DR. GOTTLIEB FISCHER'S BILLYERS.
This preparation of the great potentia, Dr. Gottlieb Fischer, of Germany, is based on the fact that, as all materials of the body are derived from Food, so all Vital Force, or Health, is derived from the Food stored up in Food. Dr. Fischer's Billyers enables the System to absorb and appropriate these Food-stuffs, creates a healthy and robust appetite, cures Dyspepsia, with its concomitant Constipation and Liver troubles, makes Consumption and Biliousness impossible; restores the System to its normal condition, and all other ailments, such as Headache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, and all other ailments, will rapidly strengthen by using this great Preparation.

REMINISCENCES OF PUBLIC MEN.

BY EX-GOVERNOR R. F. PERRY.

HORATIO SEYMORE.

The selection of Horatio Seymour by the Democratic Convention of his standard-bearer in the great contest between civil and constitutional liberty on the one side, and military despotism on the other, shows great wisdom and good judgment. He is a gentleman of the highest and purest character, a profound statesman, and a consistent, devoted Democrat throughout his whole life. He is in the prime of his manly intellect, with great experience as an administrative officer, having twice filled, with signal ability, the Executive chair of the great empire State of this Republic. His mind is highly cultivated and enriched with all the stores of learning and practical wisdom. In debate, he is able and eloquent. His manners are those of a polished gentleman, warm, cordial and sincere. In personal appearance, he is strikingly prepossessing and engaging. His manly form and expressive features, are stamped with the true nobility of nature. In purpose, he is firm and self-reliant. As a gallant leader and standard-bearer of the great Democratic party of these United States, he cannot be surpassed.

Governor Seymour did not seek the nomination, but it sought him, amongst all the distinguished names which were before the convention. After balloting two or three days without success, his name was presented to the convention by the great State of Ohio, against his wishes and remonstrations, and received the unanimous vote of every State on the first ballot. The high honor thus tendered, he could not refuse, but it was reluctantly accepted, for the harmony and success of the Democratic party.

I feel assured that Governor Seymour was sincere in declining the nomination in the first instance. He was President of the convention, and when North Carolina voted for him, he said, with great earnestness, that he was not a candidate, and would not accept the nomination. Honor, he said, forbid his doing so. When he was nominated by Ohio, after the withdrawal of Pendleton, General McCook stated that honor no longer forbade his acceptance. He protested again against his nomination. General McCook said that he knew that Horatio Seymour did not seek the Presidency, but that the Presidency sought him.

This expression of General McCook, may have been a little premature. It will be seen in November next, whether the Presidency seeks Governor Seymour or General Grant, who expressed the same repugnance to his nomination by the Radicals twelve months ago. If the American people desire to continue in power, the present Radical party, there is an end of the Republic.

GEORGE G. MEADE.

Whilst acting as Provisional Governor of South Carolina, I received a letter from General Gilmore, military commander of the State, requesting me to meet General Meade in Columbia. He was the military commander of the Atlantic States, and stationed in the city of Philadelphia. We had a long interview, and it was agreed that the military authorities should no longer take cognizance of cases in which white persons alone were concerned. Where negroes were parties, they were still to retain jurisdiction till the Legislature could repeal the law prohibiting colored persons from giving testimony in the courts, in cases in which they were interested parties. After the repeal of this law, the civil courts were to take jurisdiction of all cases.

I remonstrated strongly against the negro troops being sent over the State, and stated that they were every where committing outrages on society. General Meade said he could withdraw all colored troops from the interior of the State, and place them in forts and garrisons on the sea coast, where they could do no mischief. But said it would have to be done gradually, so as not to offend public sentiment at the North. During the whole of our interview, General Meade expressed himself in regard to the South, in terms highly honorable to him as an officer and a patriot. I was very favorably impressed with him, and thought that he was the soul of honor and chivalry. I did not believe it possible for such a man to play the cruel tyrant and oppressor of his race and country, as he afterwards did whilst in command of the military district of Georgia.

