Three-fourths of the people on earth would gladly trade places with any man or woman in America.

That sounds like a pretty far-out statement, but just stop and think for a moment—let's compare ourselves with these millions—not with each other.

The trouble with the average American is that he always compares himself with someone else. The world, however, is not made up of just Americans but many millions of human beings who have the same desires and needs we have. When we compare ourselves to them, we begin to see what it means to be an American.

WE ARE FREE to come and go, to worship as we see fit, to raise our children as we wish, to say what we think without fear, to own personal property, to go as far in our work as our energy, talents and ambitions will take us.

Three-fourths of the people in the world are not free.

WE ARE WELL FED. And our children are well fed, because famine has never struck our land. We even share our bounty with other, less fortunate nations.

Almost three-fourths of the people in the world go to bed hungry every night.

WE HAVE ABUNDANCE. In material things, we are unsurpassed. The poorest among us enjoys such things as telephone, bathtub, television, electrical appliances, automobiles, good water, fine sewers, excellent roads, parks—the list is endless.

Three-fourths of the people in the world have few, or none of these things.

WE HAVE GROUP SECURITY greater than any other nation on earth! Our nation is prosperous, progressive and defended as no other nation has been defended.

Three-fourths of the world's people live in constant fear of their better-armed neighbors and on land which can hardly support the population, much less give them the better things of life.

WE HAVE INDIVIDUAL SECURITY. Through initiative and hard work, we have attained the highest standard of living of any nation in the world. We are each a part of a company that provides benefits undreamed of by employees in many other nations.

As Americans, we are among the one-fourth of the world's most fortunate people. We have only to compare to see what we really have.
