Sand-bank Jottings.

MR. EDITOR.—A few notes from the sands of Hilton Head may be acceptable to some of your readers. You are aware of the nature of the soil on which this town is built. It is loose sand and nought else,—emphatically free soil.

Luckless horses and mules draw their weary some loads through it from day to day. Sundays not excepted, and it is not strange that many animals become wind-broken and more become baulky. Every high wind plays havoc with this free soil, quite inconvenient to the denizens. It fills our eyes and ears; it enters every crevice of our buildings, and settles down on clerks' desk, merchants' counter, and the kitchen-table and shelves. Still, quite a town has grown up during the past four years on this sandy foundation, most of the buildings having been erected for war purposes, or business connected with the war, and without architectural beauty or any view to permanence. A coat of white wash gives them a clean and healthy appearance. Some of the later structures are more permanently built and have a more architectural finish.

The Sea Island Hotel is a very respectable edifice, and has a fine water-view. The new and extensive hospital buildings will, when completed, be neat and well adapted to sanitary purposes.

The dock enlargement will be completed in the course of the winter. The work is most thoroughly done, and the whole will form one of the finest docks on the coast, with a double horse-railroad track the entire length.

It is the opinion of some that the public and private works named will be completed just about the time that they will not be wanted; and they are ready to propound the question—cui bono? For what end, or for whose good are these things done? They concede a military post and its necessary accompaniments, and that is all.

But others think differently. Northern sagacious men see this to be an objective point—a centre of vast commercial enterprise in the future. In their estimation the great South-eastern commercial city of the States is not yet built.

This is not an idle dream. The picture is to become a reality unless all the others are false. What a harbor is here!—spacious, deep and safe, admitting the largest ships.

Commerce rides in mighty sea craft nowadays. Europe wants the staples of these States, and they, in turn, want her manufactures. A straight highway is demanded, and will be had. The only desiderata is a few miles of railroad to a point on the main land. This is hardly a fish bite for Northern capitalists.

The war has unlocked the door for North-ern enterprise. The South is poor; she will welcome Northern capital, which will reap a golden harvest. The land is here ready to be tilled; the mighty forests are here to furnish millions of lumber: and the streams are here. Railroads are here easily built to convey the staples to the sea. There are vast treasures buried here to be turned to the use of man.

The old order of things under the exhausting and corrupting system of unpaid labor, has forever passed away. Henceforth, with a proper reconstruction, under the auspices of Freedom, Education, and Virtue, this section of the country will vie with any other in the beauty and magnificence of its productions, and in its general prosperity. A CONSUMPTIVE CURED.

DR. H. JAMES, a retired physician of great eminence, discovered, while in the East Indies, a certain cure for Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, and General Debility. The remedy was discovered by him when his only Child a daughter was given up to die. His Child was cured, and is alive and well. Desirous of benefiting his fellow mortals, he will send to those who wish it the recipe, containing full directions for making and successfully using the remedy, free, on receipt of their names, with two stamps to pay expenses. There is not a single symptom of Consumption that it does not at once take hold of and disclose. Night sweats, perishonce take hold of and disclose. Night sweats, perishness, irritation of the nerves, failure of memory, difficult expectoration, sharp pains in the lungs, sore throat, chilly sensations, pauses at the stomach, intection of the bowels, wasting away of the muscles.

MARRIED.

In this city, by Rev. T. W. Lewis, Nov. 1, Andrew Smalls to Tena Palmer. 10th. Harry White to Marg't Greene. Nov 17, John Moore to Nancy Ann Orea. Nov. 23, Joseph Richardson to Anna Lawrence.

On Sunday, 17th inst., by Rev. Jacob Legare, Mr. Joseph Milliken to Miss Frances, daughter of H. P. Pinckney.

☞ Owing to the extended report of the Colored People's Convention this week, we have been obliged to omit many articles that otherwise would have appeared.

LIEUT.-GEN. GRANT and family arrived in New York last Monday. Among other places which he visited was the Club Rooms of the Union League, and received the ho-pitalities of its members.

The Invalide Russe positively denies the report circulated in he German papers that the town of Tashkend had been captured by the Emir of Bokhara and the Russian garrison massacred.

JAMAICA.—The population of the Island of Jamaica in 1848 was put down at 379,690 of whom only about 16,000 were whites. If anything like that ratio prevails at the present time, and the reported insurrection among the blacks is at all general, the situation of the whites must be bad enough. The report, however, that the insurrection is due in any degree to "the stories of the indulgence and support afforded by the United States Government of the freedmen of the South," as contained in a letter from Kingston to the New York News, seems too absurd for belief.

