

OPPORTUNITY

KNOCKS AT EVERY MAN'S DOOR

IT'S KNOCKING AT YOURS NOW!

From now until January we are going to offer you the chance of a lifetime to buy goods. We have to move January 1st. We can move cash easier than goods. LISTEN! Then come and see:

30 men's and youths' Suits, were $6.00, now 3.90. 25 men's Suits, were 7.50, now 5.00. Big lot men's Hats 50 per cent. off. Lot men's Shirts, in good condition, one-third off. Lot men's Overcoats greatly reduced. Lot ladies' Shoes at a sacrifice. Lot 54-inch Broadcloth at 85c. Lot 54 inch Repellants at 45c. Best half patent Flour 2.25; best patent 2.65.

In fact the price is cut on everything in our store. We must sell the goods as we can't afford to move them.

Yours for business,

LANCASTER MERCANTILE CO.

HORSE RUBBING.

Pately Bridge, Veterinary Editor of London Farm & Home, says:

The way to "deal with a horse which is constantly rubbing against posts and projections, and causing trouble," is to take steps to prevent the rubbing and to allay the irritation. The statement that "there are no visible signs of irritation, and it seems more like a bad habit than anything else," suggests the trouble to be the disordered sensibility of the skin of obscure origin, technically known as prurigo or pruritis. Williams ("Principles and Practice of Veterinary Surgery") says: "The most striking feature of this condition is severe itching, and it very often consists of what Mr. Percival calls a sort of cutaneous furor, to which horses pampered and little worked, are liable, and which appears constitutional in its origin. There is insufferable itching, and the habit, once contracted, is exceedingly difficult to get rid of." The necessity for, as far as possible, preventing the rubbing, cannot be too strongly insisted upon, because indulgence in this not only damages the skin and coat, and causes great disfigurement, but actually increases the irritation. By means of a muzzle and a puzzle a great deal can be done to prevent biting and rubbing while treatment is being employed for allaying the irritation. A most useful local dressing for this purpose is a lotion of liquor potassae, 2 drachms; hydrocyanic acid, 1 drachm; water 1½ pint. This should be applied freely and frequently to the skin, and a linen sheet employed to help retain the moisture. In winter, when a blanket rug is worn, it is a good plan to put a linen sheet under the woolen clothing. An alternative dressing is a 5 per cent, watery solution of liquor carbonis detergens or Jevés' Fluid.. A dose of physic, followed by a course of alternative powder, is advisable. Some obstinate cases we have known to be benefited by a course of arsenic in the shape of ¼ oz. doses of Fowler's solution (liquor arsenicalis) twice a day for ten days or a fortnight. Owing to the cumulative action of arsenic this treatment must not be continued for longer than this without an interval.

During the recent cold in Switzerland thousands of swallows fell exhausted and frozen. At Lucerne and Zurich the birds were collected and taken care of by the people until they had sufficiently recovered, and then dispatched by train to Italy, where they were set at liberty, and continued their migration southward.

A communication received by a London firm read: "I beg to inform you that Mr. ——— passed away yesterday at the request of his widow."
