Columbia, S. C .- "I regret very much to report the conditions of many school buildings in the state far short of what they should be," says B. A. Wharton in his report to insurance Commissioner McMaster after inspecting the school buildings of the state with reference to fire protection and fire escapes. "I find comparatively few school buildings in the state properly provided with fire extinguishers and fire escapes which in my opinion is very essential to the safety of the property and the lives of the occupants of such buildings.

"I further call your attention to the fact that there are school buildings in South Carolina packed to their fullest capacity with human souls that either have no fire escapes, or the fire escapes are so inadequate that in event of a confagration during school hours, it would be almost, if not impossible, to empty such buildings of their occupants without serious loss of human life."

Washington, D. C.-Director Durand of the census bureau, informed Representative Patterson that only fiftyfour of the applicants in South Carolina who recently stood examination for clerkship in the census bureau here had been successful. This covers the entire state. Mr. Durand seemed to think that this inability to pass the examination successfully was no reflection on those who attempted them, but was more to be accounted for by reason of the fact that the questions asked were largely those dealing with manufacturing and kindred matters, about which many persons have little knowledge. It is not yet shown whether another opportunity will be given South Carolina to try for these places.