W. B. SCOTT, editor of the Colored Tennessean, made us a call on Wednesday last. His paper is the first colored paper started in the South, and we are glad to know that it is meeting with that success which its merit demands.

☞ The following paragraph is from the Columbus (Ga.) Sun. It seems strange that the Sun should advocate such measures for colored people, and let the white folks who have no "visible means of support" obtain their bread without labor:

"Preparations have now been completed to have a chain-gang of the idle negroes found in Columbus. All colored people, who have no visible means of support are to have a ball and chain attached to them, and sent to work at leveling the fortifications around the city, the city to feed them in the while. It is the determination of both the civil and the military authorities that no idlers, who can only exist by pilfering and robbery, will be allowed to remain in the city, unless they can be forced to earn their bread. Some eight are to be put to work this morning."

THE NAKED TRUTH.—The Florida Times issued at Jacksonville, with reference to the conflict of assertions respecting free negro labor, has the following transcript from its experience:

"We daily come in contact with representatives of the two classes, and it is instructive to listen to their expressions and contrast their experience. One comes in from driving his 'niggers,' and with despairing, haggard, vexed countenance, declares the d—d niggers won't work, and there is no use in trying them—I pay fifteen dollars per month, and rations more than they can consume, and two of them won't do as much work as one slave—they won't work—we can raise no cotton by free labor."

Another planter replies, 'I have no difficulty—I work fifty hands; pay them ten dollars per month, and two of them do more work than three slaves! It is the way you treat them. I find no difficulty.'

"An intelligent slaveholder, a gentleman of cultivation and liberal views, met a large planter fuming, fretting, cursing, despairing—the country was ruined, no more cotton could be raised, 'niggers' wouldn't work, his plantation was ruin-less, et., et. 'What will you take for your plantation?' asked the gentleman, after vain attempts to induce him to reason. 'Twelve thousand dollars,' said the planter. 'I'll take it.' The property was transferred, and the new proprietor immediately placed it in charge of the negroes, the former slaves of the old proprietor, who to the number of 90, entered in co-partnership to cultivate the farm upon shares—they receiving one-third the crop. They assure the new proprietor that they will raise 200 acres more cotton than ever before.

"If all our people would accept the result of war and gracefully go down to the requirements of necessity, yielding all theories and prejudices in obedience to their interests and the common good, there would be a measure of prosperity and advancement in the State that would astonish its most sanguine and hopeful friends."

FLORIDA AND HER FUTURE.—A gentleman who has resided in the "Land of Flowers" for a considerable time, has informed the Savannah Republican "that the freedmen everywhere throughout that favored State, are displaying the most praiseworthy activity in promoting their individual welfare, and are seeking in every possible manner to improve their moral, social and pecuniary condition. With but few exceptions, the very best understanding exists between them and their former owners. They all seem determined to labor faithfully for their employers, and even boast that they now intend to make larger crops than ever before." What a happy people would the State of South Carolina have, if such a feeling could exist between the freedmen and their former owners. In the Colleton District a very good feeling exists, and order reigns. But in the interior of the States a very different relation exists between the blacks and the whites.

Items of Special Interest.

Twenty-four States have ratified the anti-slavery amendment to the Constitution. New Jersey will make the twenty-fifth; and if Delaware, California and Oregon will complete the requisite number of twenty-seven.

Incendiaries set fire to the colored Methodist Church, at Millington, Kent County, Maryland. Cause, the prejudice of the superior race. Gov. Bradford offers $500 reward for the arrest of the scoundrels.

Some time ago a few malcontents at Tullahoma, Tenn., took the liberty of destroying a schoolhouse, for freedmen near that place. Gen. Thomas thereupon politely requested the gentlemen to rebuild the house. They very decidedly refused. Gen. Thomas sent a few United States soldiers, with orders to see that the rebuilding was properly done by the offending parties—and it was done.

Dr. James McCune Smith, one of the best known colored men, died in Williamsburgh N. Y., on Tuesday morning of a pulmonary affection, from which he had been suffering for nearly 20 months, in the 52nd year of his age. He was born in New-York; was educated and graduated at Glasgow, Scotland, and had been a practicing physician for a quarter of a century. He had always felt a deep interest in the cause of his race, and had labored zealously and constantly to ameliorate and elevate the condition of the colored men in this country, both bond and free, who have lost in him one of their best friends and most able advocates.

The Provisional Governor of Florida, in his message, advises against negro suffrage, as he thinks it will not be made a condition to admission. He urges that the freedmen be allowed to testify in the courts, and that laws be passed protecting them in all their new rights.

