fertilizer to the acre before planting. At the second plowing I applied four hundred and fifty pounds more of fertilizer to the acre and when the first cotton blooms appeared I applied seventy pounds of nitrate of soda to the acre. I did this on sixty acres of land which I planted in cotton and on the sixty acres I gathered and sixty-eight eight bales of cotton, averaging 511 pounds to the bale. And then, when I thought I had gathered the crop after Christmas, I picked enough cotton to make 712 pounds of lint cotton so it will be seen that altogether I made more than seventy 50-pound bales of cotton on the sixty acres. I cultivated this cotton as I usually cultivate my cotton except that I used fertilizer better than usual. A good part of the fertilizer was Anderson Phosphate and Oil Company fertilizer, the balance was other brands. I was never able to see any difference in the cotton fertilized by Anderson goods and the other goods

Yours truly, J. Wade Drake.

Mr. J. E. Stevenson Anderson, S. C.

Dear Sir: We have side dressed some of our cotton. We will be glad if result of this, and very much oblige us.

Thanking you for the favor of an early reply, we are,

Yours truly, ANDERSON PHOSPHATE AND OIL COMPANY.

Anderson, S. C., June 6, 1908.

Anderson Phos. & Oil Co. Anderson, S. C.

Dear Sir: I have your letter of June 4th, and in reply will say that my experience in side dressing corn last year is as follows: In one field of about 15 acres which I planted in corn I side dressed 10 acres and left five acres not side-dressed. On the 10 acres which I side-dressed I made 31 bushels to the acre. On the five acres not side dressed the yield was not over 19 bushels to the acre. It cost me about $ to side dress the 10 acres; about $3 to side dress the 5 acres. I increased the yield at least 25 bushels of corn per acre. I intend to side dress the whole 15 acres but rain came on and continued so long until the corn was too far advanced before I could get to it to side dress it. It will pay any one handsomely to side dress corn.

Yours truly, J. E. STEVENSON.

You will see what side dressing has done for Wade Drake and Jim Stevenson. It will pay you as well as it did them if you will do the needful. Side dressing will pay you better than any fertilizer you put in the ground. We have some very superior goods for sale for side dressing.