He expressed feelings of sympathy, to me, for the South, which greatly attached me to him, and I thought him the best ideal of military honor. He spoke of the battle of Gettysburg, and said the war ought to have ended with the retreat of General Lee into Virginia. That all hope of Southern Independence was then gone, and the continuance of the war was a cruel sacrifice of human life. I thought to myself, that if the war had then ended, General Meade, and not General Grant, would have been the great hero of the war. How far this may have influenced his judgment, I am not able to say. But surely the Confederate States did a great deal of hard fighting after the battle of Gettysburg, and were successful on many occasions after that.

General Meade was dressed in full uniform, and I thought him as fine a looking officer as I had ever seen. I met him afterwards, at the depot in Philadelphia, dressed very shabbily in citizens' clothes, with an old straw hat on, and it was hard for me to realize that he was the same person, whom I had met twelve months before in Columbia, dressed as a Major General of the United States. He did not appear to be as tall by several inches, and his courtly air and manner were gone.

The sister of General Meade married Captain Huger, who died gloriously defending the Confederate flag below the city of New Orleans. She died, and left two sons, who were with Mr. Alfred Huger, in Columbia. General Meade went to see them, and insisted on taking them with him to educate and bring up. But Mr. Huger, though in great poverty, could not tolerate the idea of giving up the children of his adopted son, to be carried to the North to be brought up and educated. The General spoke kindly of Mr. Huger's feelings of delicacy and protection on the subject, after his return from the visit.

The conduct of General Meade in Georgia has taught me to believe that very few military men are fit for civil government, or can appreciate Republican principles.

Askes for Sweet Potatoes.

A correspondent of the Southern Cultivator says: "I notice the question is asked, which is the best fertilizer or manure for sweet potatoes. From the experience I have had, in manuring the sweet potato, I must say that rotted ashes, when properly put on, has precedence over all others I have had any experience with. The plan that I adopted was to open a deep furrow with a scouter plow, and put in the plenty of ashes. Bed out on the ashes, and a sure crop may be realized on the poorest soil. Cow penning is good—so are cotton seed and stable manure: but, after experimenting with the ashes, they will all be abandoned, provided ashes can be had. I experimented on as poor soil as I had, and the result was as fine a crop of potatoes as I ever saw on any kind of land. Rotted ashes is good for cotton also, and almost any kind of vegetation. I am convinced there is no better fertilizer made on any plantation than rotted ashes. So every one will find it greatly to his interest to take special care of it."

A REMEDY FOR RUST IN WHEAT.

A Virginia Farmer in a communication to the Southern Farm and Home, thinks he has found the means of preventing the rust in wheat, by topdressing in March with wood ashes, putting on about 12 bushels to the acre. He says that in a season of drought in nearly all the wheat growing sections of the South, whilst all his neighbors' crops were ruined by rust, his escaped by the use of ashes. He considers it an infallible cure for the rust, and that he has found it the means of preventing rust in four out of five of his crops. No doubt the ashes will be found a most valuable manure for this and almost all other crops, and if in addition thereto, they will prevent the rust also, it will be more than ever desirable to save and secure all that it is possible to reach.

POVERTY-STRICKEN rich men are becoming very common. Fort Wayne, Ind., has a street scavenger worth $50,000, who lives in apparently the most destitute circumstances.

A CONFIDING HUSBAND.—During the trial of a case a witness persisted in testifying to what his wife told him. To this, of course, the attorney objected. He would proceed again to tell "shut how it was," when the attorney would sing out:

"How do you know that?"
"My wife told me," was the answer.

This was repeated several times. Presently the Judge, becoming unable to contain himself longer, interrupted:

"Suppose your wife were to tell you that the heavens had fallen—what would you think?"
"Vell, I dink dey vas down!"

A MARRIAGE CONTRACT.—Marriage ceremony as too often performed:

Clergyman (to lady).—"Wilt thou take this noble mansion-carrying-jewels-fannels-self-wheeling-bath-chair-pillows-and-all-appliances-for-the-gout, to be thy wedded husband?"