☞ During the war an excited orator on the stump declared that the women of the country could churn out the public debt in a few years. Judging from the present price of butter, they have commenced upon the business already.

Impartial Suffrage.

While the Republicans have carried the State of Wisconsin by 7000 or 8000 majority, they have beaten, or suffered to be beaten, the negro suffrage proposition by a majority of upward of 10,000. Our latest advices from Minnesota also make it doubtful whether the same proposition has prevailed there. Such facts as these are not very agreeable, but they must be faced as part of the situation of the times. What do they amount to? They simply indicate the delinquency of loyal public opinion in certain localities.

To be more explicit, let us ask: Do they estop the Republicans of more advanced opinions from advocating the application of impartial suffrage at the South? Not in the least, we imagine. This is not a well-defined party tenet, and the attitude upon the party in Connecticut or Wisconsin does not at all bind the action of Massachusetts or elsewhere. It puts no restraint even on the dissenting Republicans of Connecticut or Wisconsin. The decision in those States, so far as it has anything to do with party lines at all, is more than four-fifths a Democratic decision, and merits Republican respect in proportion.

Do these results in a few Northern States foreclose all possible demand of impartial suffrage as one of the conditions of the re-admission of the Southern States? We do not so regard the matter. There is really no resemblance between the situation of Connecticut and that of South Carolina, for instance in relation to this question of negro suffrage. In the former it is a matter of principle essentially, and has a practical bearing only—and that in a very limited degree—upon the two thousand new voters that would be made by it. But in South Carolina, the question, so far as it is a vital one at all, is of direct practical value to the whole country, as insuring South Carolina's fitness for re-entering the Union, her safety, stability, and usefulness there. We do not say that the turn which affairs have taken has kept the application of Negro suffrage at the South still open to the Government, but we do say that it stands there, so far as it has any standing, upon the paramount basis of the national well-being, which is quite distinct from the claims of theoretical consistency and individual justice which are made in its behalf in certain loyal States.

But while, then, we see no necessary inconsistency in the Republicans even of Connecticut and Wisconsin desiring the President, under certain circumstances, to make Negro suffrage one of the conditions of the re-admission of seceded States. It is plain that those same Republicans have done their cause a harm which, in public opinion must seriously neutralize their influence. It is true they have rejected Negro suffrage at the North for one reason, while they may urge it at the South for another and more weighty reason. Still, they rejected it from absurd prejudices, where no real sacrifices were required, and that is enough; as the world goes, to set them aside as the judges of, or the witnesses against, other men on the same subject. It is unavoidable, also, that their influences has extended, to the discredit of the whole North, and to the impairment of its unanimity and efficiency in a great crisis of the republic. We sincerely trust that their defection is but temporary.—Boston Journal.

BURNING OF THE MUSEUM

LETTER FROM MR. BARNUM.

NEW YORK, July 14, 1865.

Messrs. Herring & Co.

GENTLEMEN—Though the destruction of the American Museum has proved a serious loss to myself and the public, I am happy to verify the old adage, that, "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good," and, consequently, congratulate you that your well known safes have again demonstrated their superior fire-proof qualities in an ordeal of unusual severity.

The safe you made for me some time ago was in the office of the Museum, on the second floor, back part of the building, and in the hottest of the fire.

After twenty four hours of trial it was found among the debris, and on opening it this day has yielded up its contents in very good order—books, papers, policies of insurance, bank bills, all in condition for immediate use, and a noble commentary on the trust worthiness of Herring's Fire-Proof Safes.

Truly yours,

No. 57 Broadway, New York,

Offers its Agency to parties of every description, especially in the Southern States, and to northern and European capitalists, emigration societies and conductors of emigration, and to individuals, (farmers, mechanics and others,) desirous of transferring their labor and skill to the south.

It designs to aid, through the means offered by a central office in New York, and its branches elsewhere, in the great work of the social and economical reorganization of the South, by bringing together the owners of plantations and farms seeking purchase and industrial development on the one hand, with those who command the capital and labor and skill on the other hand. It will devote itself to the work of accumulating and methodizing information and statistics, useful for those who may, on grounds of pecuniary profit, or business enterprise or patriotism or philanthropy, desire to contribute, through the reorganization of industry, to the material means by which the South can be restored, its people of every condition made prosperous men and good citizens; and its communities brought to take their share in promoting the welfare of the whole country.

The company proposes to interest the enterprise and money of the country in the opportunities and means for their useful and profitable employment, afforded by the broad lands of the South now open for the first time to free labor, but whose owners and occupiers are suffering from the waste of war.
