Dills for the People, and from the first box he began to improve. When he had taken nire these he was completely cured. This famous blood and nerve medicine had accomplished what all his former expensive treatment failed to accomplish. Mr. Kemper says his entarth has entirely left him; he is strong again and weight nine pounds more than he ever did. He gives the pills the entire credit. He is starting teaching a min and feels abundantly able to continue the work. To prove that the above is true in every respect, Mr. Kemper made an affidavit as follows: every respect, Mr. nemper dayit as follows:

CARROLL D. WRIGHT. United States Commissioner of Labor Ha Been Honored Abroad.

Carroll D. Wright, United States Commissioner of Labor, who has just been honored with membership in the Institute of France and honorary membership in the Imperial Russian Academy of Sciences, is one of the foremost statisticians of the world.

Few statisticians, says the Chicago Times-Herald, have been as careful as he to present bare facts and to present them as fully as the statistician can. It was he who originated the now famous and much misquoted saying, "Figures do not lie, but liars figure."

The noted labor statistician began life as a country schoolmaster in New Hampshire, his native State, and went from pedagogy into law. Dropping his commentaries for his musket he went to the war, and, after fighting to the end of the strife, he resumed his law work and was admitted to the bar. In 1871 and 1872 he was a New Hampshire Legislator, and was soon thereafter placed in charge of the State Labor Bureau, to take which position he gave up a practice of $10,000 a year. In 1880 he supervised the national census in Massachusetts, and his work attracted much attention for its thoroughness. In 1885 he was made the first Labor Commissioner of the United States. His published works make a very considerable library of labor statistics.

How a Porcupine Fights a Snake. ["Several years ago I was an interested spectator at a combat between a hedgehog and a huge blacksnake," said W. D. Ingraham, of Memphis. "I came upon the scene just as the hedgehog began the attack upon the snake, which was lying stretched out to s y upon the reptile and seized in the mostly giving it a sharp he quickly withdrew at the control of the co ot, spiny ball, awaited developnends. The snake, upon being thus rudely awakened, turned in fury upon its aptogonist, striking the hog again and again with its fangs. The wily adgehog, securely intrenched within its spiny armor remained perfectly motionless, all the while, allowing the snake to keep up the attack. At every stroke the jaws of the smake would become filled with the spines, until, at last, exhausted and bleeding from dozens of wounds caused by the needlelike spines of the hog, the snake gave up the battle. This was evidently what the hedgehog was waiting for, as he immediately proceeded to roll over the snake again and again until he had completely disembowelled his victim."-St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

KLONDIKE SKY-SCRAPERS.

Cathedral and Court House at Dawson City, Metropolis of the Gold Field.

These are not very imposing structures certainly, says the New York Journal. They could not be called "sky scrapers," but the citizens of Dawson City, who have gone to court fortune in the Klondike, dignify these tiny houses with the names of cathedral and court house. The judge does not bother about strict formalities, but he rules, in this hastily built little temple of justice, as carefully and as justly as if he were holding court in New York for a sensational murder trial, with leading lights of the bar present, and being sketched every hour for the papers.

In the little cathedral nearby there are no gorgeous appointments resembling a stage setting, no music by highly paid artists. The little wooden chairs are not remarkably comfortable, and the music must be made by the attendants at service.

Women in that part of the globe cannot be accused of going to church to see the style of hat her dearest foe has just purchased. They all wear

UNIVERSAL CLOCK.

It Shows the Time at Any Point of the Earth's Surface.

A novel astronomical clock for the schoolroom, in which electricity supplies the power, has recently been patented. It shows the days of the week and the hours at all points of the earth's surface. The question of international time is a puzzling one to school children, but by having this model constantly before them it is believed they will gradually obtain without effort definite and accurate ideas on the subject. A round globe, whose surface represents a map of the earth's surface, is revolved inside a stationary ring, graduated for hours of the day. Another disk, graduated for the days of the week, is also revolved, so as to show through an opening two days of the week at a time, and a line of demarkation, carried by the map disk, indicates the dividing line between the days of the week.

TELLS TIME IN ANY COUNTRY.

An Exchange of Twins.

Besides the ordinary rent paid to the landlord, it used to be customary in the Highlands for the tenant to give to his master one of the calves or lambs if it happened that a cow or ewe should hard, but the gain was not all on one side, for the master was obliged if the wife of any of his tenants happened to have twins, to take one of the babies and bring it up in his own family. As cases of twins happened once in every sixty, nine births, this adoption by the master must have been a fairly frequent occurrence.

German "Bulls."

The Germans are about as brilliant in the use of the metaphors which occasionally crop up in parliamentary as semblies as the French. Here are some sentences reported by a German paper, which seems to show that forensic eloquence is much the same in all countries: "With closed eyes you have watched the flood rising." "The periodical sanitary reports are submitted to us after a decade of three years. "We do not bury the battle ax. On the contrary, we shall give it renewed life." "I speak, not as a deputy, but as the person sent by my electors."

Deal Hole, in his "Little Tour in Ireland," says that when one of his party went a-fishing, it was to come home in triumph, bearing a glorious salmon, its silver scales glittering in the sun. Naturally he was in good humor, and well disposed to pay the fisherman who had accompanied him. This was the dialogue as the two men stepped on shore: Boatman," said the happy tourist,
