Mrs. Inez Turner retired from Plant No. 1 weaving recently following 33 years continuous service. Superintendent Joe McCall is shown presenting her with a retirement gift and expressing his sincere appreciation for her many contributions to his plant's Weaving Department.

Mildred Snow, center, completed twenty-five continuous years' service to the Company recently. She chose a mantel clock as her service award. Presenting her with the award of recognition are Lydia Plant Manager Joe Nelson, left, and Spinning Superintendent Joe Wilkie, right.

"I've enjoyed every day I've worked here," said Cloa Dunaway as she received her forty year continuous service award from Plant No. 2 Manager Ted Davenport. Adding their remarks for Cloa's outstanding record were, left to right, Spinning Superintendent Mac George and Assistant Departmental Superintendent Estess Campbell.

Robert Knox began looking forward to receiving his Old Timer's watch twenty-five years ago when he was employed August 7, 1959. Robert, a Plant No. 2 Spinning employee, is shown receiving his award from Plant No. 2 Manager Ted Davenport. With Robert, on left to right, Billy McGee and Mac George, Assistant Departmental and Departmental Superintendents, respectively.

Melvin Seay ended a 48 year working career with Plant No. 2 as he retired July 21, 1984. Melvin was a spinning doffer.

Claud Barker retired July 13, 1984 from Plant No. 2 Weaving. He had been with the Company since September 8, 1966.

Jerry Satterfield joined Clinton Mills July 28, 1959 and has completed requirements for membership in the Old Timer's Club. Jerry is a Lydia Weaving Assistant Departmental Superintendent.

Clara B. Gilstrap joined the ranks of numerous fellow retired employees as she inspected the last yard of fabric in the Lydia Cloth room, marking the end of a 28 year career with the Lydia Plant.
