From the Columbia Telescope.

It may not be proper to enquire into the state of our internal improvements, and to know what plans are adopted for their completion.—It appears much time and money has been, and is about to be expended, and no suggestion to the public, what has been or is about to be done to effect it. Much might be said on the subject of the navigation of our rivers and canals, as respects the working of the same, and much might be said respecting the great road, directed by our legislature. In the first place, what was the object that the legislature had in view in ordering that road? It appears they must have intended it to meet the convenience of those of its citizens who are the most remote from the advantages of navigation—at the same time to afford the western people a more free and direct rout to our markets. To effect this object, what is now to be considered the most politic plan in laying out and working it? Is its directions to be so marked as to afford in a great degree all the advantages to the people now enjoying or about to enjoy navigation? Is it to run in the neighbourhood of Broad or Saluda rivers, or ought its course to lay in a more central situation between those rivers, or is its course to meet the views of a few villagers? If the latter is to be the sole object, I am led to conclude that the honest intentions of our legislature will be defeated, to the prejudice of the mass of the community. I find by conversing on the subject of this road, every man wants it by his own door or through the neighbourhood, for some sinister advantage to himself.

We may expect all the scheming insinuations imaginable will be put afloat, to have its influence on the Board of Public Works. It would not be unwise in the members of that board, to confine their plans to the policy and honest intentions of the legislature, which was, that the road should run in a central direction between Broad and Saluda rivers, a due regard being had to the ground it should occupy. The most judicious plan would be, to first lay out its direction, and instead of the public's hiring hands by the month at an extravagant rate, the road be laid off in working districts or sections, and contract with individuals, so much for a certain distance, and bind them in good and sufficient security for their performance.

I have dropt those few hints in order that some one more capable may take it up and treat upon it more at large. Estimate, from Boatner's ferry on Saluda, to Newberry village, seven miles from Newberry village to Lyle's Ford, on Broad river, twenty-two miles.—This will show the variation from the centre, by carrying the road by way of Newberry village, as well as the impolicy of bending the road from the west, to meet the convenience of the Augusta markets.

A FRIEND TO THE GENERAL INTEREST.

To Doctor Samuel L. Mitchell, professor of natural and unnatural philosophy, of ornithology, entomology or insectology, ichthyology, conchology, vermology, meteorology, mineralogy, horology, osteology, geology, crystallography, chemistry, electricity, pneumatics, hydraulics and fantasticks, &c. &c. &c.

Dear Doctor.—On a former occasion I had the honor of addressing you, and I have now to inform you, your learned letter on the whale, now exhibiting in New York has excited universal attention, while at the same time it has puzzled the brains of all our Philadelphia philosophers.—Zoologists have hitherto classed the whale among fishes—you merely declare it to be of the "Cetaceous order," and that it likewise resembles other mammiferous beings," from which the said philosophers infer, that all mammiferous beings are cetaceous, and that consequently—a cow is a whale.

The question, you say, whether a whale is, or is not a fish, is forever put to rest; but you have not informed us in what class of created beings he is in future to be placed, leaving us evidently to the conclusion that a whale is nothing short of a human creature, for the following reasons:

1st. Whales are found swimming in the great Atlantic ocean—so is man.

2d. Whales have ears and eye lids—so has man.

3d. Whales "feed upon the mollucous animal or sea clam"—so does man.

4th. Whales "have pectorial appendages, shoulder blades, humerus cubat, wrist and hand"—so has man.

5th. Whales wear mittins or close gloves—so does man.

6th. Whales may become nuisances—so may learned men.

From these deductions, which are taken from your aforesaid letter, I am inclined to your opinion, that whales are of the human species.

God preserve you for a thousand years in the New-York Museum.

Texas.—A passenger arrived at Norfolk from New-Orleans reports that General Long had re-organized the expedition against the Texas, including in his views the whole of New Mexico—has 5000 troops under his command at Galveztown—has been joined by La Fitte, the pirate, and Venezulian privateers.

An extra Call of the Tennessee Legislature is made by the Governor of that State to meet on the 26th inst. The Governor assigns as a reason for this extra Session, "that a just regard to the interest of the good people of the State seems to require it." The real object, it is believed, is to afford some kind of relief to the embarrassed affairs of the citizens of that State.

Voyage to Africa performed by a Steam-Boat.—A royal brig, called Le Voyageur, was lately fitted out at L'Orient, for a voyage to Senegal, as a steam packet, the first of this construction that has quitted a French port for a distant expedition. She performed the passage in sixteen days.

A patent has lately been obtained for making boots without seams.—The thigh of the beast that furnishes the leather, is to be flayed without cutting open, and dressed and carried on blocks. The boot top is made in the same manner of the shoulder.

Varnish for Wood.—The Italian cabinet work is varnished in the following manner—Saturate the surface with oil, and then apply a solution of gum arabic in boiling alcohol.

An inkstand has been invented, which, with the addition of water only, will supply ink. It contains carbonaceous and extractive matter in a dry state.

Home Manufacture.—One gallon of water-melon juice will, by boiling, afford a pint of pure syrup preferable to honey or molasses for domestic or medicinal purposes.

Mineral Water.

W. & S. BLANDING.

HAVE procured from Philadelphia, a complete apparatus for making MINERAL WATER.—The Soda Fount will always be filled and ready for use, Sundays excepted.

Bottles filled for family use, at the shortest notice.

"SODA WATER has been directed by Medical men, as a remedy in a number of common and troublesome complaints.—It is a complete remedy against sourness of the stomach, commonly called heartburn, and in most cases, of indigestion and weakness of the stomach, it is very useful; gradually restoring the appetite, and with it the tone of that organ—it is a preventive of many of the diseases of the stomach and bowels, which proceed from acidity; and for the same reason it often removes and prevents the sick headache. As a palliative, and even a remedy, in some cases, of urinary calculi and gravelly complaints, it is preferable to the Ballston water—it may prevent, arrest, retard or remove complaints, according to circumstances.

"SODA WATER is also a very refreshing and grateful drink, especially after heat and fatigue, and may be made a complete substitute for the beverage of which ardent spirits forms a part."