Clergyman (to gentleman).—"Wilt thou take this bale-of-cotton—Muscovite-chignon—Grecian-bend-and-high-heeled-shoes to be thy wedded wife?"

"I will."

An editor, in acknowledging the gift of a peck of potatoes, says: "It is kindnesses such as these that bring tears to our eyes. One peck of potatoes makes the whole world kin. We have trusted in Providence, and this is our reward. We would like a little kindling-wood and some good turnips—but that would be asking too much; so we will try to do without them."

Borrowed garments seldom fit well. Haste often trips up its own heel. Men very often blush to hear what they are not ashamed to do. What is not needed is dear at any price. He who buys too many superfluities may be obliged to sell his necessities. A foolish man generally loses his estate before he finds his folly.

WHAT are the points of difference between the Prince of Wales, an orphan, a bald head, and a gorrilla? The Prince is heir-apparent, an orphan has no heir apparent, and a gorrilla has a hairy parent.

The French women are the best dressed in the world, German women have the most luxuriant heads of hair, the Spanish women the smallest hands and feet, Italian women the most brilliant complexions, South Americans the most beauty, and American women the most style.

A few days ago a man carried a challenge to mortal combat to a Jacksonville brewer, who, as soon as he read the message, turned to and whipped the bearer in a rough and tumble fight, and said: "May-be some more of dem vanta to make droubles mit me."

THE DEATH OF LOWERY.—The New York Herald prints letters from a correspondent, who says that he has spent some days with the Lowery outlaws of Robeson County, North Carolina. One of these letters gives the following account of the death of Henry Derry Lowery, the leader of the gang:

Between February 13 and 16, in company with Boss Strong, Henry Derry Lowery was ranging the country in the neighborhood of Moss Neck, in search of some persons whom he had been informed were hunting him. They discovered in the bushes a newly made "blind," (a place of concealment or ambush made by intertwining the branches of the thickly grown bushes.) It was not then occupied, and Henry Derry, believing it had been recently made by one of his pursuers, who would shortly return to it, ensconced himself in it, while Boss made a blind for himself a short distance off, covering the road. But a few minutes after they had placed themselves in their respective positions the report of a gun was heard from Henry's hiding place, and when Boss, who waited to hear a word from his chief or an answering shot from an enemy, cautiously approached the spot, Henry Derry Lowery lay on his back, with one barrel of his shot gun discharged, and his nose, forehead and the whole front of his head blown off. The broken ramrod and the missing wiper showed he had been trying to draw a load from his gun. Boss drew the body into a thicket and notified his companions, who straightway buried him.

FEMALE CLERKS.—Some of the great banking and insurance companies in England have entered upon a social experiment of considerable importance, so less than the employment of a special class of lady clerks. The Prudential Assurance Company, which has the largest staff of clerks of any London office, has created a department for female service, for which only the daughters and widows of professional men, merchants and gentlemen engaged in public offices are eligible. The restriction is an arbitrary one, and yet will probably be found in England to work well enough in practice. In the United States, of course, no such limitation would be thought of. It will be interesting to watch the course of this experiment. The female treasury clerks in Washington have proved a success, and there is no visible reason why they should not be found to "work" equally well in private establishments.

ALFRED HOFFKY, who commanded the English regiment which guarded Napoleon at St. Helena, died in Brooklyn the other day, aged seventy-eight.

A TEACHER catechizing his scholars, put the question: "What was made to give light to the world?" "Matches!" cried one of the youngsters, after a short pause.

JOSE BILLINGS says: "If a man has got $50,000 at interest and owns the house he lives in, it ain't much trouble to be a philosopher."

A GANG of burglars, in Indiana, worked all night at a County Treasurer's safe and were rejoiced to find $1.10 in its roomy recesses.

WHISKEY IN THE BLOOD.—A man died the other day from habitual drunkenness. A post mortem examination of his internal organs showed that his blood was largely mixed with alcohol. The coroner testified that the heart smelled as though it had been steeped in alcohol. People who are in the habit of keeping themselves saturated with the vile compound under the name of rum, gin, bourbon, etc., should take warning from such an example. We may talk of soft hearts, noble hearts, and true hearts, but how can a heart steeped in alcohol be any of these?

