

Employees Trained in Scott Air Pack Use

Personnel from Clinton's four weaving plants participated in a comprehensive Scott Air Pak training program.

Tom Durgin, a sales representative for Safety Equipment Company, demonstrated the proper use of the life-saving emergency equipment.

"Clinton Mills has long had a reputation of providing the best equipment available," stated Durgin. "The equipment is available, but we must know how to use it," he added.

"Every person designated as a Scott Air Pak user on the fire fighting team should take necessary time to practice with the equipment so that if a fire breaks out, employees will be familiar enough to put the device on in 30 seconds or less."

During each training session, fire fighters learned the various techniques in operating the "air pak" valves, replacement of the tanks, and proper checks for safe operations.

Employees were shown how to communicate with fellow fire fighters while wearing the face mask, the necessity of using a safety line to find the way from a smoke-filled room, and the feel of the equipment while crawling on the floor.

The company has numerous Scott Air Paks located at designated areas throughout the plants. They are checked regularly for operational readiness and frequently to meet the latest safety standards.

Left to right: Sonny King, Van Oxner and Ricky Page help Billy Ray Smith learn the operation of breathing apparatus.

Participants in Training

Those participating in the Scott Air training from their respective plants were:

PLANT NO. 1—Albert Brown, Theodore Rice and Glenn Dellinger

MAINTENANCE—Buddy Tapp, Marshall Vaughan, Sammy Lanford, Fred Ballew, James Smitherman, Rick Page, Mike Kinard, Bryan Coleman and Donald Trammell

PLANT NO. 2—Harold Stroud, Grady Stevenson, Billy R. Smith, Brian Blackwell, Michael Maggond, M.H. Campbell, Kenneth Bull, Larry Lawson and Ray Gossett

LYDIA—James A. Smith, Roosevelt Fair, George R. Smith, Van Oxner, Leroy McGee, Roger Deyton and James Robinson

STAFF—Sonny King and James

Buchanan

BAILEY—Roy Edwards, Harry Lanford, Bruce Clark, Buck Walker, Calvin Franklin, Leroy Wells, Jimmy Barrett, Bobby McClellan, Richard Patterson, Claude S. Smith, Jr., James Parkman, J.C. Childress, Calvin Shelton, Robert Cobb, Teddy McClendon, James Cunningham, Rabbit King, Garel Satterfield, David O'Shields, James Woody, Preston Culbertson, James Williams, Willie Watson, James Brown, Wilton Pyles, John Faulkner, Isaac Carter, Larry Pace, Donnie Pitts, Willie Leake, Fred Fuller, Maxie Walenzine, George King, Carroll Smith, Frank McCarson, Leonard Finley, Charles Whitmire, Ellis M. Crowder, Allen Robertson, John L. Cook, Jimmy Jacks and Willie Greene

Tom Durgin, left, explains operation of Scott Air Pak to Fred Ballew.

Training Director James Buchanan, right, assists Calvin Franklin, center, with Scott Air Pak. Fred Ballew, left, is assisting.

Alexis Glenn Is Finalist

Alexis Glenn has been selected as a finalist in the 1984 Miss South Carolina Pre-Teen Pageant. The pageant will be held on August 18, 1984, at the Hyatt-Regency in Greenville, S.C. Contestants are judged on personal interview, poise, personality, talent and appearance.

Alexis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steven C. Wright of Joanna. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. C.A. Wright of Clinton, and Mrs. Ellis W. Glenn of Whitmire. She is a student of Joanna-Woodson elementary and has had 4 years of dance instruction under the direction of Wilson Dance Academy and Kendyl's School of Dance in Whitmire.

Alexis Glenn