such [illegible]
debts [illegible]
and [illegible]
by [illegible]
that
their [illegible]
rule. [illegible]
you persist [illegible]
men, [illegible]
it will [illegible]
to oppress [illegible]
ible, however [illegible]
servation, with [illegible]
and acute [illegible]
cause it is [illegible]
compel us to [illegible]
white men from [illegible]
labor for your [illegible]
your present [illegible]
path and fortune [illegible]
as you now think, [illegible] blindly rush upon [illegible]
have your choice now. [illegible] it again. If you [illegible]
to our mutual [illegible]
stand by us, we [illegible]
will be peace [illegible]
blessings shared [illegible]
otherwise, and [illegible]
ciates; if you [illegible]
you will put [illegible]
submit yourselves [illegible]
then you must [illegible]
our ways. We [illegible]
you. You [illegible]
wretchedness [illegible]
you. We [illegible]
selves. Think [illegible] calmly. Then [illegible]
and for your [illegible]
guided by [illegible]
your judgment [illegible]
will adhere to [illegible]
your children, and [illegible]
follow them.

The Christian [illegible]

CHARLESTON, S. C.

☞ All letters for the Editors, should be addressed to the Advocate, Lock-Box [illegible]

☞ Single copies of the paper may be had at Mr. Hyatt's [illegible] our office at five cents each.

FOR PRESIDENT:

ULYSSES S. GRANT,

OF ILLINOIS.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT:

SCHUYLER COLFAX,

OF INDIANA.

Reply to the Democratic Address to Colored Voters.

We give our readers in this issue, in full, the labored address of the Democratic friends to the colored people. In doing this our readers will perceive the benefit of both sides of the important question now agitating the country, and especially the South. It is the greatest misfortune of the country that Southern Democracy has shut out the masses of the people from a fair and impartial discussion of questions of national importance. By this means designing men have misled the people, blinded their minds to the merits and defects of the present Administration, and only anxious for the interests of our State, and the [illegible] and be aware of the [illegible] involved in the present campaign, and [illegible] fears for the results.

The address [illegible] Democratic party has governed the country for three fourths of our national history. All lovers of [illegible] be aware of the fact that the Democratic party [illegible] not identical with the [illegible] Washington and [illegible] the interests of the country. The present Democratic party [illegible] the Southern Confederacy, [illegible] existence, but rallied [illegible] its supremacy.

The colored people [illegible] themselves to be naturally the friends of the white people of the South, and [illegible] from the ties of kindred and [illegible] which many of them [illegible] from the [illegible] existed between the [illegible] In view of the [illegible] to us to be taunted with the [illegible] made to our poverty and [illegible] We know these [illegible] but not our fault. If our colored brethren [illegible] ed you and us, and in our [illegible] played together, you gave us [illegible] nursing in return, but kept us in [illegible] rance for your own advantage and [illegible] us with the heavy burdens of [illegible] toil that you might pocket the fruits of our labor. It is now asserted that if we are not your political friends and allies, we shall be regarded and treated as your enemies! We can see no just grounds for such an assumption or for such treatment. The idea that those who differ in political sentiments may justly regard each other as enemies, has already drenched our country in blood, and the theory and practice must be abandoned or the country is ruined, and a republican form of government must be regarded as a failure. We supposed that people might differ in their political opinions, and still be friends. What [illegible] Washington and [illegible] the interests of the country, the present Democratic party [illegible] the Southern Confederacy, [illegible] existence, but rallied [illegible] its supremacy.

The colored people [illegible] themselves to be naturally the friends of the white people of the South, and [illegible] from the ties of kindred and [illegible] which many of them [illegible] from the [illegible] existed between the [illegible] In view of the [illegible] to us to be taunted with the [illegible] made to our poverty and [illegible] We know these [illegible] but not our fault. If our colored brethren [illegible] ed you and us, and in our [illegible] played together, you gave us [illegible] nursing in return, but kept us in [illegible] rance for your own advantage and [illegible] us with the heavy burdens of [illegible] toil that you might pocket the fruits of our labor. It is now asserted that if we are not your political friends and allies, we shall be regarded and treated as your enemies! We can see no just grounds for such an assumption or for such treatment. The idea that those who differ in political sentiments may justly regard each other as enemies, has already drenched our country in blood, and the theory and practice must be abandoned or the country is ruined, and a republican form of government must be regarded as a failure. We supposed that people might differ in their political opinions, and still be friends. What

[illegible] here to give the [illegible] discriminations of [illegible] upon the supposition that the colored man did not know [illegible] enough to take care of himself, and must be left completely in the control of his [illegible] He was not to be included [illegible] not even all wool [illegible] firearms without a special [illegible] A colored man at work [illegible] the place of a white man, could [illegible] peck of [illegible] or any [illegible] might raise for himself, [illegible] ns, for [illegible] and so [illegible] be [illegible] special [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]