There is dew in one flower and not in another, because one opens its cup to take it in, while the other closes itself and the drop runs off. So God rains goodness and mercy as wide as the dew; and if we lack them, it is because we will not open our hearts to receive them.

Two Irishmen, on a sultry night, immediately after their arrival in India took refuge under the bedclothes from a skimming party of mosquitoes. At last one of them, gasping from heat, ventured to peep beyond the bedclothes, and by chance espied a fire-fly, (lightning-bug) which had strayed into the room. Arousing his companion with a punch, he said: "Fergus, Fergus, it's no use. Ye might as well come out. Here's one of the craters searching for us wid a lantern."

THE Atlanta Constitution says that the Directors of the Atlanta and Richmond Air-Line met in Richmond lately, and raised the salaries of President to $5,000 per annum; Secretary, $3,500; Treasurer, $1,200; Chief Engineer, $4,000; three assistants, $225 per month. Iron to finish track from Charlotte to Atlanta has been bought, and 16,000 tons will be landed in Wilmington in July. The road will be done in twelve months. The road is 262 miles long and will cost $5,000,000.

SCENE IN A HORSE CAR.—Car stops; smiling young lady enters; every seat full. An old gentleman rises at the opposite end. "Oh, don't rise," said the lovely girl, "I can just as well stand." "I don't care whether you sit or stand," he replied, "I'm going to get out."

NORTHERN MAN.—"How does the Republican party take in the South?" "Southerner."—"Like it does everywhere—everything it can get its hands on."

The difference between war and peace has been well defined by one of the ancients. In time of peace, the sons bury their fathers; in time of war, the fathers bury their sons.

THE GEORGIA LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE is in New York, to investigate the conduct of the ascending Governor Bullock. The investigation will include Bullock's transactions with the State agent, and the proceedings will be private.

We are informed, says the Marion Star, 27th ult, that a man by the name of George Anderson attempted to stop a freight train, last Saturday night, near Fair Bluff, by getting on the track in front of the engine. The engine tossed him about fifteen feet in the air. A coffin was ordered.

The following post offices will be in the new county of Aiken: Windsor, Montmorenci, Aiken, Walker's Mills, Greenland and Hammond, now in Barnwell county; Grantville, Langley, Bath and Hamburg, now in Edgefield county; Sawyer's Mills, Merritt's Bridge and Rich's Post office, now in Lexington county; making eleven in all.

Judge Montgomery Moses, says the South Carolinian, has purchased a residence at Newberry, and is preparing to remove his family there. We are assured that the kindness and urbanity which has distinguished his judicial intercourse with the people of his Circuit, will be fully appreciated and reciprocated by the citizens of Newberry.

Mr. Wilby Bradley, who lives near the line of Kershaw and Sumter counties, desires information concerning his son, John James Bradley. Soon after the close of the war, young Bradley—then probably not quite grown—left home and has not since been heard from. The anxious father will receive any information gratefully, addressed to Bradford Springs P. O.

At the court of Sessions for Spartanburg county, the defendants, John W. Vandever, S. W. Vandever and James H. Vandever, a father and two sons, were convicted of conspiring and combining against the rights of General Bate, a citizen of that county, and were sentenced by Judge Moses, the two former to two years imprisonment, and the last, on account of his youth, to six months in the common jail of the county.

IMPORTANT ORDER.—An order was granted on Tuesday by Judge Bryan in the United States Circuit Court, in the case of the United States vs. John Frazer & Co., et al., authorizing James Roth and C. T. Lowndes trustees, to take out $250,000 of the bonds held by the Court in that case, and hold the same subject to any judgment which might be recovered in the State Court by certain creditors suing for a pro rata share of the bonds. The surplus, after paying such judgments, if any, is to be returned to the United States Court.—Charleston News.
