

Lydia's Public Health Aims

By Carolyn Inglett, R. N.
Lydia Mill Nurse

Public health is the health of everyone and a very important subject at the Lydia plant. It is divided into six basic functions:

(1) Communicable disease control in which we try to prevent disease from occurring, but if it does, preventing its spread to others. Many of the communicable diseases may be prevented by "shots" which give immunity to the disease. Typhoid fever is an example where we can take 3 shots to prevent developing typhoid. After the basic three shots we then should take a booster shot each year, or wait three years and then again take three shots again. In addition to the shots, we should practice good sanitation—such as keeping our homes screened, and being careful of the milk and water we drink.

On four days during last month we had typhoid clinics at the Lydia Mill clinic and 300 people availed themselves of shots from the public health nurses, Miss Clark and Mrs. Rossiter, and the public health doctor, Dr. Baldwin.

(2) Sanitation of our surroundings has made much progress in the Lydia village with replacement of privies with modern sewerage disposal. Efforts are being made to remove all mosquito breeding places. Those who know of mosquito breeding spots should report them to the Lydia clinic. Those who raise pigs and cows should spray the pens frequently with a good fly killer, and don't throw out tin cans which collect water and breed mosquitoes.

(3) Supervisory health advice to expectant mothers and their babies. Expectant mothers should consult their family physician early and remain under his care. Young children should be given shots which prevent many of the childhood diseases.

(4) Laboratory work. The public health service checks our water and milk and inspects eating places for cleanliness.

(5) Statistics and records. The service keeps records of all communicable diseases and immunizations.

(6) Health education. Through moving pictures and newspaper articles.

The Lydia Mill clinic ties in closely with this service in aiding the health, happiness, and "well-fare" of our people.

(The Lydia clinic is under the capable supervision of Mrs. Carolyn Inglett, a registered nurse, university graduate and who has had a fine background of experience in several hospitals. — Editor's note.)

Maps Available

An excellent occupation map of Japan, Korea and the Far East is available to any service man who formerly worked at Clinton or Lydia mills, or whose parents now work here. The map is sent free by James Young, publisher of Tri-State Safety Journal, Anderson, S. C.

