THE ATLANTIC CABLE.

I bid thee hail! dear Jonathan,
Thou, younger brother mine,
And drop, as erst I promis'd thee,
A true and friendly line;
And with it send a fervent wish,
That Britain long may be
In league with thee for truth and right,
And holy liberty.

The quarrels in thy family,
Thank God, are now pass'd o'er,
And men once slaves to fellow men,
Shall be thus slaves no more;
And I with thee will ever strive
To keep this flag unfurl'd—
"Commerce and peace between the States,
And freedom for the world!"
O, may there never, never flash
Along these magic lines,
The words that dash a nation's hope
With harid war's dread signs;
But as the power of science binds
Our land so close with thine,
So may our hearts, friend Jonathan,
In peace for aye entwine.

—ATHENAEUM.