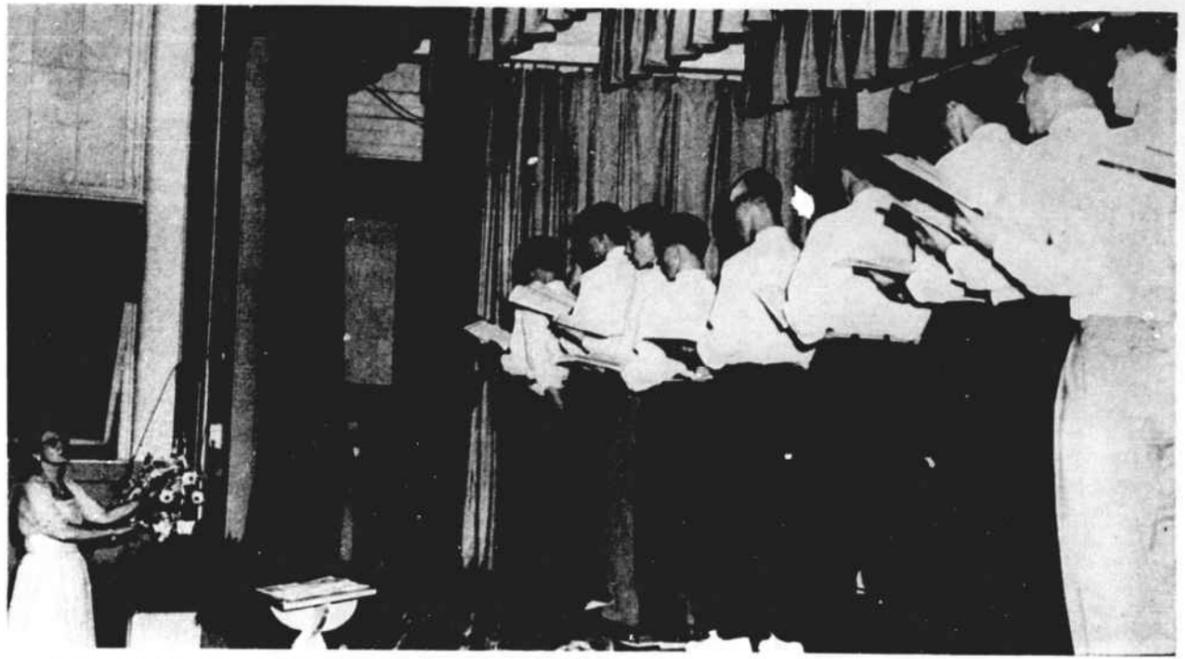

All you need do is send a postcard to that address giving the name of the serviceman, serial number and correct address with APO or FPO, and state that either he or you work at Clinton or Lydia, and the map will be sent promptly, free.

THE CLINTON PLANT had a full schedule of 4th of July events for youngsters there, typical of which is this photograph of the young misses "backward race."

THE COOLING WATERS of the Clinton pool attracted many on the Fourth. This is a scene during one of the swimming races scheduled during the morning.

THE CLINTON MILLS MALE CHORUS presented their first public performance at a recital June 12 at the Academy Street School. Under the direction of Mrs. Joe E. Land, the chorus consists of Rufus King, Leon Hedspeth, William Patterson, Bobby Pearson, Charles Oxner, Boyce Wilson, Alvin Hampton, Rev. Gene Phillips and Rev. Wallace Terry. Others interested in joining may meet with the chorus at one o'clock each Wednesday in the Clinton community building.

Around Clinton

By Mrs. Joe Land

It's mountain time again for the Campfire, Horizons and Blue Bird girls at the Clinton plant. They're leaving for Camp Buck Horne, Paris Mountain at 6 next Monday, returning Wednesday. A full program is planned and the girls will have a wonderful and interesting time.

Plans are underway to organize a Cub Scout Pack at Clinton Mill for boys 8, 9, and 10 years old. A Cubmaster and Den Mothers already have been obtained. Mothers with boys this age are urged to get in touch with Mrs. Land at the community building. Cub Scouting gives wonderful training, but it must have the support of parents to be successful. Give your boy this wonderful chance.

The Schubert Music Club held a picnic at Horse Shoe Falls June 25.

Youth Nights were resumed in the Clinton community building June 28. All young people looking for a good time are urged to attend these Youth Nights each Saturday night at 7:30. Refreshments are served.

The next meeting of the Clinton Woman's Club will be held July 21 and will be the club's annual picnic.

Clinton Hobby Club meets second Tuesday each month. Join us.

Curtain Fund Is Completed

The final payment was made this past month for the beautiful curtain which has added much to the programs at Academy Street School, thus completing an outstanding project of the Clinton Woman's Club.

Most of the $588 curtain cost was raised by dinners which the club gave for other organizations. The Clinton Men's Club this month gave the Woman's Club a check for $83, thus completing the payments.

Mrs. J. V. Lowe, president of the Woman's Club, expressed the club's appreciation to the Men's Club and all others who have helped in this very worthy project. Other Woman's Club officers include Mrs. J. R. Arnold, first vice president; Mrs. Joe Cooper, second vice president; Mrs. Oscar Kinard, secretary and Mrs. Clinton West, treasurer.

Clinton Pupils Give Recital

Piano students of Mrs. Joe E. Land presented a recital at Academy Street School June 12, at the same time presenting Mrs. Land with a lamp in appreciation of her work with the young people.

The invocation was given by Rev. W. R. Terry. Floral arrangements of gladioli and spirea added beauty to the entrance and stage. The girls, in pastel formals, harmonized in color as well as in their duet and quartet numbers. W. R. Anderson, Jr., school superintendent, expressed the appreciation of the schools for the curtain presented by the Clinton Woman's Club.

The Clinton Mill's Male Chorus made its first public appearance, singing "While the Years Roll By," and "My Hero." The Blue Birds and Campfire Girls, dressed as Indians, presented several numbers.

The Calvary Baptist Church choir, accompanied by Mrs. Bobby Boyce and Mrs. Vernon Trammell, sang two numbers, after which National Guild certificates were awarded to pupils by George H. Cornelson, vice president of the mills. Other awards were presented by David S. Cook, and the benediction was given by Rev. J. V. Cole.
